Seminary of Quebec Library

The images appearing here are the best quality possible considering the condition and legibility of the original copy and in keeping with the filming contract specifications.

Original copies in printed paper covers are filmed beginning with the front cover and ending on the last page with a printed or illustrated impression, or the back cover when appropriate. All other original copies are filmed beginning on the first page with a printed or illustrated impression, and ending on the last page with a printed or illustrated impression.

The last recorded frame on each microfiche shall contain the symbol ➔ (meaning "CONTINUED"), or the symbol ▽ (meaning "END"), whichever applies.

Maps, plates, charts, etc., may be filmed at different reduction ratios. Those too large to be entirely included in one exposure are filmed beginning in the upper left hand corner, left to right and top to bottom, as many frames as required. The following diagrams illustrate the method:

DIVISION OF CUSTOMS.

TREASURY DEPARTMENT,
Office of the Secretary,
WASHINGTON, D.C., June 17th, 1885.

To Collectors of Customs:

Under joint resolution of March 3rd, 1883, and the proclamation of the President of the United States of the 31st January, 1885, certain articles of the Treaty of Washington of 1871, including article 21, terminate on the 1st day of July, 1885.

In view of such termination of the provisions of article 21, collectors of customs are instructed that "fish oil and fish of all kinds," the produce of the fisheries of the Dominion of Canada, Prince Edward Island and Newfoundland, which may be imported into the United States from and after the said 1st of July, 1885, will be liable to duty under the existing tariff laws, without regard to their origin.

No. 2.

Governor-General to Secretary of State.

OTTAWA, 9th July, 1885.

Sir,—With reference to previous correspondence relating to the negotiations between Her Majesty’s Government and the Government of the United States having for their object the conclusion of a temporary arrangement as to the fisheries on the basis proposed in the memo. of the Secretary of State of the United States, a copy of which I had the honour to transmit to the Earl of Derby in my despatch No. 134 of 186—1.
the 28th April last, I have now the honour to forward, herewith, for your information a copy of a despatch which I have received from Her Majesty’s Minister at Washington, enclosing copies of the correspondence which has passed between Mr. West and Mr. Bayard in the course of the negotiations, and in which the agreements concluded in this matter between the two Powers is embodied.

I have, etc.,

[Enclosure No. 1.]

Minister at Washington to Governor-General.

WASHINGTON, 22nd June, 1885.

My Lord,—With reference to the correspondence which has passed concerning the temporary arrangement proposed by the Secretary of State, in his memorandum, copy of which was enclosed in my despatch to your Excellency, No. 50 of the 23rd of April last, in consequence of the termination of the fishery articles of the Treaty of Washington on the 1st July next, I have the honour to inform your Excellency that I have been authorized by Earl Granville to negotiate such an arrangement, following as closely as possible the wishes of the Colonial Governments and on the distinct understanding that it is of a temporary nature and without prejudice to equivalents which might be required in a more permanent settlement. I therefore communicated to the Secretary of State the replies of Your Excellency’s Government and of that of Newfoundland as conveyed to me by Earl Granville to the proposals contained in Mr. Bayard’s above mentioned memo., and on the 19th I received from him a confidential letter, copy of which is herewith enclosed, in which he assumes that the replies of Your Excellency’s Government and that of Newfoundland embrace the acceptance by them of the general features of his memorandum with the understanding expressed on their side that the agreement had been arrived at under circumstances affording prospect of negotiation for the development and extension of trade between the United States and British North America, and to which contingent understanding he states that he has no objection. To this communication I replied in a confidential letter, copy of which is enclosed, reiterating the assertions made by the Colonial Governments and stating that they have consented to the arrangement solely as a mark of good will to the Government and people of the United States.

On the 20th I received an official note from the Secretary of State, copy of which is also enclosed, in which he states, that perceiving no substantial differences between the respective propositions and the statement as contained in the correspondence on the subject, he considers the agreement as embodied in the memoranda and correspondence as thus concluded, and that public notification to that effect will be given in a few days by the President.

As no direct allusion was made in this note to the circumstances under which the agreement had been reached, I called on Mr. Bayard and pointed this out to him, and he has thereupon addressed to me a further note, copy of which is enclosed.

As I considered this communication satisfactory, I replied to it by the note, copy of which I have the honour to enclose to your Excellency herewith, stating that I considered the agreement as concluded and that I should inform Her Majesty’s Government, the Government of Canada and the Government of Newfoundland accordingly.

In negotiating this agreement I have endeavoured as far as possible to meet the wishes of Your Excellency’s Government and I trust that it may meet with approval.

I have, &c.,

To Mr. Bayard: I beg to acknowledge the receipt of your note of yesterday's date concerning the proposed temporary arrangement respecting the fisheries which I am authorized by Her Majesty's Government to negotiate with you on behalf of the Government of the Dominion and the Government of Newfoundland to be effected by an exchange of notes founded on your memorandum of the 21st April.

The two confidential memoranda which I handed to you on the 13th instant, contain as you have informed me the acceptance by the Dominion and the British American Coast Provinces of the general features of your above mentioned memorandum, with the understanding expressed on their side that the agreement has been arrived at under circumstances affording prospect of negotiation for development and extension of trade between the United States and British North America, a contingent understanding to which, as you state, you can have no objection as you regard it as covered by the terms of your memo. of April 21st.

In authorizing me to negotiate this agreement Earl Granville states as I have already had occasion to intimate to you that it is on the distinct understanding that it is a temporary one and that its conclusion must not be held to prejudice any claim which may be advanced to more satisfactory equivalents by the Colonial Governments in the course of the negotiations for a more permanent settlement.

Earl Granville further wishes me to tell you that Her Majesty's Government and the Colonial Government have consented to the arrangement solely as a mark of good will to the Government and people of the United States, and to avoid difficulties which might be raised by the termination of the fishery articles in the midst of the fishing season, and also that the acceptance of such modus vivendi does not by any implication affect the value of the inshore fisheries by the Governments of Canada and Newfoundland.

I had occasion to remark to you that while the Colonial Governments are asked to guarantee immunity from interference to American vessels resorting to Canadian waters, no such immunity is offered in your memorandum to Canadian vessels resorting to American waters, but that the Dominion Government presumed that the agreement in this respect would be mutual.

To Mr. Bayard: I beg to acknowledge the receipt of your note of yesterday's date concerning the proposed temporary arrangement respecting the fisheries which I am authorized by Her Majesty's Government to negotiate with you on behalf of the Government of the Dominion and the Government of Newfoundland to be effected by an exchange of notes founded on your memorandum of the 21st April.

The two confidential memoranda which I handed to you on the 13th instant, contain as you have informed me the acceptance by the Dominion and the British American Coast Provinces of the general features of your above mentioned memorandum, with the understanding expressed on their side that the agreement has been arrived at under circumstances affording prospect of negotiation for development and extension of trade between the United States and British North America, a contingent understanding to which, as you state, you can have no objection as you regard it as covered by the terms of your memo. of April 21st.

In authorizing me to negotiate this agreement Earl Granville states as I have already had occasion to intimate to you that it is on the distinct understanding that it is a temporary one and that its conclusion must not be held to prejudice any claim which may be advanced to more satisfactory equivalents by the Colonial Governments in the course of the negotiations for a more permanent settlement.

Earl Granville further wishes me to tell you that Her Majesty's Government and the Colonial Government have consented to the arrangement solely as a mark of good will to the Government and people of the United States, and to avoid difficulties which might be raised by the termination of the fishery articles in the midst of the fishing season, and also that the acceptance of such modus vivendi does not by any implication affect the value of the inshore fisheries by the Governments of Canada and Newfoundland.

I had occasion to remark to you that while the Colonial Governments are asked to guarantee immunity from interference to American vessels resorting to Canadian waters, no such immunity is offered in your memorandum to Canadian vessels resorting to American waters, but that the Dominion Government presumed that the agreement in this respect would be mutual.

As you accepted this view it would I think be as well that mention should be made to this effect in the notes.

Under the reservations as above indicated in which I believe you acquiesce, I am prepared to accept the understanding on behalf of British North America and to exchange notes in the above sense.

I have, &c.,

The Honorable

T. F. BAYARD.

[Enclosure No. 4.]

Mr. Bayard to Sir L. S. S. West.

DEPARTMENT OF STATE,
WASHINGTON, 20th June, 1885.

Sir,—I have just received your note of to-day's date in regard to the proposed temporary arrangement touching the fisheries.

Undoubtedly it is our clear and mutual understanding that the arrangement now made is only temporary, and it proceeds from the mutual good will of our respective governments, and solely to avoid all difficulties which might otherwise arise, from the termination of the fishing of 1885 in the midst of the season.

I understand, also, that the same immunity which is accorded by this agreement to the vessels belonging to the citizens of the United States engaged in fishing in the British-American waters will be extended to British vessels and subjects engaged in fishing in the waters of the United States.

Perceiving, therefore, no substantial difference between our respective propositions and these statements as contained in our correspondence on the subject, I shall consider the agreement as embodied in our memoranda and the Correspondence between us, as thus concluded; and public notification to that effect will be given in a few days by the President.

I have, &c.,

The Honorable

Sir LIONEL S. SACKVILLE WEST, K.C.M.G.

[Enclosure No. 5.]

Mr. Bayard to Sir L. S. S. West.

DEPARTMENT OF STATE,
WASHINGTON, 22nd June, 1885.

Sir,—In compliance with your verbal request that I should re-state part of my note to you of the 19th, I repeat that the arrangement whereby a modus vivendi on the fishery question has been reached, rests on the memoranda and correspondence exchanged; that your memo. of the 13th instant expressed the understanding on your side that the agreement has been arrived at under circumstances affording prospects of negotiation for the development and extension of trade "between the United States and British North America," that I not only had no objection to such an understanding, but in fact regarded it as amply embraced in our proposal to recommend a commission to deal with the whole subject in the interests of good neighbourhood and intercourse, and that the recommendation of any measures which the commission might deem necessary to attain those ends would seem to fall within its province and such recommendations could not fail to have attentive consideration.

Having thus, not only admitted the proviso of your memo. in your own language, but gone still further and pointed out that no limits would be set, so far as I was concerned, to the proposals to be brought forward in the suggested commission on behalf of either party, I do not see how it is possible for me to give any stronger assurance that the understanding has been reached under circumstances affording a prospect of negotiation for the development and extension of trade between the United States and British North America.

I have, &c.,

The Honourable,

Sir LIONEL S. SACKVILLE WEST, K.C.M.G.
June, 1885.

Sir,—I have the honor to acknowledge the receipt of your notes of the 20th and 22nd instant, in regard to the proposed temporary arrangement touching fisheries, in which you state that it is our clear and mutual understanding that such arrangement is only temporary, and that it proceeds from the mutual good will of our respective governments, and solely to avoid all difficulties which might otherwise arise from the termination of the fishing of 1885 in the midst of the season.

Also that the same immunity which is accorded by this agreement to the vessels belonging to the citizens of the United States engaged in fishing in the British waters of the United States, will be extended to British vessels engaged in fishing in the waters of the United States, and that the agreement has been reached under circumstances affording a prospect of negotiation for the development and extension of trade between the United States and British North America.

As therefore there exists no substantial difference between our respective propositions and the statements as contained in our correspondence on the subject I shall consider the agreement as embodied in our memoranda and the correspondence between us as thus concluded and shall inform Her Majesty's Government and the governments of the Dominion of Canada and Newfoundland accordingly.

THE FISHERIES.

No more apt illustration can be found of the folly of a protective tariff than that which the periodical recurrence of the fisheries dispute affords. If Canada and the United States were joined together by a political union all commercial and industrial bickering between the two countries would cease at once. There would be no more cause of irritation than there is between the fishermen of New York and those of New Jersey. We should never hear of the shore line, and the headland, and the marine league, and the right to buy bait and to cure fish, and the other unpleasant controversies which are now vexing the statesmen of the two countries. If all these commercial questions could be put at rest as to both, by a political resolution in which both should unite, why may they not be settled by a treaty? Simply because they have not set their head on the notion that every bone in the body of every citizen that can be imported from abroad must be protected against foreign competition. The Treaty of Washington, which admitted fish and fish oil free of duty in return for the privileges accorded to American fishermen in Canadian waters, was forced upon the Gloucester fishermen against their protest, and they have never ceased to consider themselves badly used by it—not because they have any natural right to shut out other people's fish from the market, but because they see other people's iron, woolen, and cotton goods shut out for the benefit of American producers and manufacturers. In order to vindicate the "great principle" in behalf of fish and fisher, we gave notice of the termination of the fishery clauses of the treaty, and now we are in hot water again, as we have been half-a-dozen times before.

Yet it is within the recollection of most of our readers that for ten years prior to 1854 there was peace and content between the two countries under the Reciprocity Treaty. The products of the soil, the mines, the forests and the waters were admitted free of duty into both countries, and nobody fancied himself harmed on either side of the border. But the Morrill tariff was passed in 1861, and straightway the lumbermen, the fishermen, the coal miners, the potash towers, the stone quarriers, and even the ice cutters began to clamor for protection. The friends of the Morrill tariff saw that they must maintain their consistency by abrogating the treaty as soon as its terms permitted. Being all powerful in the councils of the nation, they gave notice of its termination, and then we had difficulties and disputes about fishing rights until the Alabama claims came up for settlement. In considering these claims it was wisely decided to make one chapter of all outstanding differences between Great Britain and the United States. So the fisheries question and the San Juan Island question were included in the adjustment. England paid us $15,000,000 for the rebel cruiser depredations and surrendered San Juan Island to us. We paid her $5,000,000 for the use of the fisheries during the period which had elapsed since the abrogation of the Reciprocity Treaty, and agreed that in consideration of the future use of these privileges, we would admit Canadian fish and oil free of duty—a grant which would have been advantageous to the nation at large, even without any corresponding grant on the other side.

It is too late now—the world has gone forward too far—to make a serious matter of the old treaty of 1818, which the Gloucester fishermen denounced as a violation of their rights and a thing to be abrogated at all costs and hazards. This treaty conceded to the British authorities the right to forbid American fishing vessels from entering Canadian ports for any purpose except for shelter or to procure wood and water, thus cutting them off from all commercial privileges, and putting into the hands of the Canadians the power to drive our vessels to sea, and forbid the purchase of ice or bait or supplies. This extraordinary concession on our part constitutes the basis of most of the hostile legislation of the Dominion. They ought not to insist upon it. The right to sell is equal to the right to buy. If our fishermen gain anything by purchasing bait and supplies in their ports, the Canadian vendors gain as much. On the other hand, the right to buy is equal to the right to sell. If Canadian fishermen gain anything by selling their mackerel and cod in our markets, the American consumers gain as much. It is a poor rule which will not work both ways. What is wanted now is not a collection of ironclads on the fishing grounds to protect medieval rights, and enforce an exploded mercantile idea, but an abandonment on both sides of a false principle, which assumes that the producers of a given article have a right to be protected, at the expense of the whole community, against foreign competition.

The abrogation of the Treaty of 1818, which the fishermen now call for, will of course bring up the question of the tariff, since they insist sternly upon the enforcement of existing duties on fish, and even ask that the ridiculous Treasury regulations, which have multiplied and augmented the restrictions upon trade, shall be enacted into law. One of these regulations declares that "fish, fresh, for consumption," which are free of duty under the general tariff, must not be frozen, since in order to make them fit for consumption, they must first be thawed. Frozen fish, therefore, are put in the same category as smoked or salted fish, and made dutiable at the rate of 50 cents per 1.0 pounds. Again, if the fish are delivered fresh and unfrozen in the American market, and are not immediately consumed, but are salted or smoked for future use, they become dutiable under the rulings of our wise and vigilant Treasury expounders. These regulations the fishermen insist upon having enacted into law at once, lest some present or future Secretary should take it into his head that fresh fish are all fish not smoked, dried, salted, or pickled. th immunity which is accorded by this agreement to the vessels belonging to citizens of the United States engaged in fishing in the British American waters will likewise be extended to British vessels and subjects engaged in fishing in the waters of the United States.

The joint resolution of Congress of March 3rd, 1883, providing for the termination of the fishing articles of the treaty of May 8th, 1871, having been repealed in terms the Act of March 1st, 1873, for the execution of the fishing articles, and that repeal being express and absolute from the date of the termination of the said fishing articles, under due notification given and proclaimed by the President of the United States, to wit, July 1st, 1885, the present temporary agreement in no way affects the question of statutory enactment or exemption from custom duties, as to which the abrogation of the fishing articles remains complete.

As part of this agreement, the President will bring the whole question of the fisheries before Congress at its next session in December, and recommend the appointment of a joint commission by the Governments of the United States and Great Britain to consider the matter, in the interest of maintaining good neighborhood and friendly intercourse between the two countries, thus affording a prospect of negotiation for the development and extension of trade between the United States and British North America.

Copies of the memoranda and exchanged notes on which this temporary agreement rests are appended.

Reference is also made to the President's proclamation of January 31st, 1885, terminating the fishing articles of the Treaty of Washington.

By direction of the President,

T. F. BAYARD,
Secretary of State.

[Enclosure No. 2.]

Mr. Bayard to Mr. West, April 22nd, 1885.

[Memorandum of April 22nd, 1885.

DEPARTMENT OF STATE,
Washington, April 22nd, 1885.

DEAR MR. WEST,—I have on several occasions lately, in conversation, acquainted you with my interest in the fisheries memorandum which accompanied your personal letter of March 12th.

Several informal talks I have had with Sir Ambrose Shea have enabled me to formulate the views of this Government upon the proposition made in behalf of the Dominion and the Province of Newfoundland, and I take pleasure in handing you herewith a memorandum embodying the results. If this suits, I shall be happy to confirm the arrangement by an exchange of notes at your early convenience.

I am, my dear Mr. West, very sincerely yours,

T. F. BAYARD.

[Enclosure No. 3.]

MEMORANDUM.

The legislation passed by the Congress of the United States, Act of March 1st, 1873, for the execution of the fishery articles of the Treaty of Washington, has been repealed by the joint resolution of March 3rd, 1883, the repeal to take effect July 1st, 1885. From that date the effects of the fishery articles of the Treaty of Washington absolutely terminate, so far as their execution within the jurisdiction of the United States is concerned, and without new legislation by Congress modifying or postponing that repeal the Executive is not constitutionally competent to extend the reciprocal fisheries provisions of the treaty beyond the 1st of July next, the date fixed by the action of Congress.

Mr. West's memorandum of March 12th, 1883, suggests the mutual practical convenience that would accrue from allowing the fishing ventures commenced prior to July 1st, 1845, to continue until the end of the season for fishing of that year, thus preventing their abrupt termination in the midst of fishing operations on the 1st of July.

It has been, moreover, suggested on the part of the Province of Newfoundland and of the Dominion of Canada, that in view of the mutual benefit and convenience of the present local traffic, consisting of the purchase of ice, bait, wood, and general ship supplies by the citizens of the United States engaged in fishing from the inhabitants of the British American fishing coast, the usual operations of the fishing season of 1885 should be continued by the fishing vessels belonging to citizens of the United States until the end of the season of that year, and that the local authorities of Newfoundland and the Dominion of Canada, in a spirit of amity and good neighbourhood, should abstain from molesting such fishermen or impeding their progress or their local traffic with the inhabitants incidental to fishing during the remainder of the season of 1885, and all this with the understanding that the President of the United States would bring the whole question of the fisheries before Congress at its next session in December, and recommend the appointment of a commission in which the Governments of the United States and of Great Britain should be respectively represented, which commission should be charged with the consideration and settlement, upon a just, equitable, and honourable basis, of the entire question of the fishing rights of the two Governments and their respective citizens on the coasts of the United States and British North America.

The President of the United States would be prepared to recommend the adoption of such action by Congress with the understanding that in view and in consideration of such promised recommendation there would be no enforcement of restrictive and penal laws and regulations by the authorities of the Dominion of Canada or of the Province of Newfoundland, against the fishermen of the United States resorting to British American waters between the 1st of July next and the close of the present year's fishing season; the mutual object and intent being to avoid any annoyance to the individuals engaged in this business and traffic, and the irritation or ill-feeling that might be engendered by a harsh or vexatious enforcement of stringent local regulations on the fishing coast, pending an effort to have a just and amicable arrangement of an important and somewhat delicate question between the two nations.

Public knowledge of this understanding and arrangement can be given by an exchange of notes between Mr. West and myself, which can be given to the press.

[Enclosure No. 4]

Mr. West's Memoranda of June 13th, 1885.

[Memoranda].

It is proposed to state in notes according temporary arrangements respecting fisheries that an agreement has been arrived at under circumstances affording prospect of negotiation for development and extension of trade between the United States and British North America.

The Government of Newfoundland do not make refunding of duties a condition of their acceptance of the proposed agreement, but they rely on it having due consideration before the international commission which may be appointed.

BY THE PRESIDENT OF THE UNITED STATES OF AMERICA.

A PROCLAMATION.

Whereas the treaty concluded between the United States of America and Her Majesty the Queen of Great Britain and Ireland, concluded at Washington on the 8th day of May, 1871, contains among other articles the following, viz:

"ARTICLE XVIII."

"It is agreed by the High Contracting Parties that, in addition to the liberty secured to the United States fishermen by the Convention between the United States and Great Britain signed at London on the 20th day of October, 1818, of taking, curing, and drying fish on certain coasts of the British North American Colonies therein defined, the inhabitants of the United States shall have in common with the subjects of Her Britannic Majesty, the liberty, for the term of years mentioned in Article XXXIII of this treaty, to take fish of every kind, except seal-fish, on the sea coasts and shores, and in the bays, harbours and creeks of the Provinces of Quebec, Nova Scotia and New Brunswick, and the Colony of Prince Edward's Island, and of the several islands thereunto adjacent, without being restricted to any distance from the shore, with permission to land up on the said coasts and shores and islands, and also upon the Magdalen Islands, for the purpose of drying their nets and curing their fish.
Provided that in so doing, they do not interfere with the rights of private property, or with British fishermen, in the peaceable use of any part of the said coasts in their occupancy for the same purpose.

"It is understood that the above mentioned liberty applies solely to the sea fishery, and that the salmon and shad fisheries, and all other fisheries in rivers and the mouths of rivers are hereby reserved exclusively for British fishermen."

"ARTICLE XIX."

"It is agreed by the High Contracting Parties that British subjects shall have, in common with the citizens of the United States, the liberty, for the term of years mentioned in Article XXXIII of this treaty, to take fish of every kind, except shell-fish, on the eastern sea coasts and shores of the United States north of the thirty ninth parallel of north latitude, and on the shores of the several islands thereunto adjacent, and in the bays, harbours and creeks of the said sea coasts and shores of the United States and of the said islands without being restricted to any distance from the shore, with permission to land upon the said coasts of the United States and of the islands aforesaid, for the purpose of drying their nets and curing their fish; provided that, in so doing, they do not interfere with the rights of private property, or with the fishermen of the United States in the peaceable use of any part of the said coasts in their occupancy for the same purpose.

"It is understood that the above mentioned liberty applies solely to the sea fishery, and that salmon and shad fisheries, and all other fisheries in rivers and mouths of rivers, are hereby reserved exclusively for fishermen of the United States."

"ARTICLE XX."

"It is agreed that the places designated by the Commissioners appointed under the first Article of the Treaty between the United States and Great Britain, concluded at Washington on the 5th of June, 1854, upon the coasts of Her Britannic Majesty's Dominions and the United States, as places reserved from the common right of fishing under that Treaty, shall be regarded as in like manner reserved from the common right of fishing under the preceding articles. In case any question should arise between the Governments of the United States and of Her Britannic Majesty as to the common right of fishing in places not thus designated as reserved, it is agreed that a Commission shall be appointed to designate such places, and shall be constituted in the same manner, and have the same powers, duties and authority as the Commission appointed under said first Article of the Treaty of the 5th of June, 1854."
the United States, one by Her Britannic Majesty, and a third by the President of the United States and Her Britannic Majesty conjointly; and in case the third Commissioner shall not have been so named within a period of three months from the date when this article shall take effect, then the third Commissioner shall be named by the Representative at London of His Majesty the Emperor of Austria and King of Hungary. In case of the death, absence, or incapacity of any Commissioner, or in the event of any Commissioner omitting or ceasing to act, the vacancy shall be filled in the manner hereinbefore provided for making the original appointment, the period of three months in case of such substitution being calculated from the date of the happening of the vacancy.

"The Commissioners so named shall meet in the City of Halifax, in the Province of Nova Scotia, at the earliest convenient period after they have been respectively named, and shall, before proceeding to any business, make and subscribe a solemn declaration that they will impartially and carefully examine and decide the matters referred to them to the best of their judgment, and according to justice and equity; and such declaration shall be entered on the record of their proceedings.

"Each of the High Contracting Parties shall also name one person to attend the Commission as its agent, to represent it generally in all matters connected with the Commission."

"Article XXIV."

"The proceedings shall be conducted in such order as the Commissioners appointed under Articles XXII and XIII of this Treaty shall determine. They shall be bound to receive such oral or written testimony as either Government may present. If either party shall offer oral testimony, the other party shall have the right of cross-examination, under such rules as the Commissioners shall prescribe.

"If in the case submitted to the Commissioners either party shall have specified or alluded to any report or document in his own exclusive possession, without annexing a copy, such Party shall be bound, if the other Party thinks proper to apply for it, to furnish that Party with a copy thereof; and either Party may call upon the other, through the Commissioners, to produce the originals, or certified copies of any papers added as evidence, giving in each instance such reasonable notice as the Commissioners may require."

"The case on either side shall be closed within a period of six months from the date of the organization of the Commission, and the Commissioners shall be requested to give their award as soon as possible thereafter. The aforesaid period of six months may be extended for three months in case of a vacancy occurring among the Commissioners under the circumstances contemplated in Article XXIII of this Treaty."

"Article XXV."

"The Commissioners shall keep an accurate record and correct minutes or notes of all their proceedings, with the dates thereof, and may appoint and employ a secretary and any other necessary officer or officers to assist them in the transaction of the business which may come before them.

"Each of the High Contracting Parties shall pay its own Commissioner and agent or counsel; all other expenses shall be defrayed by the two Governments in equal moieties."

"Article XXX."

"It is agreed that, for the term of years mentioned in Article XXXIII of this Treaty, subjects of Her Britannic Majesty may carry in British vessels, without payment of duty, goods, wares, or merchandise from one port or place within the territory of the United States upon the St. Lawrence, the Great Lakes, and the rivers connecting the same, to another port or place within the territory of the United States as aforesaid: Provided, that a portion of such transportation is made through the Dominion of Canada by land carriage and in bond, under such rules and regulations as may be agreed upon between the Government of Her Britannic Majesty and the Government of the United States.

"Citizens of the United States may for the like period carry in United States vessels, without payment of duty, goods, wares, or merchandise from one port or place within the Possessions of Her Britannic Majesty in North America to another port or place within the said Possessions: Provided, That a portion of such transportation is made through the territory of the United States by land carriage and in bond, under such rules and regulations as may be agreed upon between the Government of the United States and the Government of Her Britannic Majesty.

"The Government of the United States further engages not to impose any export duties on goods, wares, or merchandise carried under this article through the territory of the United States; and Her Majesty's Government engages to urge the Parliament of the Dominion of Canada and the Legislatures of the other colonies not to impose any export duties on goods, wares, or merchandise carried under this article; and the Government of the United States may, in case such export duties are imposed by the Dominion of Canada, suspend, during the period that such duties are imposed, the right of carrying granted under this article in favour of the subjects of Her Britannic Majesty.

"The Government of the United States may suspend the right of carrying granted in favor of the subjects of Her Britannic Majesty under this article, in case the Dominion of Canada should at any time deprive the citizens of the United States of the use of the canals in the said Dominion on terms of equality with the inhabitants of the Dominion, as provided in Article XXVII."

"Article XXXII."

"It is further agreed that the provisions and stipulations of Articles XVIII to XXV of this Treaty, inclusive, shall extend to the Colony of Newfoundland, so far as they are applicable. But if the Imperial Parliament, the Legislature of Newfoundland, or the Congress of the United States, shall not embrace the Colony of Newfoundland in their laws enacted for carrying the foregoing articles into effect, then this article shall be of no effect; but the omission to make provision by law to give it effect by either of the Legislative bodies aforesaid, shall not in any way impair any other articles of the Treaty."

And, whereas, pursuant to the provisions of Articles XXII of said Treaty, due notice has been given to the Government of Her Britannic Majesty of the intention of the Government of the United States to terminate the above recited Articles of the Treaty in question, on the 1st day of July, 1885:

And, whereas, pursuant to the terms of said Treaty, and of the notice given thereunder by the Government of the United States of America to that of Her Britannic Majesty, the above recited articles of the Treaty of Washington, concluded May 8th, 1871, will expire and terminate on the 1st day of July, 1885:

Now, therefore, I, Chester A. Arthur, President of the United States of America, do hereby give public notice that Articles XVIII, XIX, XX, XXI, XXII, XXIII, XXIV, XXV, XXX, and XXXII, of the Treaty of Washington, concluded May 8th, 1871, will expire and terminate on the 1st day of July, 1885, and all citizens of the United States are hereby warned that none of the privileges secured by the above recited articles of the Treaty in question will exist after the 1st day of July next; all American fishermen should govern themselves accordingly.

Done at the City of Washington, this 31st day of January, in the year of Our Lord one thousand eight hundred and eighty-five, and of the Independence of the United States of America the one hundred and ninth.

Report of a Committee of the Honourable the Privy Council, approved by His Excellency the Governor-General in Council on the 14th August, 1885.

The Committee of the Privy Council have had under consideration a despatch dated 21st July, 1885, from the Right Honourable the Secretary of State for the Colonies, expressing the hope that the terms of the arrangement made between the British Ambassador at Washington and Mr. Bayard on the subject of the fisheries would be satisfactory to the Canadian Government.

The Committee desire to state to Your Excellency that such arrangement is perfectly satisfactory, and that they further beg to express their high appreciation of the able manner in which Her Majesty's Minister at Washington, Sir Sackville West, conducted the negotiations.

The Committee advise that Your Excellency be moved to transmit a copy of this Minute to the Right Honourable the Secretary of State for the Colonies and to the British Ambassador at Washington.

All which is respectfully submitted for Your Excellency's approval.

[Enclosure No. 1.]

CERTIFIED COPY of a Report of a Committee of the Privy Council for Canada, approved by His Excellency the Governor General in Council on the 3rd September, 1885.

The Committee of the Privy Council have had under consideration a despatch dated 21st August, 1885, from the Right Hon. the Secretary of State for the Colonies advising that Her Majesty's Government deemed it desirable that steps should be taken by the Canadian Government in concert with the Government of Newfoundland to decide definitely on the exact nature of the proposals to be made to the Government of the United States in anticipation of the negotiations which are contemplated in view of the termination of the temporary arrangement lately made between Her Majesty's Minister at Washington and the United States Government, arising out of the termination of the Fishery Articles of the Treaty of Washington on the 1st July last.

The Right Hon. the President of the Council, to whom the despatch was referred, recommends that communication should be had both by cable and letter inviting the Government of Newfoundland either to send a representative to Ottawa to discuss the whole question, or, if that be inconvenient, to communicate the views of the Island Government.
The Committee concur in the recommendation of the President of the Council and they advise that Your Excellency be moved to transmit a copy of this Minute, if approved, to His Excellency the Governor of Newfoundland and also to the Right Hon. the Secretary of State for the Colonies, so as to inform him of the action taken by the Canadian Government on his despatch of the 11th August ult.

All of which is respectfully submitted for Your Excellency's approval.

The Administrator of Newfoundland to Governor General.

NEWFOUNDLAND, 21st September, 1885.

My Lord,—I have the honour to acknowledge the receipt of Your Lordship's despatch of the 4th instant, addressed to Sir John Glover, with a copy of your telegraphic message of the same date, also a copy of an approved report of a Committee of the Privy Council, on which the telegram was based, having reference to proposals to be made to the Government of the United States in anticipation of the negotiations contemplated in view of the expiration of the temporary arrangement lately made between Her Majesty's Minister at Washington and the United States Government, arising out of the articles of the Treaty of Washington, terminated on the 1st of July last, and suggesting that a delegate should proceed from this country to confer with the Government of the Dominion, or that the views of the Newfoundland Government be communicated respecting a new Fisheries arrangement between the United States, Canada and Newfoundland.
The Council request me to communicate to Your Lordship that the number of their body being now only four members, and a general election being appointed to take place on the 31st of October next, they do not feel themselves present in a position to send a delegate to Canada or to offer any definite expression of the views of the Colony on the important subject in question, and at their suggestion I have respectfully to request that any further proceeding on the part of this Government be deferred until the result of the approaching election shall have been ascertained.

The Council would be glad in the meantime to be favoured with the views of the Dominion Government in relation to this subject.

THE DEPUTY GOVERNOR,

[Enclosure No. 1.]

Boston, September, 1885.

Dear Sir,—The Boston Fish Bureau, an organization composed of the principal wholesale dealers and commission merchants in fish of this city, has passed the following resolution—

Resolved, That the Boston Fish Bureau earnestly favors such an arrangement between the United States, the Dominion of Canada, and the Province of Newfoundland as shall include the reciprocal admission, free of duties, of the products of the fisheries of these countries.

We desire to present the reasons for this resolution, and to appeal to the dealers in and consumers of fish throughout the country, to aid us in impressing upon Congress the importance of free admission of fish from the British Provinces. It is well known that the New England Fisheries do not produce certain varieties of fish which the trade requires, and of certain other kinds the supply obtained on our coast is entirely inadequate to our needs. We are obliged to rely entirely upon the Provinces for our stock of fish herring and for the larger part of the cheaper grades of herring, both pickled and smoked, of sole, salmon, trout and shad. We need the hard dried codfish of Newfoundland and the choice shock-salted codfish and pollock of Nova Scotia. For several years past the mackerel caught in American waters have been mostly of small size, and we have needed the larger fish caught in Canadian waters. During the past two winters we could not have filled orders for large fat mackerel except for the supply obtained from Nova Scotia and Prince Edward Island. Present indications point to a repetition of this condition during the coming winter. Whatever need we from Canada must be obtained at the additional expense of the duties, which the consumer must pay. The duties, being specific, bear very heavily on the cheaper grades of fish, amounting in many cases to from fifty to one hundred per cent. on the original cost, and resulting in a prohibition of imports or a very largely enhanced cost to the consumer.

The people who will gain anything by the exaction of duties are a few hundred vessel owners in New England. The pretense that protective duties on fish is an encouragement to American fishermen, and the argument that the fisheries furnish a training school for our navy, were long since exploded by the fact that a very large proportion of the men who fish in American vessels are citizens of the British Provinces. Hordes of them come here every spring, man our vessels for the fishing season, and return home when it is over. It is estimated that from fifty to seventy-five per cent. of the men in the Gloucester mackerel fleet are citizens of the Dominion of Canada, and the same is true to a greater or less extent of other fishing ports. It is acknowledged that without them we would be unable to man our fleet. These men have no interest in our country and its institutions, and in the event of war with England would be found in the enemy's fleet. Is it fair that we should be taxed for their support, or that a few owners of fishing vessels should reap an advantage obtained at the expense of the great body of consumers of fish in all parts of the country?

As dealers in fish, handling large quantities of the products of the sea, we feel that our interests are identical with yours in demanding that there should be no duties on articles of food which are consumed so largely by people of moderate means. Questions of a larger nature, involving matters of international importance, make it probable that the subject of reciprocity with Canada will come before Congress at its next session. We ask of you that you will use your best efforts to impress upon your Senators and Representatives that they should vote upon this question in accordance with your interests and with the interests of a large majority of the people of the country.

Respectfully yours,

Report of a Committee of the Honourable the Privy Council, approved by His Excellency the Governor General in Council on the 11th November, 1885.

The Committee of the Privy Council have had under consideration a despatch dated 21st September, 1885, from the Administrator of the Government of Newfoundland on the subject of that Colony sending a delegate to confer with the Government of the Dominion respecting a new fisheries arrangement between the United States, Canada and Newfoundland, and setting forth that in view of the number of the Executive Council of Newfoundland being reduced to four members and the early approach of a general election, that Government did not feel itself in a position to send a delegate to Canada or to offer any definite expression of the views of the Colony on the important subject in question, and requesting that any further proceedings on the part of the Dominion Government be deferred until the result of the approaching election be determined, and intimating its desire to be favoured with the views of the Dominion Government.

The Minister of Marine and Fisheries, to whom the despatch was referred, recommends that in view of the important question to be considered, and the wide range any discussion with reference thereto may take, the Government of Newfoundland be informed that the Dominion Government is of the opinion that the views of the respective Governments can be much more satisfactorily exchanged by the Government of Newfoundland sending a delegation to Ottawa for that purpose than by correspondence, and to express the hope that it may be convenient for that Government to send such delegation at an early day to confer with Your Excellency's Government on the subject to which the despatch under consideration refers.

The Committee concur in the recommendation of the Minister of Marine and Fisheries and they advise that Your Excellency be moved to transmit a copy of this Minute, if approved, to the Administrator of the Government of Newfoundland.

All which is respectfully submitted for Your Excellency's approval.

49TH CONGRESS, 1ST SESSION, H. RES. 40.

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES.

January 5, 1886.

Read twice, referred to the Committee on Foreign Affairs, and ordered to be printed.

Mr. MAYSUR introduced the following joint resolution:

JOINT RESOLUTION

For renewal of commercial relations with the British Possessions in North America.

Whereas the reciprocity treaty with Great Britain regulating commerce and navigation between the United States and the British Colonies of North America was terminated on March the seventeenth, anno Domini eighteen hundred and sixty-six, in virtue of previous notice given by the United States; and

Whereas the provisions of said treaty providing for mutual rights in certain sea-fisheries, and for the free navigation of the Great Lakes, the River Saint Lawrence, and the canals connected therewith, were restored in eighteen hundred and seventy-one, by the treaty of Washington, so called; and

Whereas the circumstances under which the notice of the abrogation of said treaty of reciprocity was made have been changed and modified by time, and unfettered trade and commerce between the British Possessions in North America and the United States would now be reciprocally beneficial, advantageous and satisfactory: Therefore, Resolved by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America to Congress assembled, That this Congress would look with favour and approval upon any action taken by the executive department of the Government tending to a renewal of commercial relations with the British Possessions in North America by compact or treaty, having in view the reciprocal interests of both nations.

OTTAWA, 3rd March, 1886.

My Lord,—With reference to my despatch of the 18th ultimo in which I pointed out that effectual measures would be taken by my Government to protect Canadian
I have the honour to report to Your Excellency that at an interview which I had this day with the Secretary of State, I placed in his hands a memorandum, copy of which is enclosed, embodying the view taken by Your Excellency’s Government as expressed to me of the actual position of the Dominion Government under the Treaty of 1818 with regard to the exclusive right of fishery in Canadian waters I called Mr. Bayard’s attention to the fact, as stated in the memorandum, that the British North American Act, which came into operation in 1867, and in which the legislative authority of the Federal and Provincial Legislatures is defined, gives to the Parliament of the Dominion exclusive legislative authority over sea coast and inland fisheries, and also to the power taken under the Act 31 Vic., chap. 61, to grant to foreign vessels license to fish for, take, dry or cure fish of any kind within the three-mile limit in British waters; suggesting to him at the same time that all danger of “friction” might perhaps be avoided if it was clearly understood that no American vessel would be allowed to fish in Canadian waters within the three mile limit without a license as provided for under this Act. At Mr. Bayard’s request I sent him the volumes of the State Papers containing the Act in question as well as the amending Acts of 1870 and 1871.

Memorandum.

The exclusive right of fishing in the territorial waters of the British possessions in North America now reverts as it did on the termination of the Treaty of 1854 to the British Crown. The consequences which were then to be anticipated from the denunciation of that Treaty must now arise from the abrogation of the Fishery clauses of the Treaty of 1871. Her Majesty’s Government have, however, the satisfaction of feeling that they have done their utmost to prevent these consequences.
They have declared their readiness to meet the suggestion made by the President in his message to Congress for the appointment of a Fishery Commission, and even to enter into new engagements by which the privileges hitherto enjoyed by American citizens might still be secured to them, but Congress has declined their overtures and the Dominion Government is therefore bound to take effective measures for the protection of the fishery interests within the territorial waters of Canada.

The British North American Act came into operation in 1867 and gives to the Parliament of the Dominion exclusive legislative authority over the sea coast and inland fisheries, and accordingly an Act was passed by the Dominion Government in 1868 which deals with foreign vessels fishing in the waters of the Dominion and upon the provisions of which the Dominion Government will now act in regard to them.

No. 29.

Minister at Washington, to Governor General.

WASHINGTON, 20th March, 1886.

My Lord,—I have the honour to inform Your Excellency that I received on the 18th instant, a telegram from the Earl of Rosebery, instructing me to ascertain whether it is intended to issue a notice that American fishermen are now precluded from fishing in British North American territorial waters, in view of the issue of a similar notice with regard to British fishermen in American waters on the part of Her Majesty's Government.

After having spoken to Mr. Bayard on the subject, I addressed a note to him at his request, copy of which is enclosed, in the sense of Lord Rosebery's telegram, to which he promised me a speedy answer.

In the meanwhile a notice, which I enclose, has appeared in a Washington evening paper, stating that the Department of Fisheries has already issued such notice.

From Minister at Washington to Mr. Bayard.

WASHINGTON, 19th March, 1886.

Sir,—I have the honour to inform you that the Earl of Rosebery has requested me to ascertain whether it is intended to give notice to the United States' fishermen that they are precluded from fishing in British North American territorial waters, as Her Majesty's Government are considering the expediency of issuing a reciprocal notice with regard to British fishermen in American waters.

"A CANADIAN STEAMER'S SECRET MISSION."

St. John, N.B., 20th March.

"Captain Scott, commander of the Government steamer 'Lansdowne,' received sailing orders yesterday and will sail from here this morning. The destination of the steamer and the plan of action are carefully concealed. She has a month's supplies and full armament. By direction of the Department of Fisheries, Captain Scott has issued a warning to American fishermen to observe the provisions of the Treaty of 1818."

From Minister at Washington to Governor General.

WASHINGTON, 24th March, 1886.

My Lord,—With reference to my despatch No. 23 of the 20th instant I have the honour to enclose to Your Lordship, herewith, the copy of a note which I have received from the Secretary of State informing me that as full and formal public notification in the premises has already been given by the president’s Proclamation the 31st of January, 1885, it is not deemed necessary to repeat it.

I have, &c.,

His Excellency

THE GOVERNOR GENERAL.

[Enclosure No. 1]

From Mr. Bayard to Sir Lionel Sackville West.

DEPARTMENT OF STATE,
WASHINGTON, 28th March, 1886.

Sir,—I have the honour to acknowledge the receipt of your note of the 19th instant, whereby you inform me that you have been requested by the Earl of Rosebery to ascertain "whether it is intended to give notice to the United States’ fishermen that they are now precluded from fishing in British North American territorial waters," and to inform you in reply that as full and formal public notification in the premises has already been given by the President’s proclamation of 31st January, 1885, it is not deemed necessary no repeat.

The temporary arrangement made between us on the 22nd of June, 1885, whereby certain fishing operations on the respective coasts were not to be interfered with during the fishing season of 1885, notwithstanding the abrogation of the Fishery Articles of the Treaty of Washington, came to an end under its own expressed limitations on the 31st of December. Yet, and the fisheries question is now understood to rest on existing treaties precisely as though no fishery articles had been incorporated in the Treaty of Washington.

In view of the enduring nature and important extent of the right secured to American fishermen in British North American territorial waters under the provisions of the Treaty of 1818, to take fish within the three-mile limit on certain defined parts of the British North American coasts and to dry and cure fish there under certain conditions, this Government has not found it necessary to give to United States’ fishermen any notification that “they are now precluded from fishing in British North American territorial waters.”

OTTAWA, 25th March, 1886.

My Lord,—I have the honour to forward for your information a copy of the instructions which have been issued by my Minister of Marine and Fisheries for the guidance of fishery officers and ex officio magistrates in command of the vessels which will be employed for the protection of the inshore fisheries of the Dominion.

These instructions are substantially the same as those which were issued under similar circumstances in 1870.

Your Lordship will observe that while the officers in command of the fisheries police vessels are required to take the necessary steps for strictly upholding the Treaty rights of the Dominion they are specially enjoined to carry out their instructions in a conciliatory spirit and with forbearance and discrimination.

I also enclose a copy of a warning notice which was published in reference to the same subject by the Department of Fisheries.

In all other parts the exclusion of foreign vessels and boats is absolute, so far as fishing is concerned, and is to be enforced within the limits laid down by the Convention of 1818, they being allowed to enter bays and harbours for four purposes only, viz.:—for shelter, the repairing of damages, the purchasing of wood, and to obtain water.

You are to compel, if necessary, the maintenance of peace and good order by foreign fishermen pursuing their calling and enjoying concurrent privileges of fishing or curing fish with British fishermen, in those parts to which they are admitted by the Treaty of 1818.

You are to see that they obey the laws of the country, that they do not molest British fishermen in the pursuit of their calling and that they observe the regulations of the fishery laws in every respect.

You are to prevent foreign fishing vessels and boats which enter bays and harbours for the four legal purposes above mentioned, from taking advantage thereof, to take, dry, or cure fish therein, to purchase bait, ice, or supplies, or to transship cargoes, or from transacting any business in connection with their fishing operations.

It is not desired that you should put a narrow construction on the term “unsettled.” Places containing a few isolated houses might not, in some instances, be susceptible of being considered as “settled” within the meaning and purpose of the Convention. Something would, however, depend upon the facts of the situation and circumstances of the settlement. Private and proprietary rights form an element in the consideration of this point. The generally consolidating spirit in which it is desirable that you should carry out these instructions, and the wish of Her Majesty’s Government that the rights of exclusion should not be strained, must influence you in making as fair and liberal an application of the term as shall consist with the just claims of all parties.

Should interference with the pursuits of British fishermen or the property of Canadians appear to be inseparable from the exercise of such indulgence, you will withhold it and insist upon entire exclusion.

United States fishermen should be made aware that, in addition to being obliged, in common with those subjects of Her Majesty with whom they exercise concurrent privileges of fishing in Colonial waters, to obey the laws of the country, and particularly such Acts and Regulations as exist to ensure the peaceable and profitable enjoyment of the fisheries by all persons entitled thereto, they are peculiarly bound to preserve peace and order in the quasi settled places to which, by the liberal disposition of Canadian authorities, they may be admitted.

Wherever foreigners may fish in Canadian waters, you will compel them to observe the Fishery Laws. Particular attention should be directed to the injury which results from cleaning fish on board their vessels while afloat, and the throwing overboard of offals, thus fouling the fishing, feeding and breeding grounds. “The Fisheries Act” (Section 14) provides a heavy penalty for this offence.

Take occasion to enquire into and report upon any modes of fishing, or any practices adopted by foreign fishermen, which appear to be injurious to the fisheries.

GENERAL DIRECTIONS.

You will accost every foreign fishing vessel within the limits described, and if that vessel should be either fishing, preparing to fish, or should obviously have been fishing within the prohibited limits, you will, by virtue of the authority conferred upon you by your Commission, and under the provisions of the Acts above recited, seize at once (resort to force in doing so being only justifiable after every other effort has failed) any vessel detected in violating the law and send her or take her into port for condemnation.

Copies of the Acts of Parliament subjecting to seizure and forfeiture any foreign ship, vessel or boat which should be either fishing, preparing to fish or should obviously have been fishing within the prohibited limits, and prohibiting for carrying out the seizure and forfeiture are furnished herewith for your information and distribution.

Should you have the occasion to compel any foreign fishing vessels or fishermen to conform to the requirements of the “Fisheries Act and Regulations,” as regards the modes and incidents of fishing, at those places to which they are admitted under the Convention of 1818, in particular in relation to ballistic, fish offals, setting of nets, hauling of seine, and use of “trawls” or “huletows,” more especially at and around the Magdalen Island, your power and authority under such cases will be similar to that of any other fishery officer appointed to enforce the fishery laws in Canadian waters (Vide Fisheries Act).

If a foreign ship, vessel or boat be found violating the Convention or resisting consequent seizure, and momentarily effects her escape from the vicinity of her capture or elsewhere, she remains always liable to seizure and detention if met by yourself in Canadian waters, and in British waters wherever if brought to account by Her Majesty’s cruisers. But great care must be taken to make certain of the indentify of any offending vessel to be so dealt with.
All vessels seized must be placed, as soon as possible, in the custody of the nearest Customs Collector, and information, with a statement of the facts, and the depositions of your sailing master, clerk, lieutenant, or mate, and of two of the most reliable of your crew, be dispatched with all possible diligence to the Government. Be careful to describe the circumstances under which the vessel was taken, and the ship, vessels, or boat was seized. Also corroborate the bearings taken, by soundings, and by locating the place (if possible) with a view to actual measurement, and make such incidental reference to conspicuous points and land marks as shall place beyond doubt the illegal position of the seized ship, vessel or boat.

Omit no precaution to establish on the spot that the trespass was or is being committed within three miles of land.

As it is possible that foreign fishing craft may be driven into Canadian waters by violent or contrary winds, by strong tides, through mistakes, or some other cause, or independent of the will of the master and crew, you will consider these circumstances, and satisfy yourself with regard thereto before taking the extreme step of seizing or detaining any vessel.

On capture, it will be desirable to take part of the foreign crew aboard the vessel under your command, and place some of your own crew, as a measure of precaution, on board the seized vessel; first lowering the foreign flag borne at the time of capture. If your ordinary complement of men does not admit of this being done, or if because of several seizures the number of your hands might be too much reduced, you will in such emergency endear them to engage a few trustworthy men. The portion of foreign crew taken on board the Government vessel you will land at the nearest place where a Consul of the United States is situated, or where the readiest conveyance to any American Consulate in Canada may be reached, and leave them there.

When any of Her Majesty's vessels about the fishing stations or in port are met with, you should, if circumstances permit, go on board and confer with the Naval Commander, and receive any suggestions he may feel disposed to give, which do not conflict with these instructions, and afford him any information you may possess about the movements of foreign craft; also inform him what vessels you have accosted and where.

Do not fail to make a full entry of all circumstances connected with foreign fishing vessels, noting their names, tonnage, ownership, crew, port, place of fishing, cargo, voyage, and destination, and (if ascertainable) their catch. Report your proceedings as often as possible, and keep the Department fully advised on every opportunity, where instructions would most probably reach you at stated intervals.

Directions should, if practicable and for any practices considered inconvenient is caused by Canadian fishing vessels neglecting to show their colours. You will draw the attention of masters to this fact, and request them to hoist their colours without requiring to be hailed and boarded.

It cannot be too strongly urged upon you, nor can you too earnestly impress upon the officers and crew under your command, that the service in which you and they are engaged should be performed with discretion and discrimination.

The Government relies on your prudence, discretion and firmness in the performance of the special duties entrusted to you.

I am, Sir,
Your obedient servant,
(Sd.) GEORGE E. FOSTER,
Minister of Marine and Fisheries.

WARNING.—TO ALL WHOM IT MAY CONCERN.

The Government of the United States having by notice terminated Articles 18 to 25, both inclusive, and Article 30, known as the Fishery Articles of the Washington Treaty, attention is called to the following provision of the Convention between the United States and Great Britain, signed at London, on the 29th October, 1818:—

Article 1st. "Whereas differences have arisen respecting the liberty claimed by the United States, for the inhabitants thereof, to take, dry and cure fish, on certain coasts, bays, harbours and creeks of His Britannic Majesty's Dominions in America, it is agreed between the high contracting parties, that the inhabitants of the said United States shall have, forever, in common with the subjects of His Britannic Majesty, the liberty to take fish of every kind on that part of the southern coast of Newfoundland which extends from Cape Ray to the Rameau.
Islands, on the western and northern coast of Newfoundland, from the said Cape Ray to the Quirpon Islands, on the shores of the Magdalen Islands, and also on the coast, bays, harbours, and creeks, from Mount Joly, on the southern coast of Labrador, to and through the Strait of Belle Isle, and thence northwardly indefinitely along the coast, without prejudice, however, to any of the exclusive rights of the Hudson's Bay Company; and that the American fishermen shall also have liberty, forever, to dry and cure fish in any of the unsettled bays, harbours, and creeks of the southern part of the coast of Newfoundland hereabove described, and off the coast of Labrador; but so soon as the same, or any portion thereof, shall be settled, it shall not be lawful for the said fishermen to dry or cure fish at such portion as settled, without previous agreement for such purpose, with the inhabitants, proprietors, or possessors of the ground."

"And the United States hereby renounce forever any liberty heretofore enjoyed or claimed by the inhabitants thereof to take, dry or cure fish, on or within three marine miles of any of the coasts, bays, creeks or harbours of His Britannic Majesty's Dominions in America, not included within the above mentioned limits; provided, however, that the American fishermen shall be admitted to enter such bays or harbours for the purpose of shelter or repairing damages therein, of purchasing wood and of obtaining water, and for no other purpose whatever. But they shall be under such restrictions as may be necessary to prevent their taking, drying or curing fish therein, or for any manner whatever abusing the privilege hereby reserved to them."

Attention is also called to the following provisions of the Act of the Parliament of Canada, Cap. 61, of the Acts of 1868, intituled: "An Act respecting fishing by foreign vessels."

2d. "Any commissioned officer of Her Majesty's Navy, serving on board of any vessel of Her Majesty's Navy, cruising and being in the waters of Canada for purpose of affording protection to Her Majesty's subjects engaged in the fisheries, or any commissioned officer of Her Majesty's Navy, Fishery Office, or Subsidiary Magistrate on board of any vessel belonging to or in the service of the Government of Canada and employed in the service of protection of Her Majesty's fisheries or those of the Customs of Canada, Sheriff, Magistrate or other officer duly commissioned for that purpose, may go on board of any ship, vessel or boat, within any harbour in Canada, or hovering (in British waters) within three marine miles of any of the coasts, bays, creeks or harbours in Canada, and stay on board so long as she may remain within such place or distance."

3rd. "If such ship, vessel or boat be bound elsewhere, and shall continue within such harbour, or so hovering for twenty-four hours after the Master shall have been required to depart, any one of such officers or persons as are above mentioned may bring such ship, vessel or boat into port and search her cargo, and may also examine the Master upon oath touching the cargo and voyage; and if the Master or person in command shall not truthfully answer the questions put to him in such examination, he shall forfeit four hundred dollars, and if such ship, vessel or boat be foreign, or not navigated according to the laws of the United Kingdom or of Canada, and have been found fishing, or preparing to fish, or to have been fishing (in British waters) within three marine miles of any of the coasts, bays, creeks or harbours of Canada, not included within the above mentioned limits, without a license, or after the expiration of the period named in the last license granted to such vessel, such ship, vessel or boat, under the first section of this Act, such ship, vessel or boat, and the tackle, rigging, apparel, furniture, stores and cargo thereof shall be forfeited."

4th. "All goods, ships, vessels and boats, and the tackle, rigging, apparel, furniture, stores and cargo liable to forfeiture under this Act, may be seized and secured by any officers or persons mentioned in the second section of this Act; and every person opposing any officer or person in the execution of his duty under this Act, or aiding or abetting any other person in any opposition, shall forfeit eight hundred dollars, and shall be guilty of misdemeanour, and upon conviction be liable to imprisonment for a term not exceeding ten years."

Therefore be it known, that by virtue of the Treaty Provisions and Act of Parliament above recited, all foreign vessels, or boats, are forbidden from fishing or taking fish by any means whatever within three marine miles of any of the coasts, bays, creeks and harbours of Canada, or to enter such bays, harbours and creeks, except for the purpose of shelter and repairing damages therein, of purchasing wood, and of obtaining water, and for no other purpose whatever; of all of which you will take notice and govern yourselves accordingly.

Minister of Marine and Fisheries.

DEPARTMENT OF FISHERIES,
OTTAWA, 5th March, 1886.
Circular No. 371.

CUSTOMS DEPARTMENT, Ottawa, 7th May, 1886.

Sir,—The Government of the United States having by notice terminated Articles 18 to 25, both inclusive, and Article 30, known as the Fishery Articles of the Washington Treaty, attention is called to the following provision of the Convention between the United States and Great Britain, signed at London, on the 20th October, 1814:—

Article 1st. "Whereas differences have arisen respecting the liberty claimed by the United States, for the inhabitants thereof, to take, dry and cure fish, on certain coasts, bays, harbours and creeks, of His Britannic Majesty's Dominions, in America, it is agreed between the high contracting Parties, that the inhabitants of the said United States shall have, forever, in common with the subjects of His Britannic Majesty, the liberty to take fish of every kind on that part of the Southern coast of Newfoundland which extends from Cape Ray to the Rameau Island, on the western and northern coast of Newfoundland, from the said Cape Ray to the Quirpon Islands, on the shores of the Magdalen Islands, and also on the coasts, bays, harbours and creeks, from Mount Joly, on the southern coast of Labrador, to and through the Straits of Belle Isle, and thence northwardly indefinitely along the coast, without prejudice, however, to any of the exclusive rights of the Hudson's Bay Company; and that the American fishermen shall also have liberty, forever, to dry and cure fish in any of the unsettled bays, harbours and creeks of the southern part of the coast of Newfoundland here above described, and of the coast of Labrador; but so soon as the same, or any portion thereof, shall be settled, it shall not be lawful for the said fishermen to dry or cure fish at such portion so settled, without previous agreement for such purpose, with the inhabitants, proprietors, or possessors of the ground."

And the United States hereby renounce forever any liberty heretofore enjoyed or claimed by the inhabitants thereof, to take, dry or cure fish, on or within three marine miles, of any of the coasts, bays, creeks or harbours of His Britannic Majesty's dominions in America, not included within the above-mentioned limits; provided, however, that the American fishermen shall be admitted to enter such bays or harbours, for the purpose of shelter and of repairing damages therein, of purchasing wood, and of obtaining water, and for no other purpose whatever. But they shall be under such restrictions as may be necessary to prevent their taking, drying or curing fish therein, or in any manner whatever abusing the privileges hereby reserved to them."

Attention is also called to the following provisions of the Act of the Parliament of Canada, Cap. 61, of the Acts of 1868, intituled: "An Act respecting fishing by foreign vessels."

2nd. "Any commission officer of Her Majesty's Navy, serving on board of any vessel of Her Majesty's Navy, cruising and being in the waters of Canada for the purpose of affording protection to Her Majesty's subjects engaged in the fisheries, or any commissioned officer of Her Majesty's Navy, Fishery Officer, or Stipendiary Magistrate, of the Government of Canada, employed in the service of protecting the fisheries or any officer of the Customs of Canada, Sheriff, Magistrate or other person duly commissioned for that purpose, may go on board of any ship, vessel or boat, within any harbour in Canada, or hovering (in British waters) within three marine miles of any of the coasts, bays, creeks or harbours of Canada, and stay on board so long as she may remain within such place or distance."

3rd. "If such ship, vessel or boat be bound elsewhere, and shall continue within such harbour, or so hovering for twenty-four hours after the last act of departure, any one of such officers or persons as are above described may bring such ship, vessel or boat into port, and search her cargo, and also examine the master and crew relating to the voyage, and if the master or person in command shall not truly answer the questions put to him in such examination, he shall forfeit four hundred dollars; and if such ship, vessel or boat be foreign, or not navigated according to the laws of the United Kingdom or of Canada, and have been found fishing, or preparing to fish, or have been fishing (in British waters) within three marine miles of any of the coasts, bays, creeks or harbours of Canada, not included within the above-mentioned limits, without a license, or after the expiration of the period named in the last license granted to such ship, vessel or boat under the first section of this Act, such ship, vessel, boat, and the tackle, rigging, apparel, furniture, stores and cargo thereof shall be forfeited."

4th. "All goods, ships, vessels and boats, and the tackle, rigging, apparel, furniture, stores and cargo liable to forfeiture under this Act, may be seized and secured by any officers or persons mentioned in the second section of this Act; and every person opposing any officer or person in the execution of his duty under this Act, or aiding or abetting any other person, in any opposition, shall forfeit eight hundred dollars, and shall be guilty of a misdemeanour, and upon conviction be liable to imprisonment for a term not exceeding two years."
Having reference to the above, you are requested to furnish any foreign fishing vessels, boats or fishermen found within three marine miles of the shore, within your district, for other purposes than those of shelter and of repairing damages, of purchasing wood and of obtaining water, with a printed copy of the warning enclosed herewith. If such vessel or boat is found fishing, preparing to fish, or violating the provisions of the Convention of 1818, by shipping men or supplies or trading, or if hovering within the three-mile limit, does not depart within twenty-four hours after receiving such warning, you will place an officer on board of such vessel, and at once telegraph the facts to the Fisheries Department at Ottawa, and await instructions.

Commissioner of Customs.

CUSTOMS DEPARTMENT, OTTAWA, July 12th, 1886.

Sir,—In order to avoid any misinterpretation of the concluding paragraph of my circular No. 371, dated 7th May last, you will substitute the following therefor:

If any fishing vessel or boat of the United States is found fishing, or to have been fishing or to be preparing to fish, within three marine miles of the shore within your district, you will place an officer in charge thereof, and at once telegraph the facts to the Fisheries Department at Ottawa and await instructions.

To any foreign fishing vessels, boats or fishermen who may come within three marine miles of the shore of your district (but not fishing, preparing to fish, or having fished within such limit) you are requested to furnish a copy of the “Warning,” and if such vessel or boat shall not depart, within twenty-four hours after receiving such “Warning,” even though such vessel or boat is not engaged in fishing, preparing to fish, or having fished within the three-mile limit, you will place an officer in charge thereof, and at once telegraph the facts as before mentioned; or if it be ascertained, subsequently to serving the “Warning,” that any vessel or boat served therewith, has been fishing or preparing to fish before or after such service, you are not to allow the twenty-four hours to expire, but put an officer on board and act as directed.

Commissioner of Customs.

No. 34.

Governor General to Minister at Washington.

OTTAWA, 25th March, 1886.

Sir,—I have the honour to acknowledge the receipt of your despatch No. 23 of the 20th March, relating to the issuing of notices to American and Canadian fishermen as to their exclusion from fishing in the territorial waters now closed to them by the expiration of the Fishery Articles of the Treaty of Washington.

The warning of which reference is made in the newspaper extract enclosed is that despatch is no doubt of which I now forward a copy herewith for your information.

It will be within your knowledge that in 1870, a circular dated May 16, of that year, calling the attention of American fishermen to the restrictions imposed by Article I of the Convention of 1818, and to the Canadian Statutes affecting the inshore fisheries of the Dominion, was issued by the United States Government, and I am glad to learn from your despatch that the Secretary of State has now under his consideration the propriety of issuing a similar notice.

I take this opportunity of acquainting you that the Fisheries Department has issued instructions, of which a copy is also enclosed for the guidance of its officers employed in the protection of the inshore fisheries of the country.
You will observe that these officers, while directed to take all necessary steps for maintaining the Treaty rights of the Dominion are specially instructed to perform the duties entrusted to them with forbearance and discrimination.

I have, &c.

Sir Lionel S. Sackville West, K.C.M.G.

(Sd.) Lansdowne.

No. 35.

Governor General to Minister at Washington.

[No. 29.]

Sir,—I had the honour of receiving from you a despatch No. 20, dated 19th March, 1886, enclosing copy of a memo, handed you by the Secretary of State, and describing the position of my Government under the Treaty of 1818, in regard to the inshore fisheries of the Dominion, and I have the honour, on the 24th instant, of acknowledging receipt of that despatch and of informing you that the memorandum was in accordance with the views of my Government.

I understand from your despatch above referred to that after calling Mr. Bayard's attention to the Canadian statutes affecting this question, and more especially to the Act 31 Vic., cap. 61, under which the Governor is empowered to grant licenses to foreign vessels for a period not exceeding one year to fish within three marine miles of the coasts, bays, creeks or harbours of Canada not included in the limits specified in Article I of the Convention of 1818, you suggested to Mr. Bayard that all danger of friction might perhaps be avoided if it was clearly understood the American vessel would be allowed to fish in Canadian waters within the three-mile limit without a license.

A statement to the above effect might possibly be interpreted as a suggestion on the part of Her Majesty's Government that the system of granting licenses which obtained between the expiration of the Reciprocity Treaty of 1854 and the beginning of the year 1870 should be again resorted to, and I therefore take this opportunity of making you aware that in the opinion of my Government it would not be desirable that any such suggestion should be made.

It will be within your knowledge that while these licenses were taken out by a considerable number of American fishermen in the first two years during which the system of issuing licenses was in existence the practice of applying for them was almost entirely discontinued by American fishermen, although it was notorious that large numbers of their vessels frequented Canadian waters. The failure of the system was so complete and the embarrassment which it occasioned so serious that it was terminated by an order in Council of the Dominion Government, dated 8th January, 1870, under which it was decided "that the system of granting licenses to foreign vessels under the Act 31 Vic., cap. 61, be discontinued and that henceforth foreign fishermen be not permitted to fish in the waters of Canada."

It was in consequence of this decision on the part of the Dominion Government that Mr. Boutwell's circular dated 16th May, 1870, was issued for the purpose of notifying to American fishermen the effect in regard to the inshore fisheries of the Dominion of the Convention of 1818 and the Canadian Act of 1863 respecting fishing by foreign vessels.

It would under the above circumstances clearly be undesirable that anything should be said which might produce on Mr. Bayard's mind the impression that it was now open to American fishermen to avail themselves of fishing licenses similar to those issued between 1866 and 1863, or that a renewal of the system in force between those years would be acceptable to my Government.

OTTAWA, 29th March, 1886.

My Lord,—In reference to my despatch of the 24th March, forwarding a copy of Sir Lionel West's despatch No. 20, of the 19th instant, I have the honour to enclose herewith copy of a further despatch, No. 29, which I addressed on the 27th to Sir Lionel West, defining with more precision the position of my Government in regard to Clause I of the Act of 1868, 31 Vic., cap. 61, under which power is taken to grant licenses to foreign fishing vessels frequenting the territorial waters of the Dominion.

Although the terms of the memorandum handed to Mr. Bayard by Sir L. West, and enclosed to me in his despatch above referred to, were strictly in accordance with the views of my Government, it appeared to me that the concluding portion of the despatch enclosing the memorandum was so worded as to leave the impression that in Sir Lionel West's belief it was still open to American fishermen, at any moment, to apply for and obtain licenses to use the inshore fisheries of the Dominion.

Your Lordship is fully aware of the circumstances under which the issue of these licenses was discontinued by the Dominion Government in 1870, and I thought it desirable to explain to Sir L. West that, at the present time, my Government would not be disposed to depart from the decision at which it then arrived, or as at present advised, to regard with favour any suggestion for a return to the practice of granting licenses.

CANADA, GOVERNMENT HOUSE, OTTAWA, 30th March, 1886.

My Lord,—I have the honour to enclose herewith a certified copy of a report of the Committee of the Privy Council approved by me to-day recommending that a copy of the Order in Council passed on the 3rd instant, authorizing the establishment of a Fisheries Police Force, together with a copy of the special instructions approved by the Order in Council of the 25th instant, should be forwarded to Your Lordship for the information of Her Majesty's Government.

2. The special instructions above mentioned have already been forwarded by me for Your Lordship's information, and a copy of Order in Council of the 3rd instant is enclosed herewith. I have now only to call your attention to the concluding passage of the Order of this day's date, in which I am requested to submit to Her Majesty's Government the propriety of taking "such steps as are deemed necessary to sustain the Canadian Fisheries Police Vessels in the full enforcement of the provisions of the Convention of 1818."

3. I may state in explanation of the wishes of my Government, that while it fully recognizes that the duty of enforcing police regulations affecting the fisheries on one which belongs to the Canadian authorities, it believes that those regulations can be more effectually enforced and will command greater respect at the hands of those against whom they are directed if they are supported by the presence of one or more of Her Majesty's ships.

4. The mere fact of that presence would certainly be calculated to create the impression that in insisting upon its treaty rights the Dominion had the approval, and would, if occasion arose, command the assistance of Her Majesty's Government.

5. This consideration would deserve additional weight if, as is possible, the Government of the United States should send a ship or ships of war to cruise off the Canadian coast for the protection of American vessels fishing in these waters.

6. I have only to add that I believed it was the case that after the expiration of the Reciprocity Treaty of 1854 a similar request was made on the part of the Dominion Government and acceded to by that of Her Majesty.

My Lord,—I have the honour to acknowledge the receipt of Your Excellency's despatch No. 29, of the 27th instant, informing me that any suggestion for the renewal of the licensing system for American vessels fishing in Canadian waters, under the Treaty of 1818, and which was discontinued by the Order in Council of the 8th January, 1870, would not be acceptable to Your Excellency's Government, and that it was clearly undesirable that anything should be said which might produce upon Mr. Bayard's mind the impression that it is now open to American fishermen to avail themselves of fishing licenses similar to those issued between 1866 and 1869.
In order therefore to prevent any misunderstanding of the position taken by the Government of the Dominion as described in Your Excellency's above-mentioned despatch, and which your Excellency seems to think may arise from the language I used in conversation with Mr. Bayard, I sent to him a memorandum, copy of which I have the honour to enclose, based upon it and embodying the views expressed therein:

MEMORANDUM.

In connection with the Dominion Fisheries Act, 1868 (31 Vic., cap. 61), and the issue of fishery licenses under it, communication was made to the United States Government in April, 1870, of an Order in Council of the Governor General to the following effect:

"That the system of granting licenses to foreign vessels, under the Act 31 Vic., cap. 61, be discontinued, and that henceforth all foreign fishermen be prevented from fishing in the waters of Canada."

In consequence of this decision the Secretary of the Treasury issued the circular of the 16th May, 1870, notifying to American fishermen the effect, in regard to the inshore fisheries of the Dominion, of the Convention of 1818, and of the Canadian Act of 1868, respecting fishing by foreign vessels. The failure of the system of licenses was so complete, and the embarrassment which it occasioned so serious, that the Dominion Government are, under present circumstances, opposed to any suggestion for its renewal, and they point out that the Order in Council above referred to makes it clear that it is not now open to American fishermen to avail themselves of fishing licenses similar to those issued between the years 1866 and 1869.

[No. 107] OTTAWA, 6th April, 1886.

My Lord,—I have the honour to enclose herewith copy of an approved Report of the Privy Council upon a despatch which I received on the 2nd instant, from Her Majesty's Minister at Washington (and of which a copy is herewith enclosed) informing me that the United States Consul General at Halifax, was reported to have argued that under the Convention of 1818 it was open to American fishermen to land, cured in a marketable condition fish, which had been caught outside the three-mile limit, at any Canadian port, and to transship the same in bond to the United States by rail or vessel, and that any refusal to permit such transhipment would be a violation of the general bonding arrangement between the two countries.

It does not appear from Sir L. West's despatch that this statement was made officially, or that it has been supported by the Government of the United States. As however, the matter is one to which further reference may be made, it is desirable that the views of my Government in regard to it should be placed on record.

The report of the Privy Council contains an explanation of the reasons for which, it is believed that under the terms of the Convention, American fishermen are absolutely excluded from admission to Canadian bays or harbours, except for the purposes of shelter and repairing damages therein, or of purchasing wood and obtaining water.

The arrangements in force between the two countries for the transhipment of goods in bond, arrangements which depend in the main upon the Customs laws of of the two countries cannot therefore be regarded as in any sense restricting the operation of the Convention. It should, moreover, be remembered that these bonding arrangements are the same as those which obtained between the two countries after the expiration of the Reciprocity Treaty of 1854, and I am not aware that between that date and the date of the Treaty of 1871, any claims such as those now made by the Consul General at Halifax, were preferred on the part of the United States Government.

Your Lordship will, however, clearly understand that although it is thought necessary to enforce strictly against American fishing vessels, a restriction which was framed with the express purpose of affording protection to the fisheries of the British Colonies, that restriction would not be applicable to vessels not themselves engaged in fishing, but visiting Canadian ports in the ordinary course of trade.

REPORT OF A COMMITTEE OF THE HONOURABLE THE PRIVY COUNCIL FOR CANADA, APPROVED BY HIS EXCELLENCY THE GOVERNOR-GENERAL IN COUNCIL ON THE 5TH APRIL, 1886.

The Committee of the Privy Council have had under consideration a despatch, dated the 29th March, 1886, from Her Majesty's Minister at Washington, informing Your Excellency that the United States' Consul General at Halifax was reported to have argued that there is nothing in the Convention of 1818 to prevent Americans, having caught fish in deep water and cured them, from landing them in a marketable condition at any Canadian port and transshipping them in bond to the United States either by rail or vessel, and that any refusal to permit such transhipment would be a violation of the general bonding arrangement between the two countries.

The Sub-Committee to whom the despatch in question was referred report that 'if the contention of the United States' Consul at Halifax is made in relation to American fishing vessels, it is inconsistent with the Convention of 1818.

That they are of opinion, from the language of that Convention—"Provided, however, that the American fishermen shall be permitted to enter such bays or harbours for the purposes of shelter, and of repairing damages therein, of purchasing wood, and of obtaining water and for no other purpose whatever"—that, under the terms of the Convention, United States' fishermen may properly be precluded from entering any harbour of the Dominion for the purpose of transshipping cargoes, and that it is not material to the question that such fishermen may have been engaged in fishing outside of the "3-mile limit" exclusively, or that the fish which they may desire to have transhipped have been taken outside of such limit.

That to deny the right of transhipment would not be a violation of the general bonding arrangement between the two countries.
off the three-mile limit, the United States Government would be a viola-citement.

The statement was made by the United States. As it is, the General Secretary, having its desirability, I am unaware of any record on that point.

I am aware that there are several instances of the British law of ance restricting the transhipment of fish. It is not to be doubted are aware of all such cases, as those now in force, that have scribed as a restriction which would affect the fisheries of the United is, that these bonds would be imposed on the Canadian vessels not themselves

LOOKING TO WAR.

British Cruisers to Prey Upon American Fishing Vessels—Grave Questions of International Law.

During the debate in the Senate yesterday upon the Logan Bill to increase the efficiency of the navy, Mr. Frye disagreed to the subject of his resolution in relation to the fisheries.
ferred it as very important that that matter should be discussed and settled. It olved a matter, he said, that looked to war. He read resolutions of a fishing association, at portland, Me., praying that the American Government send armed vessels to the fishing ounds to protect our fishing vessels, inasmuch as the Canadian government had forbidden merican fishing vessels to enter Canadian ports, for any purpose except the most primitive shelter.

The minister of marine of Canada, Mr. Frye said, had issued a proclamation that no merican vessel should be permitted to enter Canadian ports for the purpose of buying bait shipping crews or landing fish for transportation across Canadian territory to places in the United States, and he understood that the Canadian government had fitted out their users to prevent American fishing vessels from entering Canadian waters. Mr. Frye read who recent telegrams from the State Department, one asserting this right of Canadian vessels, and the other, dated the same day, saying the Department was just informed that American ishing vessels could only enter Canadian ports for shelter, or to repair damages, &c.

The State Department, Mr. Frye said, needed further education. He declared that we had a perfect right to enter Canadian ports for any purpose we pleased, except piracy. We were not relegated to the Treaty of 1818, but were operating under the Treaty of 1849, and the proclamations issued thereunder. Our ships could go into Canadian ports to buy bait, or ship crews, or get ice, or flour just as Canadian vessels were to-day doing; that very thing in Portland and Gloucester harbours, yet British cruisers were to prey on American fishing vessels as they had been preying on them for fifty years. Mr. Frye was only waiting for a single American vessel to be seized, then he proposed to introduce a Bill of less than ten lines closing the ports of the United States against all British colonial fishing, freighting, and passenger vessels all along the line of the great lakes and the Atlantic coast, and we would then see how long Canada would carry on this operation that she had now entered on. To-day, Mr. Frye said, he will move to take up his fisheries resolution.

Mr. Morgan expressed his surprise that a discussion of the fisheries should be interjected into a discussion of the military Bill. He supposed Mr. Frye thought this a good opportunity to express his belligerent views. The question involved, Mr. Morgan said, was one of commerce and was capable of being handled without the intervention of an army or navy either. It involved grave questions of international law. He (Mr. Morgan) would avail himself of every power within the reach of the Government to maintain the slightest right of any American citizen against foreign interference. His views on the general topic coincided with those of Mr. Frye, but what was wanted was serious consideration after full information, which we did not have now. Mr. Morgan said he would endeavour to inform himself as to the position of the question, to ascertain whether there were any new facts of so alarming a character as to warrant the prognostications regarding the seizure of vessels indulged in by the Senator from Maine.

IN THE HOUSE.

Mr. Dingley, of Maine, introduced a resolution requesting the President to furnish the House with any information in his possession relative to the exclusion of American vessels from the right to enter ports of entry of the Dominion of Canada for the purpose of transhipping supplies, or loading fish caught in deep water for shipment in bond to the United States, or doing other acts which Canadian and other British vessels are freely permitted to do in ports of the United States, and also to inform the House what steps have been taken or are proposed to bring such unwarrantable acts of the Dominion authorities to the attention of the British Government.

CANADIAN FISHING REGULATIONS.

APRIL 5, 1886.—Referred to the Committee on Foreign Affairs and ordered to be printed.

Mr. Dingley submitted the following RESOLUTION:

Whereas the Minister of Marine of the Dominion of Canada has issued a proclamation directing the enforcement of an Act of the Dominion Parliament which prohibits any fishing vessels of the United States from entering any Dominion harbour except for the purpose of shelter, repairing damages, and purchasing wood and obtaining water; and

Whereas press despatches announce that, under this proclamation, Dominion officers have denied to fishing vessels of the United States the right to enter ports of entry in said Dominion for the purpose of purchasing supplies, or landing fish caught in deep water for shipment in bond to the United States, or doing other acts which Canadian and other British vessels are freely permitted to do in ports of the United States; and

Whereas these acts of the authorities of the Dominion of Canada are in contravention of the principles which regulate the intercourse of friendly civilized nations, and in direct conflict with a legislative arrangement between the Governments of the United States and Great Britain, which went into effect the first day of January, eighteen hundred and fifty, by which Great Britain in view of similar privileges conditionally conceded to her vessels by the United States, placed the vessels of the United States on the same footing in British ports, including British colonies, as that on which British vessels are placed in the ports of the United States, the coasting trade only excepted: Therefore,

Resolved, That the President be requested to furnish the House, if compatible with the public interests, with any information in his possession relative to the exclusion of American fishing vessels from the right to enter ports of entry of the Dominion of Canada for the purpose of trading, purchasing supplies, or landing fish caught in deep water for shipment in bond to the United States, or doing other acts which Canadian and other British vessels are freely permitted to do in ports of the United States; and also to inform the House what steps have been taken or are proposed to bring such unwarrantable and unfriendly acts of the Dominion authorities to the attention of the British Government.

Report of a Committee of the Honourable the Privy Council, approved by His Excellency the Governor General in Council on the 16th April, 1886.

The Committee of the Privy Council have had under consideration a despatch dated 31st March, 1886, from Her Majesty's Minister at Washington requesting information as to whether Mr. Mitchell's report dated Ottawa, 31st May, 1870, pointing out certain errors in Mr.

The Minister of Marine and Fisheries to whom the despatch was referred submits that the above mentioned report of Mr. Mitchell was approved by His Excellency in Council, 7th June, 1870, and that a further memorandum upon the same subject and to the same effect, was, on the 14th June, 1870, submitted and approved by His Excellency in Council on 1st July, 1870.

The Committee recommend that Your Excellency be moved to inform Sir Lionel Sackville West that the views expressed in the Orders in Council referred to, are those still held by the Canadian Government, and the assurance is repeated that this Government has no intention of interfering in any way with the rights guaranteed to United States fishermen within the limits laid down by the Convention of 1818.

The Committee respectfully submit the same for Your Excellency's approval.

[No. 145.] OTTAWA, 1st May, 1886.

Mr Lord,—As I observed that some comments have been made in the London press upon the alleged detention of an American schooner at Baddeck, C. B., for violation of the fishery laws of the Dominion, it may be as well that I should submit to you the following statement of the facts of the case, with which I have been supplied by my Minister of Marine and Fisheries:

On the evening of the 22nd of April the American schooner "Joseph Storey," Captain J. L. Anderson, of Gloucester, Mass., anchored off the harbour of Baddeck. On the following morning the Captain came ashore, bought some supplies, engaged a man, took him on board, and sailed without reporting to the Customs' authorities.

The Collector at Baddeck, Mr. L. G. Campbell, upon this, telegraphed to the Sub-Collector at Bras d'Or, instructing him to detain the vessel, and at the same time reported his own action in the matter by telegram to the Minister of Customs.

In compliance with these instructions, the Sub-Collector at Bras d'Or detained the vessel, which proved to have clearance from St. Peter's to Aspy Bay on a trading voyage.

On the 24th of April the Minister of Customs telegraphed to Mr. Campbell that the vessel should be allowed to proceed on condition that the man illegally shipped should be put on shore, the Captain being formally warned by the Collector not to repeat the offence.
Your Lordship will observe that this vessel being an American schooner had rendered herself liable to seizure for violation of the Customs’ law, by not reporting when she touched at Baddeck, as well as of the coasting laws, by plying for trade between Canadian ports. The Collector’s first telegram to the Minister of Customs stated that she was a fishing schooner, and on that information the telegram above referred to was sent, ordering her not to be longer detained, provided the conditions attached were complied with. If it had been known that the case was one of trading illegally, the vessel would, without doubt, have been held for violation of the Customs’ law. By the time, however, when the Minister of Customs had been made aware of the actual facts of the case, she had already been released and permitted to proceed on her voyage.

Lord Lansdowne to Earl Granville. 10th May, 1886.

The schooner “David J. Adams” was buying bait at Digby. Did not report as required by law to Collector, and concealed her name and port of registry. Is now detained at Digby in charge of Collector, and will be tried before Vice-Admiralty Court, at Halifax, for violation of Dominion Fishery Law of 1888, for contravention of Convention of 1818, and for violation of Customs Law by not reporting to Collector. Question of limits of territorial waters not raised.

No. 58.
From Governor-General to Earl Granville.

OTTAWA, 11th May, 1886.

My Lord,—I had the honour to send Your Lordship yesterday a telegram giving particulars of the detention on the 7th instant, at Digby, N.S., of the United States schooner “David J. Adams” for a breach of the Customs and Fishery Laws.

2. Your Lordship will observe that the case was one in which there was no doubt that the vessel had knowingly entered a Canadian port for an illegal purpose, her captain having endeavoured to conceal her name and port of registry. The evidence on this point and also the proof that she had bought bait in large quantities was, I understand, ample.

3. She had, in addition to this, violated Sections 25 and 29 of the Customs Act of 1883 (46 Vic., cap. 12) having been fully twenty-four hours in port without reporting to the Collector of Customs.

4. In consequence of the above occurrence, Captain Scott, R.N., in command of the Fishery Police Steamer “Lansdowne,” took possession of the schooner and towed her to St. John, N.B. Instructions had, in the meantime, been sent to him by telegraph, as soon as the Fisheries Department had been advised of the seizure, to detain the “David J. Adams” at Digby, it being thought best that the vessel should be libelled and the case tried in the Vice-Admiralty Court of the Province in which the offence had been committed. In compliance with these instructions Captain Scott took the “David J. Adams” back to Digby, where she now remains in charge of the Collector of Customs.

5. Proceedings will be taken against her (1) for violation of the Customs Act 31 above referred to; (2) for violation of the Dominion Fishery Act 1868, 31 Vic., cap. 61; (3) for contravention of the provisions of the Convention of 1818 as enacted in the Imperial Act of 1819 (59 Geo. III, cap. 38).

6. No question has, in this case, arisen with regard to the limits of the territorial waters of the Dominion.

7. As your Lordship is, no doubt, aware American fishing vessels frequenting the coast of Canada have been very much engaged, to a great extent, upon Canadian fishermen for their supplies of bait. It has been usual for such vessels hailing from New England ports as soon as the supplies with which they had provided themselves on starting for their trip have been exhausted, to renew it in Canadian waters. Such vessels, if compelled, as soon as they ran short of bait, to return from the Canadian banks to an American port, would lose a great part of their fishing season and be put to considerable expense and inconvenience. Some idea of the importance of this point may be formed from the fact that Mr. Joncas, Commissioner to the London Fisheries Exhibition and a high authority on all matters connected with the fisheries of the Dominion, in a paper read before the British Association of Montreal in 1884, estimates the cost of the bait used by each vessel engaged in the cod fishing at one-fourth of the value of her catch of cod.

8. There can, however, be no doubt that under the terms of the Convention of 1818 foreign fishing vessels are absolutely precluded from resorting to Canadian waters for the purpose of obtaining supplies of bait, and in view of the injury which would result to the fishing interests of the Dominion which the Convention of 1818 was manifestly intended to protect, if any facilities not expressly authorized by that Convention were conceded to foreign fishermen, my Government will, so long as the relations of the Dominion with the United States are regulated by the Convention, be disposed to insist upon a strict observance of its provisions in this respect.

9. I will keep Your Lordship informed of any further occurrence which may take place in connection with this question.

[Enclosure No. 1.]

Mr. Bayard to the Minister at Washington.

DEPARTMENT OF STATE,
WASHINGTON, 10th May, 1886.

Sir,—On the 6th instant, I received from the Consul General of the United States at Halifax, a statement of the seizure of an American schooner, the "Joseph Story," of Gloucester, Massachusetts, by the authorities at Baddeck, Cape Breton, and her discharge after a detention of twenty-four hours.

On Saturday, the 8th instant, I received a telegram from the same official, announcing the seizure of the American schooner "David J. Adams," of Gloucester, Massachusetts, in the Annapolis Basin, Nova Scotia, and that the vessel had been placed in the custody of an officer of the Canadian steamer "Lansdowne," and sent to St. John, New Brunswick, for trial.

As both of these seizures took place in closely land-locked harbours, no invasion of the territorial waters of the British Provinces, with the view of fishing there, could well be imagined. And yet the arrests appear to have been based upon the act or intent of fishing within waters as to which, under the provisions of the Treaty of 1818, between Great Britain and the United States of America, the liberty of the inhabitants of the United States to fish has been renounced.

It would be superfluous for me to dwell upon the desire which, I am sure, controls those respectively charged with the administration of the Governments of Great Britain and the United States to prevent occurrences tending to create exasperation and unneighborly feeling, or collision between the inhabitants of the two countries; but animated with this sentiment the time seems opportune for me to submit some views for your consideration, which, I confidently hope will lead to such administration of the laws regulating the commercial interests and the mercantile marine of the two countries as may promote good feeling and mutual advantage, and prevent hostility to commerce under the guise of protection to inshore fisheries.

The Treaty of 1818 is between two nations, the United States of America and Great Britain, who, as the contracting parties, can alone apply authoritative interpretation thereto, or enforce its provisions by appropriate legislation.

The discussion prior to the conclusion of the Treaty of Washington, in 1871, was productive of a substantial agreement between the two countries as to the existence and limit of the three marine miles, within the line of which, upon the regions defined in the Treaty of 1818, it should not be lawful for American fishermen to take, dry or cure fish. There is no hesitancy upon the part of the Government of the United States to proclaim such inhibition and warn their citizens against the infringement of the treaty in that regard, so that such inshore fishing cannot lawfully be enjoyed by an American vessel being within three marine miles of the land.

But since the date of the Treaty of 1818, a series of laws and regulations importantly affecting the trade between the North American Provinces of Great Britain and the United States have been, respectively, adopted by the two countries, and have led to amicable and mutually beneficial relations between their respective inhabitants.

This independent, and yet concurrent, action by the two Governments, has affected a gradual extension, from time to time, of the provisions of Article I of the Convention of 3rd July, 1818, providing for reciprocal liberty of commerce between the United States and the territories of Great Britain in Europe, so as gradually to include the Colonial possessions of Great Britain in North America and the West Indies, within the results of that treaty.

President Jackson's Proclamation of 5th October, 1830, created a reciprocal commercial intercourse, on terms of perfect equality of flag between this country and the British American dependencies, by repealing the Navigation Acts of 15th April, 1818, 15th May, 1820, and 1st March, 1823, and admitting British vessels and their cargoes "to an entry in the ports of the United States, from the islands, provinces and colonies of Great Britain, on or near the American continent, and north or east of the United States." These commercial privileges have since received a large extension, in the interests of propinquity, and, in some cases, favours have been granted by the United States without equivalent concession. Of the latter class, is the exemption granted by the Shipping Act of 26th June, 1834, amounting to one-half of the regular tonnage dues on all vessels from the British North American and West Indian possessions entering ports of the United States. Of the reciprocal class are the arrangements for transit of goods and the remission by proclamation, as to certain British ports and places, of the remainder of the tonnage tax, on vessels of equal treatment being shown to our vessels.

On the other side, British and Colonial legislation, as notably in the case of the Imperial Shipping and Navigation Act of 26th June, 1849, has contributed its share toward building up an intimate intercourse and beneficial traffic between the two countries, founded on mutual interest and convenience. These arrangements, so far as the United States are concerned, depend upon municipal statute and upon the discretionary powers of the executive thereunder.

The seizure of the vessels I have mentioned, and certain published warnings purporting to have been issued by the colonial authorities, would appear to have been made under a supposed delegation of jurisdiction by the Imperial Government of Great Britain, and to be intended to include authority to interpret and enforce the provisions of the Treaty of 1818, to which I have remarked, the United States and Great Britain are the contracting parties, who can alone deal responsibly with questions arising thereunder.

The effect of this Colonial legislation and executive interpretation, if executed according to the letter, would be not only to expand the restrictions and renunciations of the Treaty of 1818, which related solely to inshore fishing within the three-mile limit, so as to affect the deep sea fisheries, the right to which remained unquestioned and unimpaired for the enjoyment of the citizens of the United States, but further to diminish and practically destroy the privileges expressly secured to American fishing vessels to visit those inshore waters for the objects of shelter, repair of damages and purchasing wood and obtaining water.
Since 1818 certain important changes have taken place in fishing in the regions in question, which have materially modified the conditions under which the business of inshore fishing is conducted and which must have great weight in any present administration of the Treaty.

Drying and curing fish, for which a use of the adjacent shores was at one time requisite, is now no longer followed, and modern invention of processes of artificial freezing, and the employment of vessels of a larger size, permit the catch and direct transportation of fish to the markets of the United States without recourse to the shores contiguous to the fishing grounds.

The mode of taking fish inshore has also been wholly changed, and from the highest authority on such subjects I learn that bait is no longer needed for such fishing, that purse-seines have been substituted for the other methods of taking mackerel, and that by their employment these fish are now readily caught in deeper waters entirely exterior to the three-mile line.

As it is admitted that the deep-sea fishing was not under consideration in the negotiation of the Treaty of 1818, nor was affected thereby, and as the use of bait for inshore fishing has passed wholly into disuse, the reasons which may have formerly existed for refusing to permit American fishermen to catch or procure bait within the line of a marine league from the shore, lest they should also use it in the same inhibited waters for the purpose of catching other fish, no longer exist.

For it will, I believe, be conceded as a fact that bait is no longer needed to catch herring or mackerel, which are the objects of inshore fishing, but is used, and only used, in deep-sea fishing, and, therefore, to prevent the purchase of bait or any other supply needed in deep-sea fishing, under colour of executing the provisions of the Treaty of 1818, would be to expand that convention to objects wholly beyond its purview, scope, and intent, and give it an effect never contemplated by either party, accompanied by results unjust and injurious to the citizens of the United States. As, therefore, there is no longer any indulgence for American fishermen to dry and cure fish on the interdicted coasts of the Canadian Provinces, and as bait is no longer used or needed by them (for the prosecution of inshore fishing) in order to take fish in the inshore waters to which the Treaty of 1818 alone relates, I ask you to consider the results of excluding American vessels duly possessed of permits from their own Government to touch and trade at Canadian ports, as well as to engage in deep-sea fishing from exercising freely the same customary rights and privileges of trade in the ports of the British Colonies as are freely allowed to British vessels in all the ports of the United States under the laws and regulations to which I have adverted.

Among these customary rights and privileges may be enumerated the purchase of ship supplies of every nature, making repairs, the shipment of crews in whole or part, and the purchase of ice and bait for use in deep sea fishing.

Concurrentiy, these usual rational and convenient privileges are freely extended to and are fully enjoyed by the Canadian merchant marine of all occupations, including fishermen, in the ports of the United States.

The question therefore arises whether such a construction is admissible as would convert the Treaty of 1818, from being an instrumentality for the protection of the inshore fisheries along the described parts of the British American coast, into a pretext or means of obstructing the business of deep sea fishing by citizens of the United States, and of interrupting and destroying the commercial intercourse that, since the Treaty of 1818 and independent of any treaty whatever, has grown up and now exists under the concurrent and friendly laws and mercantile regulations of the respective countries?

I may recall to your attention the fact that a proposition to exclude the vessels of the United States engaged in fishing from carrying also merchandise was made by the British negotiators of the Treaty of 1818, but being resisted by the American negotiators was abandoned. This fact would seem clearly to indicate that the business of fishing did not then and does not now disqualify a vessel from also trading in the regular ports of entry.

I have been led to offer these considerations by the recent seizures of American vessels to which I have adverted and by indications of a local spirit of interpretation in the Province, affecting friendly intercourse, which is, I firmly believe, not warranted by the terms of the stipulations on which it professes to rest. It is not my purpose to prejudice the facts of the cases, nor have I any desire to shield any American vessel from the consequences of violation of international obligation. The views I advanced may prove not to be applicable in every feature to those particular cases, and I should be glad if no case whatever were to arise calling in question the good understanding of the two countries in this regard in order to be free from the grave apprehensions which, otherwise, I am unable to dismiss.

It would be most unfortunate, and I cannot refrain from saying, most unworthy, if the two nations who contracted the Treaty of 1818, should permit any questions of mutual right and duty under that convention to become obscured by partisan advocacy or distorted by the heat of local interests. It cannot but be the common aim to conduct all discussion in this regard with dignity and in a self-respecting spirit, that will show itself intent upon securing equal justice rather than unequal advantage. Courty, courtesy and justice cannot, I am sure, fail to be the ruling motives and objects of discussion.

I shall be most happy to come to a distinct and friendly understanding with you, as the representative of Her Britannic Majesty's Government, which will result in such a definition of the rights of American fishing vessels under the Treaty of 1818, as shall effectually prevent any encroachment by them upon the territorial waters of the British Provinces, for the purpose of fishing within those waters, or trespassing in any way upon the littoral or marine rights of the inhabitants, and at the same time prevent that convention from being improperly expanded into an instrument of discord, by affecting interests and accomplishing results wholly outside of and contrary to its object and intent, by allowing it to become an agency to interfere with, and perhaps destroy, those reciprocal commercial privileges and facilities between neighboring communities, which contribute so importantly to their peace and happiness.

It is obviously essential that the administration of the laws regulating the Canadian inshore fishing should not be conducted in a punitive and hostile spirit, which can only tend to induce acts of a retaliatory nature. Everything will be done by the United States to cause their citizens, engaged in fishing to conform to the obligations of the treaty, and prevent an infraction of the fishing laws of the British Provinces; but it is equally necessary that ordinary commercial intercourse should not be interrupted by harsh measures and unfriendly administration.

I have the honour, therefore, to invite a frank expression of your views upon the subject, believing that, should any differences of opinion or disagreement as to facts exist, they will be found to be so minimized that an understanding can be established for the full protection of the inshore fishing of the British Provinces, without obstructing the open sea fishing operations of the citizens of the United States, or disturbing the trade regulations now subsisting between the countries.

I have, &c.,

Governor General to Earl Granville.

My Lord,—I have the honour to enclose herewith copies of the following papers relating to the recent seizure of the United States Schooner "David J. Adams," for alleged violation of the Customs and Fishery laws.

(1.) Captain Scott's report addressed to the Minister of Fisheries.
(2.) Statement by the first officer of the Dominion cruiser "Lansdowne."
(3.) Five statements sworn before Captain Scott. (Also memo.)

I take this opportunity of observing that on the 11th and 12th inst., I received from Her Majesty's Minister at Washington telegrams informing me that it had been made a subject of complaint by the United States Consul at Halifax that he was unable to obtain at once from Captain, Scott in command of the Government steamer "Lansdowne" a statement of the reasons for which the "David J. Adams" was detained, and that the Secretary of State deprecated Captain Scott's conduct in this matter. To these telegrams I sent a reply stating that the vessel in question would be proceeded against for violation of the Customs Act of 1863, of the Dominion Fishery Act of 1868 and of the Convention of 1818. I added that Captain Scott had been instructed to state his reason for any subsequent seizure which he might find necessary to make.

It is I think fair to point out in reference to this complaint that the seizure being the first which had taken place and the legal questions involved being somewhat intricate Captain Scott may be presumed to have been not unnaturally reluctant to commit himself to the extent of supplying the United States Consul with a formal definition of the charges which would be made against the "David J. Adams," and the grounds upon which he had made the seizure, although he evidently felt no doubt that they were sufficient to warrant his action, and although as Your Lordship will perceive on reference to the enclosures herewith he made an informal statement of those grounds at the outset to the master of the seized vessel.
I may add that as soon as the matter had been enquired into by my Ministers Captain Scott was authorized to supply the master of the "David J. Adams" with a written statement of the reasons for which that vessel was seized.

[Enclosure No. 1.]

REPORT from Officer commanding Cruiser "Lansdowne" to the Deputy Minister of Fisheries on seizure of "D. J. Adams."

GOVERNMENT STEAMER "LANSDOWNE,"

Sir,—I have to inform you that on the 6th instant, while in St. John, I received a despatch from the Collector of Customs at Digby, to the following effect: "Fishing schooner, "name and port of registry covered, now in harbour buying bait." I wired you for instructions, but not receiving any, I concluded to come here as soon as possible. We left at 7.30 p.m., and anchored off Digby at 11.45, when the boats were lowered and boarded several schooners, but did not find the right one.

As the day broke on the 7th a schooner was seen off Bear Island making the attempt to get out, but as the wind was light and the tide against her she did not succeed. About 4.30 a.m. the First Officer boarded her and ascertained that she was the "David J. Adams," of Gloucester, Mass. The Capt'n stated that he had not come in for bait, and the boat returned on board. At 10 a.m., not being satisfied with the above report, I ordered Captain Dakin and the First Officer to search her thoroughly, when they discovered a quantity of fresh herring packed in ice in the main hold close to the hatchway. When the boat returned I ordered the schooner to run in and anchor off Digby; we followed and anchored at 11.15 a.m. I then called upon several parties in the neighbourhood for evidence as to the purchase of the bait. In the afternoon I proceeded to Victoria Beach, Granville, Annapolis County, accompanied by the Collector of Customs and the fishery officer at Digby, having heard that some bait had been sold to the Master of that schooner by a man of the name of Ellis.

I took his evidence, which went to prove that he had sold him four barrels of bait on the previous morning for $1.25 a barrel. It appears that Ellis was not willing to sell it to him fearing that he was an American, but the master informed him that he was not, but belonged to Deer Island. At 4 p.m., with the pier of Digby bearing S. by S., distant three-quarters of a mile, Captain Scott boarded "D. J. Adams" and seized her for violating the Dominion Fisheries Act, and placed a guard on board.

At 4.30 on the 8th instant the crew of the "D. J. Adams," with the exception of three men, came on board for passage to St. John. At 6 a.m. we took the schooner in tow and took her there for safety. At 10.30 we lashed to the wharf and hauled the schooner alongside. The Master and crew then landed.

Sunday, the 9th, having received a despatch to take the schooner back to Digby, the master and crew were offered a passage if they liked to go, they declined doing so and they then removed all their personal effects.

At 11 we cast off and proceeded. The first officer and five men took charge of the schooner and sailed her over to the "Gut," where we took her in tow and both anchored at 4 p.m. off the Raquette.

Monday, 10th May, at 5.30, the Collector having been directed to take charge of the schooner she was handed over to him.

Mr. Wallace Graham having directed me to still hold the schooner, I sent the First Officer and one man back to her to remain on board until further orders.

I am, Sir, &c.,

Affidavit of Chief Officer SS. "Lansdowne."

DIBM, NOVA SCOTIA, 10th, MAY 1886.

Before Capt. Scott, R. N., Fishery Officer:—

I, James Beattie Hill, first officer of the Government steamer "Lansdowne," being duly sworn, testify as follows:—

I boarded the American fishing schooner "David J. Adams," of Gloucester, Mass., United States of America, at five o'clock on the morning of the 7th May, she being under way, heeding to the northward and westward, trying to get out of Annapolis Basin, Digby pier bearing about S. W. at a distance of about 2½ miles. I did not see her stern, therefore did not see the name of the vessel, and getting upon her deck I asked the master where his vessel hailed from. He replied, Gloucester. I asked what he had come in for. He said he knew his people, as he formerly belonged here. I asked if he had any fresh bait on board. He said he had not. I asked where he was from. He replied, from the Banks. I asked where he was bound to. He said, to Eastport. I told him he had no business here, and that the supposed he knew the law, to which he replied, yes. I then returned to the "Lansdowne," after boarding another vessel, whose name was, I think, the "Lizzie Magee," of St. Andrews, New Brunswick. One of her crew told me that the "David J. Adams" had bought bait for one dollar and twenty-five cents which he had engaged for himself at seventy-five cents per barrel.

At about ten in the forenoon I was again ordered to return to the "David J. Adams" and search her thoroughly for bait. At this time she was in the "Gut," about one mile south of Victoria Beach. I told the captain I had come on board to make an examination. He said, very well. I then told him that a person on shore had stated that he had bought bait here. He replied that he might bring that person on board and that he would call that person a liar, if that would do any good. Upon searching the hold I found fresh herring upon ice which appeared to be perfectly fresh. Upon my stating my opinion, he said it was about ten days old.

I told him I would have to report to Capt. Scott that I was of opinion that it was fresh. I then returned to the "Lansdowne."

Captain Scott having directed Capt. Dakin to return with me to the "David J. Adams," we went upon her deck and had some of her bait handed up for inspection. Both Captains Dakin and I agreed that it was fresh. We then returned to the "Lansdowne." I was immediately ordered to return to the "David J. Adams" and direct her master to return to Digby and anchor near the "Lansdowne."

Affidavit of Samuel D. Ellis.

Before Captain Scott, R. N., Fishery Officer:

I, Samuel Dennis Ellis, fishermen, being duly sworn, state that on the morning of the sixth instant the Master of the "David J. Adams," professing to be under English register, applied to me for bait, and I therefore sold him four barrels of herring which I saw him take on board his own vessel. I know nothing further of this matter, but am certain as to the vessel, having noticed she had a broken main topmast.

Affidavit of Charles T. Dakin.

DIARY, NOVA SCOTIA, 11th May, 1886.

Before Captain Scott, R. N., Fishery Officer:

I, Charles T. Dakin, being duly sworn, do testify as follows:

That on the 7th day of May I boarded the American schooner "David J. Adams," of Gloucester, Mass., I went into the hold and examined the bait I saw packed in ice, and I do solemnly declare that it was fresh. I asked the Captain if it was true that he had bought any bait from a man named Ellis.

He replied that he did not think this was true.

Affidavit of Edwin C. Dodge.

DIGBY, NOVA SCOTIA, May 7th, 1886.

Before Captain Scott, R. N., Fishery Officer:

I, Edwin C. Dodge, Master Mechanic, being duly sworn, state that—

While standing on Digby Pier, about 9 o'clock in the morning, on the 6th May, I observed a fishing schooner which proved to be the "David J. Adams," of Gloucester, Mass., standing to the southward under her four lower sails, and observed her to tack in close to the wharf.

I observed when her stern was towards me that her name could not be made out, it being hidden by canvas, and which, in my opinion, was done with the object of screening it.

Affidavit of Owen Riley.

DIGBY, NOVA SCOTIA, 7th May, 1886.

Before Captain Scott, R.N., Fishery Officer:

I, Owen Riley, a fisherman, being duly sworn, state that—

While standing on Digby Pier at about 9 o'clock in the morning of the 6th May, I observed a fishing schooner which proved to be the "David J. Adams," of Gloucester, Mass., standing to the southward under her four lower sails, and observed her to tack in close to the wharf.

[Enclosure No. 7.]

Affidavit of Frederick Allen.

Before Captain Scott, R.N.:

I, Frederick Allen, seaman on board the Dominion steamer "Lansdowne," being duly sworn, testify as follows:—

That I being one of the boat's crew of the above ship which boarded the American schooner "David J. Adams," on the 7th May, while in the basin of Annapolis, went into the hold of that vessel and examined the bait, and do solemnly declare that it was fresh.

(Witness)

(Sd.) MANFRED J. L. SAWYER.
Referring to the alleged refusal of Captain Scott to inform the United States Consul General of the causes for which the "David J. Adams" was seized and held, it seems that the Captain of the seized vessel was made aware of the causes of seizure and detention. It is the desire of the Government, and in accordance with its instructions, that full information shall be given in all such cases, and that there shall be no vindictiveness evinced in any of the proceedings against foreign vessels, nor any hostility beyond what is necessary for the peaceful enforcement of the laws of the country.

It is suggested that the answer of Captain Scott to the United States Consul General, dated 11th May instant, should not be taken as evidence of any hostility or discourtesy.

The captain, and others interested in the vessel, being aware of the offences charged, the letter of the United States Consul General of 11th May is understood here (and probably was understood by Captain Scott) as calling for a statement of those charges in a full and specific form.

As there appears to have been ground for two or three charges for infraction both of the statutes relating to fishing vessels and those relating to Customs, and the whole matter had, before the date of the Consul General's letter, been placed by the Minister of Marine and Fisheries in the hands of his counsel, it was not surprising that Captain Scott should have hesitated to state the causes of seizure and detention "fully and specifically," and should have preferred that the enquiry should be made of his superiors.

Instructions have been given that in such cases the captain of any vessel seized shall, as soon as possible, be informed of the cause of seizure.

With reference to the statement that Captain Scott had relinquished possession of the "David J. Adams," and had afterwards resumed possession, the fact appears to be, that when he relinquished the possession he only did so to the extent of handing her over to the Collector of Customs of the Port of Digby. It seems to have been considered desirable by counsel advising Captain Scott that the vessel should be detained by him as the officer who, in the first instance, had made the arrest.

OTTAWA, 17th May, 1886.

Sir,—I had the honour of receiving your letter of the 12th instant, enclosing a copy of Mr. Bayard's note of the 10th, upon the questions raised by the recent detention of the United States schooner "David J. Adams," at Digby, Nova Scotia, for alleged violation of the Customs and Fishery laws.

You have, I understand, been good enough to supply me with a copy of that letter in order that the Dominion Government may, without loss of time, be placed in possession of the views of the United States, in regard to these questions and not with the object of eliciting from me at present any comments upon the arguments advanced by Mr. Bayard.

I am, however, glad to take the earliest opportunity of expressing the pleasure with which the Government of the Dominion has observed the temper in which Mr. Bayard has discussed the matters referred to, and its entire concurrence with him in desiring to import into that discussion nothing that could affect the friendly relations of the two countries.

My Lord,—I have the honour to forward herewith a copy of a despatch which I have received from Her Majesty's Minister at Washington, enclosing copy of a note dated 10th of June, from the United States Secretary of State, in which she set forth the views of that Government upon the seizure of the fishing schooner "David J. Adams," and the questions arising therefrom.

I have the honour also to enclose a copy of the reply, which I have sent to Sir L. West.

I have communicated a copy of Sir L. West's despatch and of Mr. Bayard's note to my Ministers for their information.

[No. 161.] OTTAWA, 19th May, 1886.

My Lord,—I have the honor to inform you that the American fishing schooner "Ella M. Doughty" was seized at St. Ann's, Nova Scotia, by Sub-Collector McAulay, who is reported by the Collector of Customs at Baddeck, Mr. L. G. Campbell, to have proof that the captain bought bait at St. Ann's without reporting to the Customs' authorities.

Mr. Campbell further telegraphs that the captain acknowledged the facts and showed the bait bought, but claimed that he held a permit or license, signed by the Collector of Customs at Portland, Maine, to touch and trade at any foreign port.

The "Ella M. Doughty" has been held for not reporting, and an enquiry is now proceeding in order to ascertain whether there has or has not been an infraction of the Fishery Law of the Dominion.

No. 66.

The Marquis of Lansdowne to Earl Granville.

[No. 162.] OTTAWA, 19th May, 1886.

My Lord,—I have the honour to enclose herewith a copy of a Bill recently introduced in the Dominion House of Commons by my Minister of Marine and Fisheries, for the purpose of amending the Act 31 Vic., chap. 61, respecting fishing by foreign vessels in the territorial waters of the Dominion.

That Act was passed in 1861 by the House of Commons, and the object of giving effect to the Convention of 1878 by rendering liable to certain penalties all foreign fishing vessels entering the territorial waters of the Dominion for any purpose not authorized by that Convention. It is provided under the third section of the Act referred to that the penalty of forfeiture shall attach to any foreign vessel which "has been found fishing or preparing to fish or to have been fishing" without a license within the three-mile limit. These words which follow closely those of sec. II of the Imperial Act of 1819 (59 George III, chap. 38) appear to my Government to be insufficient for the purpose of giving effect to the intentions of the framers of the Convention of 1818, inasmuch as while the penalty of forfeiture is attached to foreign vessels found fishing, or preparing to fish, or having been fishing within the three-mile limit, it is not clear that under them the same penalty would attach to vessels entering the territorial waters in contravention of the stipulations of the Convention, for a purpose other than those of sheltering, repairing damages, purchasing wood and obtaining water for which purposes alone under the terms of Article I, of the Convention and of sec. 3 of the Imperial Act of 1819, above referred to, foreign fishing vessels are permitted to enter the bays and harbours of the Dominion.

Your Lordship is no doubt aware that the decisions of the Canadian courts leave it open to question whether the purchase of bait in Canadian waters does or does not constitute a preparation to fish within the meaning of the Imperial Act of 1819, and the Canadian Statute which it is now sought to amend. The decision of Chief Justice Sir W. Young in the Vice-Admiralty Court of Nova Scotia given in November, 1871, in the case of the fishing schooner "Nickerson", was to the effect that the purchase of bait constituted such a preparation to fish within Canadian waters. The same point had, however, previously arisen in February, 1871, in the Vice-Admiralty Court at St. John, N.B., in the case of the American fishing vessel "White Pawn," when Mr. Justice Hazen decided that the purchase of bait within the three-mile limit was not of itself a proof that the vessel was preparing to fish illegally within that limit.

There being therefore some doubt whether the intention of the Convention of 1818 is effectually carried out either by the Imperial or the Canadian Acts referred to, it has been thought desirable by my Government to have recourse to legislation removing all doubt as to the liability to forfeiture of all foreign fishing vessels resorting to Canadian waters for purposes not permitted by law or by treaty.

As the law now stands, if it should prove that the purchase of bait is not held by the courts to constitute a preparation to fish illegally there would be no remedy against foreign fishing vessels frequenting the waters of the Dominion for purposes not permitted by the Convention of 1818 except

(1) That provided by Section IV of the Act of 1819, namely, a penalty of £200 recoverable in the Superior Courts from the persons violating the provisions of the Act. This penalty, however, only attaches to a refusal to depart from the bay or harbour which the vessel has illegally entered, or to a refusal or neglect to conform to any regulations or directions made under the Act, and as the purpose for which the vessel has entered will, in most cases, have been accomplished before an order can have been given for her departure, it will be obvious that this penalty has very little practical utility.

(2) The common law penalties attaching to a violation of the Imperial Statutes above referred to in respect of illegally entering the bays and harbours of the Dominion. If, however, it were sought to enforce these penalties, their enforcement personally against the master of the vessel, would result in his having ultimately to take his trial for a misdemeanor while he would, in the first instance, be required to find bail to a considerable amount, a result which would, in the opinion of my Government, be regarded as more oppressive than the detention of the offending vessel subject to the investigation of her case by the Vice-Admiralty Courts.

An Act Further to Amend the Act Respecting Fishing by Foreign Vessels.

Whereas it is expedient for the more effectual protection of the inshore fisheries of Canada, against intrusion by foreigners, to further amend the Act intituled: "An Act respecting Fishing by Foreign Vessels," passed in the thirty-first year of Her Majesty's reign, and chaptered sixty one; Therefore Her Majesty, by and with the advice and consent of the Senate and House of Commons of Canada, enacts as follows:

1. The section substituted by the first section of the Act thirty-third Victoria, chapter fifteen, intituled "An Act to amend the Act respecting Fishing by Foreign Vessels," for the third section of the heretofore recited Act, is hereby repealed, and the following section substituted in lieu thereof:

3. Any one of the officers or persons hereinbefore mentioned may bring any ship, vessel or boat, being within any harbour in Canada, or hovering in British waters within three marine miles of any of the coasts, bays, creeks or harbours in Canada, into port, and search her cargo, and may also examine the master upon oath touching the cargo and voyage; and if the master or person in command does not truly answer the questions put to him in such examination, he shall incur a penalty of four hundred dollars; and if such ship, vessel or boat is foreign, or not navigated according to the laws of the United Kingdom or of Canada, and (c) has been found fishing or preparing to fish, or to have been fishing in British waters within three marine miles of any of the coasts, bays, creeks or harbours of Canada, not included within the above mentioned limits, without a license, or after the expiration of the term named in the last license granted to such ship, vessel or boat, under the first section of this Act, or (d) has entered such waters for any purpose not permitted by the law of nations, or by treaty or convention, or by any law of the United Kingdom or of Canada for the time being in force, or (e) having entered such waters has failed to comply with any such law of the United Kingdom or of Canada, such ship, vessel or boat and the tackle, rigging, apparel, furniture, stores and cargo thereof shall be forfeited.

2. The Acts mentioned in the schedule hereto are hereby repealed.

3. This Act shall be construed as one with the said "Act respecting Fishing by Foreign Vessels" and the amendments thereto.

DEPARTMENT OF STATE,
WASHINGTON, 20th May, 1886.

Sir,—Although without reply to the note I had the honour to address to you on the 10th instant in relation to the Canadian fisheries, and the interpretation of the Treaty of 1818, between the United States and Great Britain as to the rights and duties of the American citizen engaged in maritime trade and intercourse with the Provinces of British North America, in view of the unwaranted, irregular and severe action of the Canadian officials toward American vessels in those waters. Yet I feel it to be my duty to bring impressively to your attention information more recently received by me from the United States Consul General at Halifax, Nova Scotia, in relation to the seizure and continued detention of the American schooner "David J. Adams" already referred to in my previous note, and the apparent disposition of the local officials to use the most extreme and technical reasons for interference with vessels not engaged in or intended for inshore fishing on that coast.

The report received from me yesterday evening alleges such action in relation to the vessel mentioned as renders it difficult to imagine it to be orderly proceeding and "due process of law," so well known and customarily experienced in Great Britain and the United States, and which dignifies the two Governments, and gives to private rights of property and the liberty of the individual their essential safeguards.

By the information thus derived it would appear that the four several and distinct visitations by boats' crews from the "Lansdowne" in Annapolis Basin, Nova Scotia, the "David J. Adams" was summarily taken into custody by the Canadian steamer "Lansdowne" and carried out of the Province of Nova Scotia across the Bay of Fundy and into the port of St. John, New Brunswick, and, without explanation or hearing, on the following Monday.

citizens of the United States) I do not consider in this note, and I will only take this occasion to ask you to give me full information of the official action of the Canadian authorities in this regard, and what laws and regulations having the force of law, in relation to the protection of their inshore fisheries and preventing encroachments thereon, are now held by them to be in force.

But I trust you will join with me in realising the urgent and essential importance of restricting all arrests of American fishing vessels for supposed or alleged violations of the Convention of 1818, within the limitations and conditions laid down by the authorities of Great Britain in 1870; to wit, that no vessel shall be seized unless it is evident and can be clearly proved that the fishing has been committed and the vessel itself captured within three miles of land.

In regard to the necessity for the instant imposition of such restrictions upon the arrest of vessels, you will, I believe, agree with me, and I will therefore ask you to procure such steps to be taken as shall cause such orders to be forthwith put in force under the authority of Her Majesty’s Government.

Mr. Bayard to Sir L. S. S. West,

Department of State,
Washington, 20th May, 1886.

My Dear Mr. West,—Since writing you my last note of to-day’s date, my attention has been called to a statement that the American schooner "Jennie and Julia," of eastern Maine, having cleared from that port for Digby, N.S., made due entry at the latter port, and upon attempting to purchase a lot of herring for smoking, was warned that the vessel would only be seized if herring were purchased for any purpose whatever, whereupon the vessel is without taking in cargo.

If, as it is to be inferred from the fact of the regular clearance and entry, the "Jennie and Julia" was documented for a trading voyage, the reported action of the Digby Collector should be looked into very sharply.

It would certainly not help an amicable adjustment of the present difficulties, if the Provincial authorities were to initiate a policy of commercial non-intercourse by refusing permission to exportation of fish in American bottoms.

The report is attracting much attention, and I have telegraphed to our Consular Agent at Digby for a statement of the facts.

I should be glad to receive from you any information you may have in relation to the Collector’s action.

Very truly yours,

Mr. Phelps having as to the interpretation of the treaty from an American point of view and Lord Rosebery having upheld the view taken by the Dominion the Secretary of State informed the American Minister that while desirous of maintaining most friendly relations Her Majesty's Government could hardly ask Canada to suspend her legal rights without adequate equivalent, Lord Rosebery then enquired as to the readiness of the United States Government to negotiate on the question.

My LORD,—With reference to Your Lordship's telegram of the 25th instant, the Government of the Dominion desires to reach a friendly settlement of the fisheries question. With this object it suspended all legal action for the protection of its fisheries last year, notwithstanding the fact that the Government of the United States retained the duties imposed by it on Canadian fish. Congress, however, declined to take action on the recommendation of the President. It would be impossible for the Dominion to abandon its rights again without a better assurance of a satisfactory result than the suggestion which has been made by the United States Minister. Private prosecutions for breach of the fishery law, which would certainly be resorted to by Canadian fishermen, could not now be prevented by the Government. The question of the legality of the seizures will be tested in court. Would it not be well that this should be disposed of in the first instance? An appeal to the Judicial Committee of the Privy Council will, of course, be open to either party.

THE SEIZURE OF THE "SISTERS."

A REPORT BY COLLECTOR ANDERSON ON THE SUBJECT.

Acting Secretary Fairchild yesterday received a report from Collector Anderson, at Portland, in regard to the alleged detention of the British schooner "Sisters," in which he says:

"Herewith I transmit a statement of Jesse Ellis, master of British schooner "Sisters," of Yarmouth, N.S., relating to a penalty incurred by him in consequence of violation of provisions of section 2814 Revised Statutes of the United States. On this case I have respectfully to report that this vessel arrived and entered at this port under circumstances substantially as stated by Capt. Ellis. The 'clearance' he alludes to has on its face the single word 'fish' as a description of cargo. Nowhere on 'clearance' is any reference made to kind, condition, quantity, by whom shipped, or to whom consigned. Very likely the discrepancy between his statement and the fact arises through an inadvertence on the part of the person he employed to draw up the statement. The acting boarding officer at this port reported to me, through the surveyor, under date of the 24th instant, that this vessel "arrived at this port to-day, and the captain failed to produce a manifest of the cargo on board said schooner." In consequence of this the master was informed on entry that he was liable to a penalty of $50 for failure to produce a manifest upon his arrival within the limits of this collection district, as provided by section 2814 Revised Statutes of the United States; that under an article of Treasury Regulations, 1884, relating to Customs and navigation laws, the case would be submitted to the Secretary of the Treasury before enforcing the penalty. I believe the reasons he assigns for his failure to comply with the requirements of the navigation laws and customs regulations of the United States to be true. I have not discovered any attempt on his part to defraud the revenue. He presented a manifest in proper form on entry of his vessel, in which cargo was set up as taken on board at Yarmouth, N.S.; consists, 20,000 fresh mackerel, shipped by W. A. Killam and consigned to W. L. Clements & Co.; consignee's residence, Portland, and port of destination, Portland. In view of the fact that the morning papers of this city publish in full a statement of Capt. Ellis, as herein enclosed, I deem it proper to say that the document was not furnished the press by any officer connected with the Customs service at this port to my knowledge. I respectfully submit the case and await your instructions thereon."

Capt. Ellis' statement, referred to in the above letter, has already been published.

[Enclosure No. 1.]

Mr. Bayard to Sir L. West:

DEPARTMENT OF STATE,

WASHINGTON, 29th May, 1886.

Sir,—I have just received an official imprint of House of Commons Bill No. 136, now pending in the Canadian Parliament, entitled "An Act further to amend the Act respecting Fishing by Foreign Vessels," and am informed that it has passed the House and is now pending in the Senate.

This Bill proposes the forcible search, seizure and forfeiture of any foreign vessel within any harbour in Canada, or hovering within three marine miles of any of the coasts, bays, creeks or harbours in Canada, where such vessel has entered such waters for any purpose not permitted by the laws of nations, or by treaty or convention, or by any law of the United Kingdom of Canada now in force.
I hasten to draw your attention to the wholly unwarranted proposition of the Canadian authorities, through their local agents, arbitrarily to enforce, according to their own construction, the provisions of any Convention between the United States and Great Britain, and, by the interpolation of language not found in any such Treaty, and by interpretation not claimed or conceded by either party to such Treaty, to invade and destroy the commercial rights and privileges of citizens of the United States under and by virtue of Treaty stipulation with Great Britain and statutes in that behalf made and provided.

I have also been furnished with a copy of Circular No. 371, purporting to be from the Customs Department at Ottawa, dated 7th May, 1886, and to be signed by J. Johnson, Commissioner of Customs, assuming to execute the provisions of the Treaty between the United States and Great Britain, concluded 20th October, 1818; and printed copies of a "Warning," purporting to be issued by George E. Foster, Minister of Marine and Fisheries, dated at Ottawa, 5th March, 1886, of a similar tenor, although capable of unequal results in its execution.

Such proceedings I conceive to be flagrantly violative of the reciprocal commercial privileges to which citizens of the United States are lawfully entitled under statutes of Great Britain and the well defined and publicly proclaimed authority of both countries, besides being in respect of the existing Conventions between the two countries an assumption of jurisdiction entirely unwarranted, and which is wholly denied by the United States.

In the interest of the maintenance of peaceful and friendly relations, I give you my earliest information on this subject, adding that I have telegraphed Mr. Phelps, our Minister at London, to make earnest protest to His Majesty's Government against such arbitrary, unlawful, unwarranted and unfriendly action on the part of the Canadian Government and its officials; and have instructed Mr. Phelps to give notice that the Government of Great Britain will be held liable for all losses and injuries to citizens of the United States and their property caused by the unauthorized and unfriendly action of the Canadian Government to which I have referred.

Extract from the New York Herald, of 31st May, 1886.

"ERRING SISTERS, NO IN PEACE."

Mr. Fairchild, the Acting Secretary of the Treasury, has remitted the fine to which the Nova Scotia fishing schooner "Sisters," which was seized at Portland last Monday, was liable for want of a manifest. The "Herald" anticipated this remission. On the morning after the seizure we expressed our confidence that the Treasury Department would temper justice with mercy as soon as it received an official certificate of the facts which our correspondent at Portland already had ascertained and reported to us. The skipper was just as devoid of evil intention as were the captains and crews of those fishing schooners from Gloucester and Portland which the Canadians have seized and are prosecuting not only unmercifully but unjustly.

The difference between the conduct of the authorities on this side of the border and on the other side is a great one, and will not fail to be noticed whenever the fishery questions are discussed. No special merit, to be sure, attaches to our Treasury Department for its course in this case. It has done only what was to be expected of a civilized administration, and the Canadians have only themselves to blame for the contrast.

"Direct Lord Rosebery's attention immediately to the Bill No. 136 now pendtion of 1818. You will also call his attention to the circular No. 371, issued by the Commissioner of Customs for the Dominion, Mr. Johnson, which orders the seizure of vessels on violation of that Convention. Both of these are unwarranted and arbitrary assumptions of power against which you are desired to make an early protest. You are instructed in doing so, to state that the Government of Great Britain will be held responsible by that of the United States for whatever losses may be incurred by American citizens growing out of the dispossession of their property, detention or sale of their vessels lawfully within British North American territorial waters." The telegram ends here. Please telegraph the purport of circular No. 371

The terms of the concluding paragraph of the warning which was enclosed in your despatch dated 25th March, exclude all foreign vessels as well as those of the United States from Canadian bays. This is unintentional in all probability, as there is in the Act recited nothing to justify this. It would be well, however, to invite the attention of your Government to this point with a view to having the warning amended.

With reference to Your Lordship's telegram of the 3rd June, the circular No.
371 issued by the Customs Department recites Article I of the Convention of 1818 and sections two, three and four of the Dominion Fisheries Act of 1868. It directs the Customs Officers to furnish with warning notice any foreign fishing vessels found within the three-mile limit, except for the four purposes specified as lawful in the Convention. If any vessel is found fishing, preparing to fish or violating the terms of the Convention by shipping men or supplies, or trading, or if hovering, does not within twenty-four hours of warning depart, the Collector is instructed to place an officer on board and telegraph to the Department of Fisheries, Ottawa.

From Lord Lansdowne to Earl Granville.

7th June, 1886.

Your telegram of the 4th June is received. The warning as it was issued at first contained a reference to all foreign vessels. The amended issue recites merely the fact and the Convention and omits the reference. The final paragraph of the Customs Circular No. 371 is open to objection, perhaps, as implying that the Convention of 1818 applies to all foreign vessels. Attention will be given to this point.

(Sd.) Lansdowne.

Lord Lansdowne to Earl Granville.

QUEBEC, 7th June, 1886.

My Lord,—Her Majesty's Minister at Washington has been good enough to communicate to me for my information, copy of a note received by him from the Secretary of State for the United States, in which the Bill is criticized not so much on account of its policy or because its introduction is regarded as inopportune and inconvenient, as upon the ground that any legislation by the Parliament of the Dominion for the purpose of interpreting and giving effect to a contract entered into by the Imperial Government is beyond the competence of that Parliament and "an assumption of jurisdiction entirely unwarranted" and, therefore, "wholly denied by the United States."

Your Lordship is, no doubt, aware that legislation of this kind has been frequently resorted to by the Parliament of the Dominion for the purpose of enforcing treaties or conventions entered into by the Imperial Government. In the present case the legislation proposed was introduced, not with the object of making a change in the terms of the Convention of 1818, nor with the intention of representing as breaches of the Convention any acts which are not now punishable as breaches of it. What the framers of the Bill sought was merely to amend the procedure by which the Convention is enforced, and to do this by attaching a particular penalty to a particular breach of the Convention after that breach had been proved before a competent tribunal. It must be remembered that the Convention itself is silent as to the procedure to be taken in enforcing it, and that effect has accordingly been given to its provisions at different times, both through the means of Acts passed, on the one side, by Congress, and on the other by the Imperial Parliament, as well as by the Legislatures of the British North American Provinces previous to Confederation, and since Confederation by the Parliament of the Dominion. The right of the Dominion Parliament to legislate for these purposes and the validity of such legislation as against the citizens of a foreign country has, as far as I am aware, not been seriously called in question. Such legislation, unless it is disallowed by the Imperial Government becomes part of the law of the Empire.

The Government of the United States has long been aware of the necessity of reference to the Dominion Parliament, in matters affecting Canadian interests, and has, I believe, never raised any objection to such reference. The Treaties of 1854 and 1871, so far as they related to the fisheries or to the commercial relations of the Dominion were made subject to ratification by her Legislature. In the same way, the treaty under which fugitive criminals from the United States into Canada are surrendered is carried into effect by means of a Canadian statute. If a foreigner commits a murder in Canada he is tried, convicted, and executed by virtue of a Canadian, and not of an Imperial Act of Parliament. Seizures of goods and vessels for breaches of the local Customs law have in like manner been made for many years past without any protest, on the ground that such laws involved an usurpation of power by the Colony.

Mr. Bayard's statement that the Dominion Government is seeking by its action in this matter to "inadequately destroy the commercial rights and privileges secured to citizens of the United States, under and by virtue of treaty stipulations with Great Britain" is not warranted by the facts of the case. No attempt has been made by the authorities entrusted with the enforcement of the existing law or by the Parliament of the Dominion to interfere with vessels engaged in bona fide commercial transactions upon the coast of the Dominion. The two vessels which have been seized are both of them beyond all question fishing vessels and not traders, and therefore liable, subject to the finding of the courts, to any penalties imposed by the law for the enforcement of the Convention of 1818, on parties violating the terms of that Convention.

When, therefore, Mr. Bayard protests against all such proceedings as being "flagrantly violative of reciprocal commercial privileges to which citizens of the United States are lawfully entitled under statutes of Great Britain, and in the well defined and publicly proclaimed authority of both countries," and when he denounces the competence of the Fishery Department to issue under the Convention of 1818, such a paper as the "Warning," dated 5th March, 1886, of which a copy has been supplied to Your Lordship, he is in effect denying to the Dominion, the right of taking any steps for the protection of its own rights secured under the Convention referred to.

No. 88.

From Lord Lansdowne to Earl Granville.

8th June, 1886.

In reply to your telegram of the 4th June, the subjoined amendments are agreed to :—In the last paragraph of the circular, third line, leave out from the word "for" to the word "water" which is in the fourth line. In the sixth line leave out from the word "if" to the word "trading" which is in the eighth line and insert the following words:—

"If any fishing vessel or boat of the United States is found fishing, or to have been fishing, or preparing to fish." I have written a despatch on the subject which follows. A decision will not be arrived at in the case of "David J. Adams" for several weeks.

No. 89.

Marquis of Lansdowne to Earl Granville.

QUEBEC, 8th June, 1886.

My Lord,—In reference to Your Lordship's telegrams of the 3rd and 4th inst., in which you have called the attention of my Government to the Customs Circular No. 371 and to the "Warning" enclosed therein, I think it desirable to make the following observations in explanation of the telegraphic replies which I have addressed to Your Lordship.

In your telegram of the 4th inst., Your Lordship pointed out that the terms of the concluding paragraph of the "Warning" in question had the effect of excluding not only vessels belonging to the United States but all foreign vessels from Canadian bay, and harbours, and you observed that this was probably not intentional as nothing in the Act recited would justify such an exclusion.

I have ascertained that the "Warning," as originally issued from the Department of Fisheries after reciting the 1st Article of the Convention of 1818, and sections 2, 3 and 4 of the Canadian Act of 1863, respecting fishing by foreign vessels, contained the following paragraph:

"Therefore be it known, that by virtue of the Treaty Provisions and Act of Parliament above recited, all foreign vessels or boats are forbidden from fishing or taking fish by any means whatever within three marine miles of any of the coasts, bays, creeks and harbours in Canada, or to enter such bays, harbours and creeks except for the purpose of shelter and of repairing damages therein, of purchasing wood and obtaining water, and for no other purposes whatever; of all of which you will take notice and govern yourself accordingly."

The passage quoted would, as Your Lordship has pointed out, have affected all foreign vessels, whether belonging to the United States or not. The mistake was however, detected and the "Warning" issued in a revised form from which the paragraph which I have quoted was omitted and replaced by the words "of all of which you will take notice and govern yourself accordingly."

I enclose herewith copies of the warning in its original and in its amended form. It is possible that Your Lordship or the American Minister may have seen the warning before it had of No. 33, or been amended in the manner which I have described.

The amended form which merely recites Art I. of the Convention of 1818 and the Canadian Statute of 1868, appears to me to be entirely free from objection. The latter of these Statutes is, as Your Lordship is aware, substantially the same as the Imperial Act of 1819 (59 Geo. III., cap. 58) although the provisions relating to hovering are taken from another Imperial Statute (9 Geo. III., cap. 35). The law of the United States as to hovering is, I believe, the same as that embodied in this Statute.

The concluding paragraphs of the circular No. 371 to which, and not to the warning, Your Lordship's telegram of the 4th of June may have been intended to refer, are also, I think, open to objection. After reciting the Dominion Act of 1863, which, like the Imperial Statute of 1819, applies to foreign vessels generally, the circular proceeds to mention specially certain acts as violations, not of either of the Statutes in question, but of the Convention of 1818, and declares that if "such vessels or boats," that is, any foreign fishing vessels or boats, are found committing those acts they are to be detained. As, however, the Convention has reference to the fishing rights of the United States and not to those of other foreign powers, the passages which I have quoted are, I think, certainly open to the criticism not only that they assume that the acts described are violations of the Convention, but that they seek to apply whatever penalties may be enforced against parties contravening the Convention to vessels to which those provisions are not properly applicable.

This point has been considered by my Government with every desire to revise the circular in such a manner as to remove all reasonable objections to it and to make the following concluding paragraphs in lieu of those referred to above:

"Having reference to the above you are requested to furnish any foreign fishing vessels, boats or fishermen found within three marine miles of the shore within your district with a printed copy of the warning enclosed herewith.

"If any fishing vessel or boat of the United States is found fishing or to have been fishing or preparing to fish, or if hovering within the three mile limit, does not depart within twenty-four hours after receiving such warning, you will place an officer on board of such vessel and at once telegraph the facts to the Fisheries Department at Ottawa and await instructions."

The effect of those words will be that every foreign fisherman found within the three mile limit will receive a warning which will make him aware of the state of the law, while every fishing vessel belonging to the United States found contravening the existing Canadian Statutes, which, as I have already reminded your Lordship, in these respects follow closely those passed by the Imperial Parliament, will, if departing within twenty-four hours after receiving such warning, be detained under the conditions described.

I trust that the above explanation will be satisfactory to your Lordship.

[Enclosure No. 1.]

WARNING.—TO ALL WHOM IT MAY CONCERN.

The Government of the United States having by notice terminated Articles 18 to 2 both inclusive, and Article 30, known as the Fishery Articles, of the Washington Treat attention is called to the following provision of the Convention between the United Stat and Great Britain, signed at London on the 20th October, 1818—:

Article 1st. “Whereas differences have arisen respecting the liberty claimed by the United States, for the inhabitants thereof, to take, dry and cure fish, on certain coast bays, harbors and creeks, of His Britannic Majesty’s dominions in America, it is agree between the high Contracting Parties, that the inhabitants of the said United States shall have forever, in common with the subjects of His Britannic Majesty, the liberty to take fish every kind on that part of the southern coast of Newfoundland which extends from Cap Ray to the Rameau Islands, on the western and northern coast of Newfoundland, from the said Cape Ray to the Quirpon Islands, on the shores of the Magdalen Islands, and also the coasts, bays, harbors and creeks, from Mount Joly, on the southern coast of Labrador, and through the Straits of Belleisle, and thence northwardly indefinitely along the coast without prejudice, however, to any of the exclusive rights of the Hudson’s Bay Compa and that the American fishermen shall also have liberty, forever, to dry and cure fish in an of the unsettled bays, harbors and creeks of the southern part of the coast of Newfoundlan described, and of the coast of Labrador; but so soon as the same, or any portion thereof, shall be settled, it shall not be lawful for the said fishermen to dry or cure fish in such portion so settled, without previous agreement for such purpose, with the inhabitants “proprietors, or possessors of the ground.”

And the United States hereby renounce forever any liberty heretofore enjoyed or claimed by the inhabitants thereof, to take, dry, or cure fish, on or within three miles of any of the coasts, bays, creeks, or harbors of His Britannic Majesty’s dominions in America, not included within the above-mentioned limits; provided, however, that the American fishermen shall be admitted to enter such bays or harbors, for the purpose of shelter and of repairing damages therein, of purchasing wood, and of obtaining water, as for no other purpose whatever. But they shall be under such restrictions as may be necessary to prevent their taking, drying or curing fish therein, or in any manner what ever abusing the privileges hereby reserved to them.

Attention is also called to the following provisions of the Act of the Parliament of Can cap. 61, of the Acts of 1805, “An Act respecting fishing by foreign vessels.”

2nd. “Any commissioned officer of Her Majesty’s Navy, serving on board of any vessel of Her Majesty’s Navy, cruising and being in the waters of Canada for purpose of allon protection to Her Majesty’s subjects engaged in the fisheries, or any commissioned officer of Her Majesty’s Navy, Fishery Officer, or Stipendiary Magistrate on board of any vessel belong or in the service of the Government of Canada and employed in the service of protecting the fisheries, or any officer of the Customs of Canada, Sherif, Magistrate or person else decommissioned for that purpose, may go on board of any ship, vessel or boat, within any har in Canada, or hovering (in British waters) within three marine miles of any of the coast bays, creek or harbors in Canada, and stay on board so long as she may remain within such place or distance.”

3rd. “If such ship, vessel or boat be bound elsewhere, and shall continue within such harbor, or so hovering for twenty-four hours after the Master shall have been required depart, any one of such officers or persons as are above mentioned may bring such s vessel or boat into port and search her cargo, and may also examine the Master upon oath touching the cargo and voyage; and if the Master or person in command shall not truly answer the questions put to him in such examination, he shall forfeit four hundred dollars; and if such ship, vessel or boat be foreign, or not navigated according to the laws of the United Kingdom or of Canada, and have been found fishing, or preparing to fish, or to have been fishing (in British waters) within three marine miles of any of the coasts, bays, creeks or harbors of Canada, not included within the above-mentioned limits, without a license, or after the expiration of the period named in the last license granted to such ship, vessel or boat under the first section of this Act, such ship, vessel or boat, and the tackle, rigging, apparel, furniture, stores and cargo thereof shall be forfeited."

4th. "All goods, ships, vessels and boats, and the tackle, rigging, apparel, furniture, stores and cargo liable to forfeiture under this Act, may be seized and secured by any officers or persons mentioned in the second section of this Act; and every person opposing any officer or person in the execution of his duty under this Act, or aiding or abetting any other person in any opposition, shall forfeit eight hundred dollars, and shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and upon conviction be liable to imprisonment for a term not exceeding two years."

Of all of which you will take notice and govern yourself accordingly.

No. 90.

The Marquis of Lansdowne to Earl Granville.

QUEBEC, 8th June, 1886.

My LORD,—In reference to Sir Lionel West's letter to me of the 21st May, enclosing one from Mr. Bayard complaining of the treatment of the American schooner "Jennie and Julia," of Eastport, Maine, which vessel was represented to have, after she had made due entry at the port of Digby, N.S., attempted to purchase herring for smoking and to have been thereupon warned, and compelled to leave without taking any cargo, I have the honor to enclose copy of a report which I have received from my Minister of Marine and Fisheries dealing fully with the case in question.

Your Lordship will observe that the "Jennie and Julia" is described as being to all intents and purposes a fishing vessel, fully equipped for fishing, and that as such she was regarded as debarred by the Convention of 1818 from trading in Canadian ports, and, therefore, warned to desist from so doing.

I have, &c.,

[Enclosure No. 1.]

DEPARTMENT OF FISHERIES, CANADA, OTTAWA, JUNE 5TH, 1886.

With reference to a despatch from the British Minister at Washington, to His Excellency the Governor General, dated 21st May last, and enclosing a letter from Mr. Secretary Bayard, regarding the refusal of the Collector of Customs at Digby, N. S., to allow the United States' schooner "Jennie and Julia" the right of exercising commercial privileges at the said port, the undersigned has the honor to make the following observations:—

It appears that the "Jennie and Julia" is a vessel of about 14 tons register, that she was at all times and purposes a fishing vessel, and at the time of her entry into the port of Digby had fishing gear and apparatus on board, and that the Collector fully satisfied himself of these facts. According to the master's declaration she was there to purchase fresh herring only, and wished to get them direct from the weir fishermen. The Collector acted upon his conviction that she was a fishing vessel and as such debarred by the Treaty of 1818 from entering Canadian ports for purposes of trade. He, therefore, in the exercise of his plain duty, warned her off.
The Treaty of 1818 is explicit in its terms, and by it United States' fishing vessels are allowed to enter Canadian ports for shelter, repairs, wood and water, and "for no other purpose whatever."

The undersigned is of the opinion that it cannot be successfully contended that a bona fide fishing vessel can, simply by declaring her intention of purchasing fresh fish for other than baiting purposes, evade the provisions of the Treaty of 1818 and obtain privileges not contemplated thereby. If that were admitted, the provision of the Treaty which excludes United States' fishing vessels for all purposes but the four above mentioned, would be rendered null and void and the whole United States' fishing fleet be at once lifted out of the category of fishing vessels, and allowed free use of Canadian ports for baiting, obtaining supplies and transhipping cargoes.

It appears to the undersigned that the question as to whether a vessel is a fishing vessel or a legitimate trader or merchant vessel is one of fact, and to be decided by the character of the vessel and the nature of her outfit, and that the class to which she belongs is not to be determined by the simple declaration of her master, that he is not at any given time acting in the character of a fisherman.

At the same time the undersigned begs again to observe that Canada has no desire to interrupt the long-established and legitimate commercial intercourse with the United States, but rather to encourage and maintain it, and that Canadian ports are at present open to the whole merchant navy of the United States on the same liberal conditions as heretofore accorded.

The whole respectfully submitted.

MY LORD,—I have the honor to forward herewith for Your Lordship's information, copies of two despatches I have received from Her Majesty's Minister at Washington in regard to the detention and subsequent release of the Canadian Schooner "Sisters," at Portland, Maine, for violation of the Customs regulations of the United States.

2. The vessel in question arrived in the port of Portland with a cargo of fish, and became liable to a fine of $500 for the failure of her captain to produce a manifest of her cargo upon his arrival within the limits of the Customs jurisdiction of the port. As, however, the United States' authorities were satisfied that there was no intention on the part of the captain of the "Sisters" to defraud the revenue, the fine was remitted and the vessel released.

MY LORD,—With reference to previous correspondence I have the honor to forward herewith for Your Lordship's information a copy of a despatch from Sir Lionel West, enclosing a note from Mr. Bayard, dated May 29, on questions arising out of the Bill to amend the "Dominion Fishery Act of 1868," recently passed through both Houses of the Dominion Parliament.
2. I have already made Your Lordship aware that the Bill referred to by Mr. Bayard was reserved by me for the signification of Her Majesty's pleasure thereon, upon the ground that as it affected matters formerly the subject of negotiation between Her Majesty's Government and that of the United States, it was desirable that it should not come into operation until Her Majesty's Government should have had an opportunity of considering its provisions.

3. A copy of the warning referred to by Mr. Bayard was sent to Your Lordship in my dispatch of 25th March, and I now enclose a copy of the Customs circular of 7th May, which is mentioned in Mr. Bayard's note.

4. I had the honor of intimating to Your Lordship by telegram on the 8th instant, that it had been found necessary to amend the wording of this circular, the terms of which as they originally stood would have affected all foreign vessels and not only those of the United States.

My Lord,—I have the honor to transmit to you, for the information of Your Lordship's Government, copies of two despatches (received from the Foreign Office) which have been addressed by the Earl of Rosebery to Sir Lionel West, recording conversations held by His Lordship with the American Minister on the subject of the Fishery Question.

I have, &c.,

His Excellency
The Governor General.

[Enclosure No. 1.]

The Earl of Rosebery to Sir L. West.

FOREIGN Office, 24th May, 1886.

Sir,—The American Minister called on me to-day, and said that he had received a telegram from Mr. Bayard late on Saturday night instructing him to ask me if the seizure of American fishing vessels in Canadian waters could not be discontinued, and the vessels already captured restored, of course, without prejudice, and on an undertaking to surrender them if required.

Mr. Phelps went on to argue the construction of the Treaty of 1818, and said that though, at first glance, its provisions might seem to justify the Canadian authorities in the course which they had taken, a general view of its whole scope contradicted that assumption, which, in any case, was inconsistent with the cordial relations existing between the two countries. In reply, I reminded Mr. Phelps that the Treaty was concluded at a time when, after a war and a period of great bitterness, the relations between Great Britain and the United States were not so cordial as they are now.

As regarded the construction of the Treaty, I could not presume to argue with so eminent a lawyer as himself; I could not, however, refrain from expressing the opinion that the plain English of the clause seemed to me entirely to support the Canadian view. Nor was it the fault of the Canadians that they had been compelled to resort to the enforcement of the Treaty. I admitted, indeed, that the responsibility did not lie on the American Government. But the Senate had refused to sanction any negotiation on the matter, and therefore thrown back the Canadians on the provisions of the Treaty of 1818. As regards the seizure of the vessels which Mr. Phelps had described as having transgressed unwittingly, I could only say but little, as I had received no intelligence beyond what was stated in the newspapers. If, however, they had erred unwittingly it was not our fault, for we had issued a formal warning to American fishermen that they would not be permitted, under the Treaty of 1818, to do certain things, and we had requested Mr. Bayard to issue a similar notice. He, however, had declined to do so. I could not, therefore, think that the American vessels had erred unwittingly, more especially, as, if I was rightly informed by the newspapers, there were suspicious and furtive circumstances connected with the case of the "David J. Adams," at any rate, which tended to prove that the captain was aware that he was acting illegally.

As to the substantial proposition of Mr. Bayard, I begged Mr. Phelps to return the following answer: No one, as he was aware, could be more anxious than I was to maintain the most cordial relations between the two countries. He well knew that I would be more than half way to meet Mr. Bayard in this matter, but it would be difficult to ask the Canadians to suspend their legal action if we had nothing to offer them in the way of a quid pro quo. What I would suggest would be this, that he should telegraph at once to Washington to tell Mr. Bayard that I would do my best to induce the Colonial authorities to suspend the action if some assurance could be given me of an immediate readiness to negotiate on the question. Mr. Phelps promised to do this.

I am, &c.,

Mr. Bayard to Mr. Phelps (communicated to the Earl of Rosebery by Mr. Phelps, May 29).

(Telegraphic.)

May 27, 1886.

You will say to Lord Rosebery that every disposition exists on our part to arrive at an amicable and just solution of Canadian fishery and trade question, as the President has already manifested. Main point now is to have Treaty of 1818 so interpreted as not destroy commercial intercourse, including purchase of bait for use in deep sea fishing. This was done by Great Britain in 1871, and its abandonment now would be inadmissible, as adhered to now would relieve hardship and exasperation caused by summary arrests of vessels. Present action of Canadian authorities is calculated to obstruct settlement.

[Enclosure No. 3.]

The Earl of Rosebery to Sir L. West.

(No 21 a. Treaty.)

FOREIGN OFFICE, May 29, 1886.

Sir,—The American Minister called on me to-day and read me a telegram from Mr. Bayard, of which I enclose a copy.

He again discussed at some length the provisions of the Treaty of 1818, and said that the newspapers which had reached him from America treated the matter as of little moment because the British Government were sure not to support the action of the Canadian Administration. He also alluded to a correspondence with Lord Kimberley in 1871, in which Lord Kimberley stated that the Imperial Government was the sole interpreter of the British view of Imperial Treaties, and that they were not able to support the Canadian view of the bait clause. Mr. Phelps finally urged that the action of the Canadian Government should be suspended, which would then conduct to a friendly state of matters, which might enable negotiations to be resumed.

I replied to Mr. Phelps that, as regards the strict interpretation of the Treaty of 1818, was in the unfortunate position, that there were not two opinions in this country on the matter, and that the Canadian view was held by all authorities to be legally correct. If we are now under the provisions of the Treaty of 1818 it was by the action, not of Her Majesty's Government, or of the Canadian Government, but by the wish of the United States. I had offered to endeavor to procure the prolongation of the temporary arrangement of last year.

This word is doubtful as to correct reading of cypher.
in order to allow an opportunity for negotiating, and that had been refused. A Joint Commission had been refused, and, in fact, as any arrangement, either temporary or permanent, had been rejected by the United States, it was not a matter of option but a matter of course that we returned to the existing Treaty. As to Lord Kimberley’s view, I had had no explanation from him on that point, and of course I entirely concurred with his opinion that the British Government were the interpreters of the British view of Imperial Treaties: As regarded the wish expressed by Mr. Phelps that the present action should be suspended, when possibly an opportunity might arise for negotiation, I said that that amounted to an absolute concession of the Canadian position with no return whatever, and I feared that the refusal of the United States to negotiate, for so I could not help interpreting Mr. Bayard’s silence in answer to my proposition, would produce a bad effect, and certainly would not assist the Imperial Government in their efforts to deal with this question. In the meantime, however, I begged him simply to assure Mr. Bayard that I had received his communication, and that we were still awaiting the Canadian case and the details of the other seizures, that when we had received these, for which we had telegraphed, I hoped to be in a better position for giving an answer. Mr. Phelps also touched on the seizures of these ships, and I said that the legality of that would be decided in a Court of Law, and Mr. Phelps objected that it would be a Dominion Court of Law and not an Imperial Court. I replied that an appeal would lie to the Courts in this country, and Mr. Phelps pointed out that that procedure would be expensive; but I reminded him again that it was not our fault that we had been thrown on the provisions of the Treaty of 1818.

[Enclosure No. 4.]

The Earl of Rosebery to Sir L. West.

(No. 24. Treaty.)

FOREIGN OFFICE, 2nd June, 1886.

Mr. L. West, M.P.

Sir,—The American Minister informed me to-day, in the course of conversation, that he was at this moment preparing a statement of the American contention with regard to the recent seizures under the terms of the Convention of 1818. He entered into a long argument to show that seizure was not provided for by law as a penalty for the infringement of this clause; that what was provided for was a punishment for Canadian vessels fishing within the forbidden limits. He said that his Government could not admit the interpretation by the Canadian Government, and he mentioned the fact that in any case the North American fishermen had no notice of the action that was going to be taken. As to the latter point, I replied that that was not the fault of Her Majesty’s Government. On the 15th March I had telegraphed to you to ask you to request the Secretary of State to issue a Notice such as we were about to issue to Canadian fishermen, and he had declined to do so. Mr. Phelps was not aware of this. I went on to say that the view of the American Government appeared to be this: “You are to accept our interpretation of the Treaty, whether it be yours or not, and in any case we will not negotiate with you.” I said that that was not a tenable proposition. Mr. Phelps said that it was quite true that his Government, owing to circumstances of which I was aware, had not been able to negotiate, but as regards the Treaty, he felt sure that he would be able to convince me that the American interpretation was correct. I said that, as regards the circumstances to which he had alluded, we had only to look to the United States’ Government, and could not look beyond it. He would remember that at almost our first interview on my accession to office I had proposed to him to endeavour to procure the continuation of the recent arrangement for a year, although that arrangement was disadvantageous to Canada in that it gave the United States all it wanted, and gave Canada nothing in return. We had also pressed on the United States’ Government the issue of a Joint Commission to investigate the matter, and that had also been refused. Further, on the 24th May, I made a proposal, personally indeed, but with all the weight which my official character could give, that Canadian action should be suspended, and negotiations should commence, and to this I had received no reply. In these circumstances, I could not feel that Her Majesty’s Government had been wanting in methods of conciliation, and I begged him to send me his statement of his case as quickly as possible, for in the meantime there was such unanimity among our Legal Advisers as to the interpretation of the Treaty of 1818 that I had nothing to submit to them. As regards the cases themselves, I had as yet no details, but was in possession of the Bill or of the Circular to which Mr. Bayard’s recent telegram referred.

Governor General to Earl Granville, K. G.

QUEBEC, 14th June, 1886.

My Lord,—I have the honour to enclose herewith a certified copy of an approved report of my Privy Council upon Mr. Bayard’s notes of the 10th and 20th May, dealing with the seizure of the American fishing vessel “David J. Adams,” and the questions affecting the rights of United States’ fishermen within the territorial waters of the Dominion, which have arisen in consequence of that seizure.

2. The report bears the strongest testimony to the desire of my Government, not only to avoid any action which might unnecessarily interrupt the amicable and neighbourly relations of the two countries, but also to establish, if possible, upon a wider and mutually advantageous basis the commercial relations of Canada and the United States.

3. Your Lordship will observe that whatever action has been resorted to by the Dominion Government has been taken solely with the object of maintaining valuable rights secured to the subjects of Her Majesty by contracts entered into by the Imperial Government, and by legislation carrying out the terms of those contracts. The report expresses the conviction of my Government that such legislation, together with the administrative acts of those to whom has been entrusted the duty of giving effect to it, are not as the Secretary of State of the United States has asserted, usurpations of power on the part of the Canadian Legislature or of the Canadian Executive, but clearly within the competence of both.

4. In another portion of the report Your Lordship will find a statement of the reasons for which it is hold that the provisions of the Convention of 1818 have not, as Mr. Bayard appears to suppose, been superseded or rendered of doubtful validity by subsequent laws or regulations affecting the trade of the two countries, but that they are still undoubtedly in force, and it is pointed out that now that the Convention has been once more brought into operation by the action, not of the Dominion, but of the United States, the Government of this country cannot consistently with its duty abandon or suspend any of the privileges secured by that Convention to its people.

5. Your Lordship will find that a full, and, I trust, satisfactory explanation has been given of the circumstances under which the “David J. Adams” was seized, and of the conduct of the officers of the Canadian Fisheries Police in dealing with that vessel. I may in conclusion again remind Your Lordship that in none of the cases to which Mr. Bayard’s complaints have reference, has there been any interference with vessels other than those engaged in the fishing industry, and that there has never been any desire on the part of the Canadian Government in any way whatever to restrict the intercourse of other trading vessels frequenting the waters of the Dominion.

CERTIFIED COPY OF A REPORT OF A COMMITTEE OF THE HONOURABLE THE PRIVY COUNCIL, APPROVED BY HIS EXCELLENCY THE GOVERNOR GENERAL IN COUNCIL ON THE 14th JUNE, 1886.

The Committee of the Privy Council have had under consideration a report from the Minister of Marine and Fisheries upon the communications, under date the 10th and 20th May last, from the Hon. Mr. Bayard, Secretary of State of the United States, to Her Majesty’s Minister at Washington, in reference to the seizure of the American fishing vessel “David J. Adams.”

The Hon. David J. Adams.

[Adams’ letter to Bayard, cited in the report.]
The Committee concur in the annexed report, and they advise that Your Excellency be moved to transmit a copy thereof, if approved, to the Right Hon. the Secretary of State for the Colonies. All which is respectfully submitted for Your Excellency's approval.

(Sd.) JOHN J. McGEE,
Clerk, Privy Council for Canada.

Report of the Minister of Marine and Fisheries.

[Enclosure No. 2]

The undersigned, having had his attention called by Your Excellency to a communication from Mr. Bayard, Secretary of State of the United States, dated the 10th May, and addressed to Her Majesty’s Minister at Washington, in reference to the seizure of the American fishing vessel "David J. Adams," begs leave to submit the following observations thereon:—

Your Excellency's Government fully appreciates and reciprocates Mr. Bayard’s desire that the administration of the laws regulating the commercial interests and the mercantile marine of the two countries might be such as to promote good feeling and mutual advantage. Canada has given many indisputable proofs of an earnest desire to cultivate and extend her commercial relations with the United States, and it may be without notice to recapitulate some of those proofs.

For many years before 1854 the Maritime Provinces of British North America had complained to Her Majesty's Government of the continuous invasion of their inshore fisheries (sometimes accompanied, it was alleged, with violence) by American fishermen and fishing vessels.

Much irritation naturally ensued, and it was felt to be expedient by both Governments to put an end to this unseemly state of things by treaty, and at the same time to arrange for enlarged trade relations between the United States and the British North American Colonies. The Reciprocity Treaty of 1854 was the result by which not only were our inshore fisheries opened to the Americans, but provision was made for the free interchange of the principal natural products of both countries, including those of the sea.

Peace was preserved in our waters, and the volume of international trade steadily increased during the existence of this treaty, and until it was terminated in 1866—not by Great Britain, but by the United States.

In the following year Canada (then become a Dominion, and united to Nov. Scotia and New Brunswick) was thrown back on the Convention of 1818, and obliged to fit out a Marine Police to enforce the laws and defend her rights. Still desiring, however, to cultivate friendly relations with her great neighbour, and not too suddenly to deprive American fishermen of their accustomed fishing grounds and means of livelihood, she readily acquiesced in the proposal of Her Majesty's Government for the temporary issue of annual licenses to fish, on payment of a moderate fee. Your Excellency is aware of the failure of this scheme. A few licenses were issued at first, but the applications for them soon ceased, and the American fishermen persisted in forcing themselves into our waters without leave or license.

Then came the recurrence, in an aggravated form, of all the troubles which had occurred anterior to the Reciprocity Treaty. There were invasions of our waters, personal conflicts between our fishermen and American crews, the destruction of nets, the seizure and condemnation of vessels, and intense consequent irritation on both sides. This was happily put an end to by the Washington Treaty of 1871. In the interval between the termination of the first treaty and the ratification of that by which it was evidently replaced, Canada on several occasions pressed without success, through the British Minister at Washington, for a renewal of the Reciprocity Treaty, or for the negotiation of another on a still wider basis.

When, in 1874, Sir Edward Thornton, then British Minister at Washington, and the late Sir John A. Macdonald, of Toronto, were appointed joint Plenipotentiaries for the purpose of negotiating and concluding a treaty relating to "Fisheries, Commerce and Navigation," a provisional treaty was arranged by them with the United States' Government, but the Senate decided that it was not expedient to ratify it, and the negotiation fell to the ground.

The Treaty of Washington, while it failed to restore the provisions of the Treaty of 1854 for reciprocal free trade (except in fish), at least kept the peace, and there was tranquillity along our shores until July, 1885, when it was terminated again by the United States' Government and not by Great Britain.

With a desire to show that she wished to be a good neighbour and in order to prevent loss and disappointment on the part of the United States' Fishermen by their sudden exclusion from her waters in the middle of the fishing season, Canada continued to allow them for six months all the advantages which the rescinded Fishery clauses had previously given them, although her people received from the United States none of the corresponding advantages which the Treaty of 1871 had declared to be an equivalent for the benefits secured thereby to the American Fishermen.

The President in return for this courtesy promised to recommend to Congress the appointment of a joint commission by the two Governments of the United Kingdom and the United States to consider the Fishery Question, with permission also to consider the whole state of the Trade relations between the United States and Canada.

This promise was fulfilled by the President, but the Senate rejected his recommendation and refused to sanction the Commission.

Under these circumstances, Canada, having exhausted every effort to procure an amicable arrangement has been driven again to fall back upon the Convention of 1818, the provisions of which she is now enforcing and will enforce in no punitive or hostile spirit, as Mr. Bayard supposes, but solely in protection of her Fisheries, and in vindication of the rights secured to her by Treaty.

Mr. Bayard suggests that "the Treaty of 1818 was between two nations, the United States of America and Great Britain, who, as the contracting parties, can alone apply authoritative interpretation thereto, and enforce the provisions by appropriate legislation."

As it may be inferred from this statement that the right of the Parliament of Canada to make enactments for the protection of the Fisheries of the Dominion, and the power of the Canadian officers to protect those Fisheries, are questioned, it may be well to state at the outset the grounds upon which it is conceived by the undersigned that the jurisdiction in question is clear beyond a doubt.

(1.) In the first place the undersigned would ask it to be remembered that the extent of the jurisdiction of the Parliament of Canada is not limited (nor was that of the Province before the Union) to the sea coast, but extends for three marine miles from the shore as to all matters over which any Legislative authority can in any country be exercised within that space. The legislation which has been adopted on this subject by the Parliament of Canada (and previously to Confederation by the Province) does not reach beyond that limit. It may be assumed that in the absence of any treaty stipulation to the contrary this right is so well recognized and established by both British and American law, that the grounds on which it is supported need not be stated here at large. The undersigned will merely add, therefore, to this statement on the position, that so far from the right being limited by the Convention of 1818 that Convention expressly recognizes it.

After renouncing the liberty to "take, cure or dry fish on or within three marine miles of any of the coasts, bays, creeks or harbours of Her Majesty's Dominions in America," there is a stipulation that while American fishing vessels shall be admitted to enter such bays, &c., "for the purpose of shelter and of repairing damages therein, of purchasing wood and of obtaining water," they shall be under such restrictions as may be necessary to prevent their taking, curing or drying fish therein, or in any other manner abusing the privileges reserved to them.

(2.) "Appropriate legislation" on this subject was, in the first instance, adopted by the Parliament of the United Kingdom. The Imperial Statute 59 George III, chap. 36, was enacted in the year following the Convention in order to give full effect to the Convention and effect. That Statute declared that except for the purposes before specified it should "not be lawful for any person or persons, not being a natural born subject of His Majesty, in any foreign ship, vessel or boat, nor for any person in any ship, vessel or boat, other than such as shall be navigated according to the laws of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland, to fish for, or to take, dry or cure any fish or any kind whatever within three marine miles of any coasts, bays, creeks or harbours whatever in any part of His Majesty's Dominions in America, not included within the limits specified and described in the First Article of the said Convention, and that if such foreign ship, vessel or boat or any persons on board thereof, shall be found fishing, or to have been fishing, or preparing to fish within such distance of such coasts, bays, creeks or harbours within such parts of His Majesty's Dominions in America, out of the said limits as aforesaid, all such ships, vessels and boats together with their cargoes and all guns, ammunition, tackle, apparel, furniture and stores, shall be forfeited and shall and may be seized, taken, sued for, prosecuted, recovered and condemned by such and the like ways, means and methods and in the same courts as ships, vessels or boats may be forfeited, seized, prosecuted and condemned for any offence against any laws relating to the Revenue of Customs or the laws of trade and navigation, under any Act or Acts of the Parliament of Great Britain or of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland; provided that nothing contained in this Act shall apply, or be construed to apply to the ships, or subjects of any Power, State or in amity with His Majesty, who are entitled by treaty with His Majesty to any privilege of taking, drying or curing fish on the coasts, bays, creeks or harbours, or within the limits in this Act described, provided always, that it shall and may be lawful for..." any fisherman of the said United States to enter into any such bays or harbours of His Late safety's Dominions in America as are last mentioned for the purpose of shelter and repairing damages therein, of purchasing wood, and of obtaining water, and for no other purpose however; subject nevertheless to such restrictions as may be necessary to prevent such vessel or vessels from being used by His Majesty's Dominions for military or naval purposes.

The Acts passed by the Provinces now forming Canada, and also by the Parliament of Canada (now noted in the margin) are to the same effect, and may be said to be merely declaratory of the law as established by the Imperial Statute.

(3.) The authority of the Legislatures of the Provinces, and after Confederation, the Parliament of Canada, to make enactments to enforce the provisions of the Constitution, as well as the authority of Canadian officials to enforce those Acts, rests on well established constitutional principles.

Those Legislatures existed, and the Parliament of Canada now exists, by the authority of the Parliament of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland, which is one of the powers referred to by Mr. Bayard as the "contracting parties." The Colonial Statutes received the sanction of the British Sovereign, who and not the nation is actually the power with whom the United States made the Convention. The officers who are engaged in enforcing the Acts of Canada or the laws of England are Her Majesty's officers, whether their authority emanates directly from the Queen or from her representative the Government.

The jurisdiction thus exercised cannot, therefore, be properly decried in the language used by Mr. Bayard as a supposed and therefore unquestionable delegation of jurisdiction by the general Government of Great Britain. Her Majesty governs in Canada as well as in Great Britain, the officers of Canada and her officers, the Statutes of Canada are her Statutes, passed with the advice of Her Parliament sitting in Canada.

It is, therefore, an error to conceive that because the United States and Great Britain in the first instance the contracting parties to the Treaty of 1818, no questions arising thereunder can be "responsibly dealt with" either by the Parliament or by the Legislature of the Dominion.

The raising of this objection now is the more remarkable as the Government of the United States has long been aware of the necessity of reference to the Colonial Legislatures in matters affecting their interests. The Treaties of 1854 and 1871 expressly provide that so far can be called that nothing may be forfeited, to the Revenue by the Parliament of the United States. They have not destroyed that nothing may be forfeited, to the Revenue of the British governors of any Province, with his Majesty's officers or officers, or by the provisions of the Treaty, the clear and long established provisions of the Imperial Status and of the Statutes of Canada, expressed in almost the same language.

The proceedings which have been taken to carry out the law of the Empire in the present case, are the same as those which have been taken from time to time during the period in which the Convention has been in force, and the seizures of vessels have been made under process of the Imperial Court of Vice-Admiralty established in the Provinces of Canada.

Mr. Bayard further observes that since the Treaty of 1818, "a series of laws and regulations affecting the trade between the North American Provinces and the United States have been respectively adopted by the two countries, and have led to amicable and mutually beneficial relations between their respective inhabitants," and that "the independent and yet concurrent action of the two Governments has affected a gradual extension from time to time of the provisions of Article 1, of the Convention of July 3, 1815, providing for reciprocal liberty of commerce between the United States and the Territories of Great Britain in Europe, so as gradually to include the Colonial Possessions of Great Britain in North America and the West Indies within the limits of that Treaty."

The undersigned has not been able to discover in the instances given by Mr. Bayard any evidence that "the laws and regulations affecting the trade between the British North American Provinces and the United States," or that "the independent and yet concurrent action of the two Governments" have either extended or restricted the terms of the Convention of 1818, or affected in any way the right to enforce its provisions according to the plain meaning of the articles of the Treaty. On the contrary a reference to the 168 article of the Washington Treaty will show that the contracting parties made the Convention the basis of the terms or privileges granted by the Treaty, and it does not allege that its provisions are in any way extended or affected by subsequent legislation or acts of administration.

Mr. Bayard has referred to the proclamation of President Jackson, in 1830, creating reciprocal commercial intercourse "on terms of perfect equality of flag" between the United States and the British American dependencies, and has suggested that these "commercial privileges have since received a large extension, and that in some cases favours have been granted by the United States without equivalent concession," such as "the exemption granted by the Shipping Act of June 26, 1834 amounting to one-half of the regular tonnage dues on all vessels from British North America and West Indies entering ports of the United States."

He has also mentioned under this head "the arrangements for the transit of goods, and the remission by proclamation as to certain British ports and places, of the remainder of the tonnage tax, on evidence of equal treatment being enjoyed by United States vessels."

The proclamation of President Jackson, in 1830, had no relation to the subject of the fisheries, and merely had the effect of opening "United States' ports to British vessels on terms similar to those which had already been granted in British ports to vessels of the United States. The object of these "laws and regulations," mentioned by Mr. Bayard, was purely of a commercial character, while the sole purpose of the Convention of 1818 was to establish and define the rights of the citizens of the two countries in relation to the fisheries on the British North American coast.

Bearing this distinction in mind, however, it may be conceded that substantial assistance has been given to the development of commercial intercourse between the two countries. But legislation in that direction has not been confined to the Government of the United States, as indeed Mr. Bayard has admitted, in referring to the case of the Imperial Shipping and Navigation Act of 1849.

For upwards of forty years, as has already been stated, Canada has continued to enjoy her desire for a free exchange of the chief products of the two countries. She has repeatedly urged the desirability of the fuller reciprocity of trade, which was established during the period in which the Treaty of 1854 was in force.

The laws of Canada, with regard to the registry of vessels, tonnage dues, and shipping generally, are more liberal than those of the United States. The ports of Canada in Indian waters are free to vessels of the United States, which are admitted to the use of her cays on equal terms with Canadian vessels.

Canada allows free registry to ships built in the United States and purchased by British citizens, charges no tonnage or light dues on United States' shipping, and extends a standing invitation for a large measure of reciprocity in trade by her tariff legislation.

Whatever relevancy therefore the argument may have to the subject under consideration, the under-judged submits that the concessions which Mr. Bayard refers to as "favors" granted by the United States can hardly be said not to have been met by equivalent concessions on the part of the Dominion, and inasmuch as the disposition of Canada continues to be the same as was evinced in the friendly legislation just referred to, it would seem that Mr. Bayard's charges of showing "hostility to commerce under the guise of protection to fisheries, unfavourable to the maritime rights of the United States," are unfounded.

The provisions and regulations are prior to the time of the Treaty and exist in numerous instances. But admission of the facts, that some of the preceding provisions have been subsequently modified, does not affect the rights of the United States, as it is in the power of the Government of the United States to make such exceptions to its own laws as the case may require, and the provisions of the Convention have the force of law in the United States.

The undersigned has been unable to discover in the instances given by Mr. Bayard any evidence that "the laws and regulations affecting the trade between the British North American Provinces and the United States," or that "the independent and yet concurrent action of the two Governments" have either extended or restricted the terms of the Convention of 1818, or affected in any way the right to enforce its provisions according to the plain meaning of the articles of the Treaty.
The questions which were in controversy between Great Britain and the United States, prior to 1818, related not to shipping and commerce, but to the claims of United States' fishermen to fish in some of the bays and inlets adjacent to the British North American Provinces.

These questions were definitely settled by the Convention of that year, and although the terms of that Convention have since been twice suspended, first by the Treaty of 1854, and subsequently by that of 1871, and after the lapse of each of these two treaties the provisions made in 1818 came again into operation, and were carried out by the Imperial and Colonial authorities without the slightest doubt being raised as to their being in full force and vigour.

Mr. Bayard's contention that the effect of the legislation which has taken place under the Convention of 1818, and of Executive action thereunder, would be "to expand the restrictions and renunciations of that treaty, which related solely to inshore fishing, within the three mile limit, so as to affect the deep sea fisheries," and "to diminish and practically destroy the privileges expressly secured to American vessels to visit these inshore waters for the object of shelter and repair of damages, and purchasing wood and obtaining water," appears to the undersigned to be unfounded. The legislation referred to in no way affects these privileges, nor has the Government of Canada taken any action towards their restriction.

The undersigned is of opinion that while for the reasons which he has advanced there is no evidence to show that the Government of Canada has sought to expand the scope of the Convention of 1818, or to increase the extent of its restrictions, it would not be difficult to prove that the construction which the United States seek to place on that Convention would not have the effect of extending very largely the privileges which their citizens enjoy under its terms. The contention that the changes which may from time to time occur in the habits of the fish taken off our coasts, or in the methods of taking them, should be regarded as justifying a periodical revision of the terms of the treaty, or a new interpretation of its provisions, could not be sustained. Such changes may from time to time render the conditions of the contract inconvenient to one party or the other, but the validity of the agreement can hardly be said to depend on the convenience or inconvenience which it imposes from time to time on one or other of the contracting parties. When the operation of its provisions can be shown to have become manifestly inequitable, the utmost that good will and fair dealing can suggest is that the terms should be re-considered and a new arrangement entered into, but this the Government of the United States does not appear to have considered desirable.

It is not however the case that the Convention of 1818 affected only the inshore fisheries of the British Provinces; it was framed with the object of affording a complete and exclusive definition of the rights and liberties which the fishermen of the United States were hitherto in following their vocation so far as these rights could be affected by facilities for access to the shores or waters of the British Provinces or for intercourse with their people. It is therefore no undue expansion of the scope of that Convention to interpret strictly those of its provisions by which such access is denied, except to vessels requiring it for the purposes specifically described.

Such an undue expansion would, upon the other hand, certainly take place, if, under cover of its provisions, or of any agreements relating to general commercial intercourse which may have since been made, permission were accorded to United States' fishermen to resort habitually to the harbours of the Dominion, not for the sake of seeking safety for their vessels or for avoiding risk of human life, but in order to use these harbours as a general base for access from which to prosecute and organize with greater advantage to themselves the industry in which they are engaged. It is in order to guard against such an abuse of the provisions of the treaty that amongst others was included the stipulation that not only should the inshore fisheries be reserved to British fishermen but that the United States should renounce the right of their fishermen to enter the bays or harbours, excepting for the four specified purposes, which do not include the purchase of bait or other appliances, whether intended for the deep sea fisheries or not.

Mr. Bayard suggests that the possession by a fishing vessel of a permit to "touch and trade" should give her a right to enter Canadian ports, for other than the purposes named in the treaty, or, in other words, should give her perfect immunity from its provisions.

This must amount to a practical repeal of the treaty, because it would enable a United States' Collector of Customs by issuing a license originally intended for purposes of domestic customs regulation to give exemption from the treaty to every United States' fishing vessel. The observation that similar vessels under the British flag have the right to enter the ports of the United States for the purchase of supplies, losses her force when it is remembered that the Convention of 1818 contained no restrictions on British vessels, and no renunciation of any privileges in regard to them.

Mr. Bayard states that in the proceedings prior to the Treaty of 1818 the British Commissioners proposed that United States' fishing vessels should be excluded "from carrying also merchandise," but that their proposition "being resisted by the American negotiators, was abandoned"; and goes on to say: "This fact would seem clearly to indicate that the business of fishing did not then, and does not now, disqualify vessels from also trading in the regular ports of entry." A reference to the proceedings alluded to will show that the proposition mentioned related only to United States vessels visiting those portions of the coast of Labrador and Newfoundland on which the American fishermen had been granted the right to fish and to land for drying and curing fish, and the rejection of the proposal can at the utmost be supposed only to indicate that the liberty to carry merchandise might exist without objection in relation to these coasts, and is no ground for supposing that the right extends to the regular ports of entry, against the express words of the treaty.

The British negotiators went a step further. The British negotiators went a step further: "It is therefore well understood that the liberty of taking, drying and curing fish, granted in the preceding part of this article, shall not be construed to extend to any privilege of carrying on trade with any of His Britannic Majesty's subjects residing within the limits hereinafter assigned for the use of the fishermen of the United States."

It was also proposed to limit them to having on board such goods as might be necessary for the prosecution of the fishery or the support of the fishermen while engaged therein, or in the prosecution of their voyages to and from the fishing grounds.

To this the American negotiators objected on the ground that the search for contraband goods and the liability to seizure for having them in possession would expose the fishermen to endless vexation, and in consequence the proposal was abandoned. It is apparent, therefore, that this proviso in no way referred to the bays or harbours outside these limits assigned to the fishermer men from which bays and harbours it was agreed, both before and after this proposition was discussed, that United States' fishing vessels were to be excluded for all purposes except than for shelter and repairs and purchasing wood and obtaining water.

If, however, weight is to be given to Mr. Bayard's argument that the rejection of a proposition not acted upon by either side during the course of the negotiations, should be held a sufficient interpretation adverse to the tenor of such proposition, that argument may certainly be held to prove that American fishing vessels were not intended to the right to enter Canadian waters for bait to be used even in the prosecution of the deep sea fisheries. The United States' negotiators in 1818, made the proposition that the words, "and bait," be added to the enumeration of the objects for which their fishermen might be allowed to enter and the proviso as first submitted had read: "Provided, however, that American fishermen shall be permitted to enter such bays and harbours for the purpose only of obtaining shelter, wood, water and bait." The addition of the two last words was, however, resisted by the British Plenipotentiaries and their omission acceded in by their American colleagues. It is moreover to be observed that this proposition could only have had reference to the deep sea fishing, because the inshore fisheries had already been specifically renounced by the representatives of the United States.

In addition to this evidence it must be remembered that the Government of the United States, administered by them throughout, considered the treaty, in the words of the case submitted by them before the Halifax Commission in 1877, that neither the Convention of 1818 nor the treaty of Washington conferred any right or privilege of trading on American fishermen. The British case claimed compensation for the privileges which had been given since the ratification of the latter treaty to United States' vessels to transfer cargoes, to outfit vessels, buy supplies, obtain ice, engage sailors, procure bait and traffic generally in British ports and harbours.

This claim was however successfully resisted, and in the United States case it is maintained: That the various incidental and reciprocal advantages of the treaty, such as the privileges of traffic, purchasing bait and other supplies, are not the subject of compensation, because the Treaty of Washington confers no such rights on the inhabitants of the United States, who now enjoy them merely by sufferance, and who can at any time be deprived... them by the enforcement of existing laws or the re-enactment of former oppressive statutes. Moreover the treaty does not provide for any possible compensation for such privileges.

Now the existing laws referred to in this extract are the various statutes passed by the Imperial and Colonial Legislatures to give effect to the Treaty of 1818, which it is admitted in the said case could at any time have been enforced (even during the existence of the Washington Treaty) if the Canadian authorities had chosen to do so.

Mr. Bayard on more than one occasion intimates that the interpretation of the treaty and its enforcement are dictated by local and hostile feelings, and that the main question is being obscured by partisan advocacy and disturbed by the heat of local interest, and in conclusion expresses a hope that "ordinary commercial intercourse shall not be interrupted by harsh measures and unfriendly administration."

The undersigned desires emphatically to state that it is not the wish of the Government or the people of Canada to interrupt for a moment the most friendly and free commercial intercourse with the neighbouring Republic.

The mercantile vessels and the commerce of the United States have at present exactly the same freedom that the have for years passed enjoyed in Canada, and the disposition of the Canadian Government is to extend reciprocal trade with the United States beyond its present limits, nor can it be admitted that the charge of local prejudice or hostile feeling is justified by the claim enforced, through the legal tribunals of the country of the plain terms of a treaty between Great Britain and the United States and of the Statutes which have been in operation for nearly seventy years excepting in intervals during which (until an end to be put by the United States Government) special and more liberal provisions existed in relation to the commerce and fisheries of the two countries.

The undersigned has further to call attention to the letter of Mr. Bayard of the 20th May, relating also to the seizure of the "David J. Adams" in the port of Digby, Nova Scotia.

That vessel was seized, as has been explained on a previous occasion, by the commander of the Canadian steamer "Lansdowne," under the following circumstances:

The vessel was seized, as has been explained on a previous occasion, by the commander of the Canadian steamer "Lansdowne," under the following circumstances:

He was a United States fishing vessel and entered the port of Digby for purposes other than those for which entry is permitted by the treaty and by the Imperial and Canadian Statutes.

As soon as practicable, legal process was obtained from the Vice-Admiralty Court at Halifax, and the vessel was delivered to the officer of that Court. The paper referred to in Mr. Bayard's letter as having been nailed to her mast, was doubtless a copy of the warrant which commanded the Marshall or his deputy to make the arrest.

The undersigned is informed there was no intention whatever of so adjusting the paper that its contents could not be read, but it is doubtless correct that the officer of the Court in charge declined to allow the document to be removed. Both the United States Consul General and the captain of the "David J. Adams" were made acquainted with the reasons for the seizure, and the only ground for the statement that a respectful application to ascertain the nature of the complaint was fruitless, was that the commander of the "Lansdowne," after the nature of the complaint had been stated to those concerned, and was published and had become notorious to the people of both countries, declined to give the United States Consul General a specific and precise statement of the charges upon which the vessel would be proceeded against, but referred him to his superior.

Such conduct on the part of the officer of the "Lansdowne" can hardly be said to have been "extraordinary" under the present circumstances.

The legal proceedings had at that time been commenced in the Court of Vice-Admiralty at Halifax where the United States Consul General resides, and the officer at Digby could not have stated with precision, as he was called upon to do, the grounds on which the intervention of the Court had been claimed in the proceedings therein.

There was not in this instance the slightest difficulty in the United States Consul General and those interested in the vessel obtaining the fullest information, and no information which could have been given by those to whom they applied was withheld.

Apart from the general knowledge of the offences which it was claimed the master had committed, and which was furnished at the time of the seizure, the most technical and precise details were readily obtainable at the registry of the Court and from the solicitors for the Crown, and would have been furnished immediately upon application to the authority to whom the commander of the "Lansdowne" requested the United States Consul General to apply. No such information could have been obtained from the paper attached to the vessel's master. Instructions have, however, been given to the Commander of the "Lansdowne" and other officers of the Marine Police that in the event of any further seizures a statement in writing shall be given to the master of the seized vessel of the offences for which the vessel may be detained, and that a copy thereof shall be sent to the United States Consul General at Halifax, and to the nearest United States Consular Agent, and there can be no objection to the solicitor for the Crown being instructed likewise to furnish the Consul.
General with a copy of the legal process in such case, if it can be supposed that any fuller information will thereby be given.

Mr. Bayard is correct in his statement of the reasons for which the "David J. Adams" was seized and is now held. It is claimed that that vessel violated the Treaty of 1818, and consequently the Statutes which exist for the enforcement of that Treaty, and it is also claimed that she violated the Customs laws of 1883.

The undersigned recommends that copies of these Statutes be furnished for the information of Mr. Bayard.

Mr. Bayard has in the same despatch recalled the attention of Her Majesty's Minister to the correspondence and action which took place in the year 1870, when the Fishery Question was under consideration, and especially to the instructions from the Lords of the Admiralty to Vice Admiral Wellesley, in which that officer, was directed to observe great caution in the arrest of American fishermen and to confine his action to one class of offences against the Treaty. Mr. Bayard, however, appears to have attached unwarranted importance to the correspondence and instructions of 1870 when he refers to them as implying an "understanding between the two Governments;" an understanding which should, in his opinion, at other times and under other circumstances, govern the conduct of the authorities, whether Imperial or Colonial, to whom under the laws of the Empire, is committed the duty of enforcing the Treaty in question.

When, therefore, Mr. Bayard points out the "absolute and instant necessity that now exists for a restriction of the seizure of American vessels charged with violations of the Treaty of 1818," to the conditions specified under these instructions it is necessary to recall the fact that in the year 1870 the principal cause of complaint on the part of Canadian fishermen was that the American vessels were trespassing on the inshore fishing grounds and interfering with the catch of mackerel in Canadian waters, the purchase of bait being then a matter of secondary importance.

It is probable that the action of the Imperial Government was influenced very largely by the prospect which then existed of an arrangement such as was accomplished in the following year by the Treaty of Washington, and that it may be inferred, in view of the disposition made apparent on both sides to arrive at such an understanding, that the Imperial authorities, without any surrender of Imperial or Colonial rights, and without acquiescing in any limited construction of the Treaty, instructed the Vice Admiral to confine his seizures to the more open and injurious class of offences which were especially likely to be brought within the cognizance of the naval officers of the Imperial service.

The Canadian Government, as has already been stated, for six months lost its fishing grounds open to American fishermen, without any corresponding advantage in return, in order to prevent loss to those fishermen and to afford time for the action of Congress on the President's recommendation that a joint commission should be appointed to consider the whole question relating to the fisheries.

That recommendation has been rejected by Congress. Canadian fish is, by prohibitory duties, excluded from the United States' market. The American fishermen clamour against the removal of these duties, and in order to maintain a monopoly of the trade, continue against all law to force themselves into our waters and harbours and make our shores their base for supplies, especially of bait, which is necessary to the successful prosecution of their business.

They hope by this course to supply the demand for their home market, and thus to make Canada indirectly the means of injuring her own trade.

It is surely, therefore, not unreasonable that Canada should insist on the rights secured to her by Treaty. She is simply acting on the defensive, and no trouble can arise between the two countries if American fishermen will only recognize the provisions of the Convention of 1818 as obligatory upon them, and, until a new arrangement is made, abstain both from fishing in her waters and from visiting her bays and harbours for any purposes save those specified in the Treaty.

In conclusion the undersigned would express the hope that the discussion which has arisen in this question may lead to renewed negotiations between Great Britain and the United States and may have the result of establishing extended trade relations between the Republic and Canada, and of removing all sources of irritation between the two countries.

[Enclosure No. 1.]

Customs Department,
Ottawa, 7th May, 1886.

Sir,—The Government of the United States having by notice terminated Articles 18 to 25, both inclusive, and Article 30, known as the Fishery Articles of the Washington Treaty, attention is called to the following provisions of the Convention between the United States and Great Britain, signed at London, on the 20th October, 1818.:

Article 1st. "Whereas differences have arisen respecting the liberty claimed by the United States, for the inhabitants thereof, to take, dry and cure fish, on certain coasts, bays, harbours and creeks, of His Britannic Majesty's Dominions in America, it is agreed between the said High Contracting Parties, that the inhabitants of the said United States shall have, forever, in common with the subjects of His Britannic Majesty, the liberty to take fish of every kind on any part of the Southern coast of Newfoundland which extends from Cape Bay to the Rameau Island, on the western and northern coast of Newfoundland, from the said Cape Bay to the Quirpon Islands, on the shores of the Magdalen Islands, and also on the coasts, bays, harbours and creeks, of the Southern coast of Newfoundland here above described, and of the coast of Labrador; but so soon as the same, or any portion thereof, shall be settled, it shall not be lawful for the said fishermen to dry or cure fish at such portion so settled, without previous agreement for such purpose, with the inhabitants, proprietors, or possessors of the ground.

"And the United States hereby renounce forever any liberty heretofore enjoyed or claimed by the inhabitants thereof, to take, dry or cure fish, on or within three marine miles, of any of the coasts, bays, creeks or harbours of His Britannic Majesty's dominions in America, not included within the above mentioned limits, provided, however, that the American fishermen shall be admitted to enter such bays or harbours, for the purpose of shelter and or repairing damages therein, of purchasing wood, and of obtaining water, and for no other purpose whatever. But they shall be under such restrictions as may be necessary to prevent their taking, drying or curing fish therein, or in any manner whatever abusing the privileges hereby reserved to them."

Attention is also called to the following provisions of the Act of the Parliament of Canada, Cap. 61, of the Acts of 1868, intituled: "An Act respecting fishing by foreign vessels."

2d. "Any commissioned officer of Her Majesty's Navy, serving on board of any vessel of Her Majesty's Navy, cruising and being in the waters of Canada for the purpose of affording protection to Her Majesty's subjects engaged in the fisheries, or any commissioned officer of Her Majesty's Navy, Fishery Officer, or Stipendiary Magistrate on board of any vessel belonging to or in the service of the Government of Canada and employed in the service of protecting the fisheries or any officer of the Customs of Canada, Sheriff, Magistrate or other person duly commissioned for that purpose, may go on board of any ship, vessel or boat, within any harbour in Canada, or hovering (in British waters) within three marine miles of any of the coasts, bays, creek or harbours in Canada, and stay on board so long as she may remain within such place or distance."
3rd. "If such ship, vessel or boat be bound elsewhere, and shall continue within such harbour, or so hovering for twenty-four hours after the master shall have been required to depart, any one of such officers or persons as are above mentioned may bring such ship, vessel or boat into port and search her cargo, and may also examine the master upon oath touching the cargo and voyage; and if the master or person in command shall not truly answer the questions put to him in such examination, he shall forfeit four hundred dollars; and if such ship, vessel or boat be foreign, or not navigated according to the laws of the United Kingdom or of Canada, and have been found fishing, or preparing to fish, or having been fishing (in British waters) within three marine miles of any of the coasts, bays, creeks or harbours of Canada, not included within the above mentioned limits, without a license, or after the expiration of the period named in the last license granted to such ship, vessel or boat under the first section of this Act, such ship, vessel or boat, and the tackle, rigging, apparel, furniture, stores and cargo thereof shall be forfeited."

4th. "All goods, ships, vessels and boats, and the tackle, rigging, apparel, furniture, stores and cargo liable to forfeiture under this Act, may be seized and secured by any officer or persons mentioned in the second section of this Act; and every person opposing any officer or person in the execution of his duty under this Act, or aiding or abetting any other person in any opposition, shall forfeit eight hundred dollars, and shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and upon conviction be liable to imprisonment for a term not exceeding two years."

Having reference to the above, you are requested to furnish any foreign fishing vessels, boats or fishermen found within three marine miles of the shore, within your district, with a printed copy of the "WARNING" enclosed herewith. If any fishing vessel or boat of the United States is found fishing, or to have been fishing, or preparing to fish, or if hovering within the three mile limit, does not depart within twenty-four hours after receiving such "WARNING," you will please place an Officer on board such vessel, and at once telegraph the facts to the Fisheries Department at Ottawa, and await instructions.

FOREIGN OFFICE, 14th June, 1886.

Sir,—I am directed by the Earl of Rosebery to transmit to you, to be laid before Earl Granville, a copy of a note from the United States Minister at this Court, containing representations respecting the recent seizures of American Fishing Vessels in Canadian Ports, and I am to state that His Lordship has referred this communication, as well as Mr. Bayard’s note enclosed in Sir L. West’s despatch Treaty No. 28 of the 11th ultimo, to the Law Officers of the Crown for any observations they may have to offer in anticipation of the detailed exposition of the views of the Canadian Government which Lord Rosebery hopes may now be received before long.

[Enclosure in No. 2.]

Mr. Phelps to the Earl of Rosebery. (Received June 7.)

LEGATION OF THE UNITED STATES, LONDON, 2nd June, 1886.

MY LORD,—Since the conversation I had the honour to hold with your Lordship on the morning of the 29th ultimo, I have received from my Government a copy of the Report of the Consul General of the United States at Halifax, giving full details and depositions relative to the seizure of the “David J. Adams,” and the correspondence between the Consul General and the Colonial authorities in reference thereto.

The report of the Consul General, and the evidence annexed to it, appear fully to sustain the points I submitted to Your Lordship in the interview above referred to, touching the seizure of this vessel by the Canadian officials.

I do not understand it to be claimed by the Canadian authorities that the vessel seized had been engaged, or was intending to engage, in fishing within any limit prohibited by the Treaty of 1818. The occupation of the vessel was exclusively deep sea fishing, a business in which it had a perfect right to be employed. The ground upon which the capture was made was that the master of the vessel had purchased of an inhabitant of Nova Scotia, near the port of Digby in that Province, a day or two before, a small quantity of bait to be used in fishing in the deep sea, outside the three-mile limit.

The question presented is whether under the terms of the Treaty, and the construction placed upon them in practice for many years by the British Government, and in view of the existing relations between the United States and Great Britain, that transaction affords a sufficient reason for making such a seizure, and for proceeding under it to the confiscation of the vessel and its contents.

I am not unaware that the Canadian authorities, conscious, apparently, that the affirmative of this proposition could not easily be maintained, deemed it advisable to supplement it with a charge against the vessel of a violation of the Canadian Customs Act of 1838, in not reporting her arrival at Digby to the Customs officer. But this charge is not the one on which the vessel was seized, or which must now be principally relied on for its condemnation, and standing alone could hardly, even if well founded, be the source of any controversy. It would be at most, under the circumstances, only an accidental and purely technical breach of a Custom-house Regulations, by which no harm was intended, and from which no harm came, and would, in ordinary cases, be easily condescended on an apology, and perhaps the payment of costs.

But trivial as it is, this charge does not appear to be well founded in point of fact. Digby is a small fishing settlement, and its harbour not defined. The vessel had moved about and anchored in the outer part of the harbour, having no business at or communication with Digby, and no reason for reporting to the officer of Customs.

It appears by the report of the Consul-General to be conceded by the Customs authorities there, that fishing vessels have for forty years been accustomed to go in and out of the bay at pleasure, and have never been required to send ashore and report when they had no business with the port, and made no landing; and that no seizure had ever before been made or claimed against them for so doing.

Can it be reasonably insisted under these circumstances that by the sudden adoption, without notice, of a new rule, a vessel of a friendly nation should be seized and forfeited for doing what all similar vessels had for so long a period been allowed to do without question?

It is sufficiently evident that the claim of a violation of the Customs Act was an afterthought brought forward to give whatever added strength it might to the principal claim on which the seizure had been made.

Recurring, then, to the only real question in the case, whether the vessel is to be forfeited for purchasing bait of an inhabitant of Nova Scotia to be used in lawful fishing, it may be readily admitted that, if the language of the Treaty of 1818 is to be interpreted literally, rather than according to its spirit and plain intent, a vessel engaged in fishing would be prohibited from entering a Canadian port "for any purpose whatever," except to obtain wood or water, to repair damages, or to seek shelter. Whether it would be liable to the extreme penalty of confiscation for a breach of this prohibition, in a trifling and harmless instance, might be quite another question.

Such a literal construction is best refuted by considering its preposterous consequences. If a vessel enters a port to post a letter, or send a telegram, or buy a newspaper, to obtain a physician in case of illness, or a surgeon in case of accident, to land or bring off a passenger, or even to lend assistance to the inhabitants in fire, flood, or pestilence, it would, upon this construction, be held to violate the Treaty stipulations maintained between two enlightened, maritime, and most friendly nations, whose ports are freely open to each other in all other places and under all other circumstances. If a vessel is not engaged in fishing, it might enter all ports. But if employed in fishing not denied to be lawful, she is excluded, though on the most innocent errand. She may buy water, but not food or medicine; wood, but not coal. She may repair rigging, but not purchase a new rope, though the inhabitants are desirous to sell it. If she even entered the port (having no other business) to report herself to the Custom House, as the vessel in question is now seized for not doing, she would be equally within the interdiction of the Treaty. If it be said these are extreme instances of violation of the Treaty, not likely to be insisted on, I reply that no one of them is more extreme than the one relied upon in this case.

I am persuaded that your Lordship will, upon reflection, concur with me that an intention so narrow, and in its results so unreasonable and so unfair, is not to be attributed to the High Contracting Parties who entered into this Treaty.

It seems to me clear that the Treaty must be construed in accordance with those ordinary and well-settled rules applicable to all written instruments, which, without such salutary assistance, must constantly fail of their purpose. By these rules the letter often gives way to the intent, or, rather, is only used to ascertain the intent. The whole document will be taken together, and will be considered in connection with the attendant circumstances, the situa-
These or and the collision, the object in view. And thus the literal meaning of an isolated clause is often shown not to be the meaning really understood or intended.

Upon these principles of construction, the meaning of the clause in question does not seem doubtful. It is a Treaty of friendship, and not of hostility. Its object was to define and protect the relative rights of the people of the two countries in these fisheries, not to establish a system of non-intercourse, or the means of mutual and unnecessary annoyance. It should be judged in view of the general rules of international comity, and of maritime intercourse and usage, and its restrictions considered in the light of the purposes they were designed to serve.

Thus regarded, it appears to me clear that the words, "for no other purpose whatever," as employed in the Treaty, mean no other purposes inconsistent with the provisions of the Treaty, or prejudicial to the interest of the provinces or their inhabitants, and were not intended to prevent the entry of American fishing vessels into Canadian ports for innocent and mutually beneficial purposes, or unnecessarily to restrict the free and friendly intercourse customary between all civilized maritime nations, and especially between the United States and Great Britain. Such, I cannot but believe, is the construction that would be placed upon this Treaty by an enlightened Court of Justice.

But even if it was conceded that the treaty was a private contract instead of an international one, a court, in dealing with an action upon it, might find itself hampered by the letter from giving effect to the intent, that would not be decisive of the present case.

The interpretation of treaties between nations in their intercourse with each other proceeds upon broader and higher considerations. The question is not what is the technical effect of the words, but what is the construction most consonant to the dignity, the just interests, and the friendly relations of the sovereign powers. I submit to your Lordship that a construction so harsh, so unfriendly, so unnecessary, and so irritating as that set up by the Canadian authorities is not such as Her Majesty's Government has been accustomed either to accord or to submit to. It would find no precedent in the history of British diplomacy, and no innovation in any act or assertion, of the Government of the United States.

Customs authority may be divided between the States and the United States when they had not previously been made. Should such authorities be added, and a vessel be engaged in fishing, it may be Treasury of the United States to obtain wood or other supplies to the extreme of necessity, without question it would be an isolated instance, with all the more consequences. In the event of such an occurrence, it is to be observed that the person inhabiting the vessel of the said United States to enter into any such bays or harbours of His Britannic Majesty's dominions in America as are last mentioned, for the purpose of shelter and repairing damages therein, and of purchasing wood and of obtaining water, and for no other purpose whatever; subject, nevertheless, to such restrictions as may be necessary to prevent such fishermen of the said United States from taking, drying, or curing fish in the said bays or harbours, or in any other manner whatever abusing the said privileges by the said treaty and this Act reserved to them, and as shall for that purpose be imposed by any Order or Orders to be from time to time made by His Majesty in Council under the authority of this Act, and any regulations which shall be issued by the Governor, or person exercising the office of Governor, in any such parts of His Majesty's dominions in America, under or in pursuance of any such Order in Council as aforesaid. It further enact as follows:

That if any person or persons, upon requisition made by the Governor of Newfoundland, or the person exercising the office of Governor, or by any Governor or person exercising the office of Governor in any other parts of His Majesty's dominions in America as aforesaid, or by any officer or officers acting under such Governor or person exercising the office of Governor, in the execution of any orders or instructions from His Majesty in Council, shall refuse to depart from such bays or harbours; or if any person or persons shall refuse or neglect to comply with any regulations or directions which shall be made or given for the execution of any of the purposes of this Act; every such person so refusing, or otherwise offending against this Act, shall be liable to the sum of £200, to be recovered, &c.
can fishermen may enter British ports, it provides no forfeiture or penalty for any such entry, unless accompanied either (1) by fishing, or preparing to fish, within the prohibited limits, or (2) by the infringement of restrictions that may be imposed by Orders in Council to prevent such fishing, or the drying or curing of fish, or the abuse of privileges reserved by the treaty; or (3) by a refusal to depart from the bays or harbours upon proper requisition.

It thus plainly appears that it was not the intention of Parliament, nor its understanding of the treaty, that any other entry by an American fishing vessel into a British port should be regarded as an infringement of its provisions, or as affording the basis of proceedings against it.

No other Act of Parliament for the carrying out of this treaty has ever been passed. It is unnecessary to point out that it is not in the power of the Canadian Parliament to enlarge or alter the provisions of the Act of the Imperial Parliament, or to give to the treaty either a construction or a legal effect not warranted by that Act.

But until the effort which I am informed is now in progress in the Canadian Parliament for the passage of a new Act on this subject, introduced since the seizures under consideration, I do not understand that any statute has ever been enacted in that Parliament which attempts to give any different construction or effect to the treaty from that given by the Act of 189 George III.

The only Provincial Statutes which, in the proceedings against the "David J. Adams," that vessel has thus far been charged with infringing are the Colonial Acts of 1868, 1870, and 1883. It is therefore fair to presume that there are no other Colonial Acts applicable to the case, and I know of none.

The Act of 1868, among other provisions not material to this discussion, provides for a forfeiture of foreign vessels "found fishing, or preparing to fish, or to have been fishing in British waters within three marine miles of the coast;" and also provides a penalty of $40 against a master of a foreign vessel within the harbour who shall fail to answer questions put in an examination by the authorities. No other Act is, by this statute, declared to be illegal, and no other penalty or forfeiture is provided for.

The very extraordinary provisions in this statute for facilitating forfeitures, and embarrassing defence against or appeal from them, not material to the present case, would, on no proper occasion, deserve very serious attention.

The Act of 1870 is an amendment of the Act just referred to, and adds nothing to it affecting the present case.

The Act of 1883 has no application to the case, except upon the point of the omission of the vessel to report to the Customs Officer, already considered.

It results, therefore, that, at the time of the seizure of the "David J. Adams" and other vessels, there was no Act whatever, either of the British or Colonial Parliaments, which made the purchase of bait by these vessels illegal or provided for any forfeiture, penalty, or proceedings against them for such transaction. And even if such purchase could be regarded as a violation of that clause of the treaty which is relied on, no law existed under which the seizure could be justified. It will not be contended that Custom House authorities or colonial courts can seize and condemn vessels for a breach of the stipulations of a treaty, when no legislation exists which authorizes them to take cognizance of the subject, and invests them with any jurisdiction in the premises. Of this obvious conclusion the Canadian authorities seem to be quite aware. I am informed that since the seizures they have pressed, or are pressing, through the Canadian Parliament in much haste an Act which is designed, for the first time in the history of the legislation under this treaty, to make the facts upon which the American vessels have been seized illegal, and to authorize proceedings against them therefor.

What the effect of such an Act will be in enlarging the provisions of an existing treaty between the United States and Great Britain need not be considered here. The question under discussion depends upon the treaty, and upon such legislation, warranted by the treaty, as existed when the seizures took place.

The practical construction given to the treaty down to the present time has been in entire accord with the conclusions thus deduced from the Act of Parliament. The British Government has repeatedly refused to allow interference with American fishing vessels unless for illegal fishing, and has given explicit orders to the contrary.

On the 26th May, 1870, Mr. Thornton, the British Minister at Washington, communicated officially to the Secretary of State of the United States copies of the orders addressed by the British Admiralty to Admiral Wellesley, commanding Her Majesty's naval forces on the North American Station, and of a letter from the Colonial Department to the Foreign Office in order that the Secretary might "see the nature of the instructions to be given to Her Majesty and the Canadian officers employed in maintaining order at the fisheries in the neighborhood of the coasts of Canada." Among the documents thus transmitted is a letter from the Foreign Office to the Secretary of the Admiralty, in which the following language is contained:—
"The Canadian Government has recently determined, with the concurrence of Her Majesty’s Ministers, to increase the stringency of the existing practice of dispensing with the warnings hitherto given, and seizing at once any vessel detected in violating the law.

In view of this change, and of the questions to which it may give rise, I am directed by Lord Granville to request that you will move your Lordships to instruct the officers of Her Majesty’s ships employed in the protection of the fisheries that they are not to seize any vessel unless it is evident, and can be clearly proved, that the offence of fishing has been committed, and the vessel itself captured, within three miles of land."

In the letter from the Lords of the Admiralty to Vice-Admiral Wellesley of the 5th May, 1870, in accordance with the foregoing request, and transmitting the letter above quoted from, there occurs the following language:

"My Lords desire me to remind you of the extreme importance of Commanding Officers of the ships selected to protect the fisheries exercising the utmost discretion in carrying out their instructions, paying special attention to Lord Granville’s observation, that no vessel should be seized unless it is evident, and can be clearly proved, that the offence of fishing has been committed, and that the vessel is captured within three miles of land."

Lord Granville, in transmitting to Sir John Young the aforesaid instructions, makes use of the following language:

"Her Majesty’s Government do not doubt that your Ministers will agree with them as to the propriety of these instructions, and will give corresponding instructions to the vessels employed by them."

These instructions were again officially stated by the British Minister at Washington, to the Secretary of State of the United States, in a letter dated the 11th June, 1870.

Again, in February, 1871, Lord Kimberley, Colonial Secretary, wrote to the Governor General of Canada as follows:

"The exclusion of American fishermen from resorting to Canadian ports, except for the purpose of shelter, and of repairing damages therein, purchasing wood, and of obtaining water, might be warranted by the letter of the Treaty of 1818, and by the terms of the Imperial Act 50 Geo. III. cap. 38; but Her Majesty’s Government feel bound to state that it seems to them an extreme measure, inconsistent with the general policy of the Empire, and they are disposed to concede this point to the United States Government, under such restrictions as may be necessary to prevent smuggling, and to guard against any substantial invasion of the exclusive rights of fishing which may be reserved to British subjects."

And in a subsequent letter from the same source to the Governor General, the following language is used:

"I think it right, however, to add that the responsibility of determining what is the true construction of a Treaty made by Her Majesty with any foreign Power must remain with Her Majesty’s Government, and that the degree to which this country would make itself a party to the strict enforcement of the Treaty rights may depend not only on the literal construction of the Treaty, but on the moderation and reasonableness with which these rights are asserted."

I am not aware that any modification of these instructions, or any different rule from that therein contained, has ever been adopted or sanctioned by Her Majesty’s Government.

Judicial authority upon this question is to the same effect. That the purchase of bait by American fishermen in the provincial ports has been a common practice is well known, but in no case, so far as I can ascertain, has a seizure of an American vessel ever been enforced on the ground of the purchase of bait, or of any other supplies. On the hearing before the Halifax Fisheries Commission in 1877-78 this question was discussed, and no case could be produced of any such condemnation. Vessels shown to have been condemned were in all cases adjudged guilty either of fishing, or preparing to fish, within the prohibited limit.

And in the case of the "White Fawn," tried in the Admiralty Court at New Brunswick before Judge Hazen in 1870, I understand it to have been distinctly held that the purchase of bait, unless proved to have been in preparation for illegal fishing, was not a violation of the Treaty nor of any existing law, and afforded no ground for proceedings against the vessel.

But even were it possible to justify on the part of the Canadian authorities the adoption of a construction of the Treaty entirely different from that which has always heretofore prevailed, and to declare those acts criminal which have hitherto been regarded as innocent, upon obvious grounds of reason and justice, and upon common principles of comity to the United States’ Government, previous notice should have been given to it or to the American fishermen of the new and stringent restrictions it was intended to enforce.

If it was the intention of Her Majesty’s Government to recall the instructions which I have shown had been previously and so explicitly given relative to interference with American vessels, surely notice should have been given accordingly.
The United States have just reason to complain, even if these restrictions could be justified by the Treaty, or by the Acts of Parliament passed to carry it into effect, that they should be enforced in so harsh and unfriendly a manner, without notice to the Government of the change of policy, or to the fishermen of the new danger to which they were thus exposed.

In any view, therefore, which it seems to me can be taken of this question, I feel justified in pronouncing the action of the Canadian authorities in seizing and still retaining the "David J. Adams" to be not only unfriendly and discourteous, but altogether unwarrantable. The seizure was much aggravated by the manner in which it was carried into effect. It appears that four or five visits and searches of the vessel were made by boats from the Canadian steamer "Lansdowne" in Annapolis Basin, Nova Scotia. The "Adams" was finally taken into custody, and carried out of the Province of Nova Scotia across the Bay of Fundy and into the port of St. John, New Brunswick; and, without explanation or warning, on the following Monday, the 10th May, taken back by an armed crew to Digby, in Nova Scotia. That, in Digby, the paper alleged to be the legal precept for the capture and detention of the vessel was nailed to her mast in such manner as to prevent its contents being read, and the request of the Captain of the "David J. Adams," and of the United States' Consul General, to be allowed to detach the writ from the mast, for the purpose of learning its contents, was positively refused by the provincial official in charge. Nor was the United States' Consul General able to learn from the Commander of the "Lansdowne" the nature of the complaint against the vessel, and his respectful application to that effect was fruitless.

From all the circumstances attending this case, and other recent cases like it, it seems to me very apparent that the seizure was not made for the purpose of enforcing any right or redressing any wrong. As I have before remarked, it is not pretended that the vessel has been engaged in fishing, or was intended to fish, in the prohibited waters, or that it had done, or was intending to do, any other injurious act. It was proceeding upon its regular and lawful business of fishing in the deep sea. It had received no request, and, of course, could have disregarded any request, to depart, and was in fact departing when seized; nor had a master refused to answer any questions put by the authorities.

It had violated no existing law, and had incurred no penalty that any known statute imposed.

It seems to me impossible to escape the conclusion that this and other similar seizures were made by the Canadian authorities for the deliberate purpose of harassing and embarrassing the American fishing vessels in the pursuit of their lawful employment, and the injury which would have been a serious one if committed under a mistake, is very much aggravated by the motives which appear to have prompted it.

I am instructed by my Government earnestly to protest against these proceedings as wholly unwarranted by the Treaty of 1818, and altogether inconsistent with the friendly relations hitherto existing between the United States and Her Majesty's Government; to request that the "David J. Adams" and the other American fishing vessels now under seizure in Canadian ports be immediately released; and that proper orders may be issued to prevent similar proceedings in the future; and I am also instructed to inform you that the United States will hold Her Majesty's Government responsible for all losses which may be sustained by American citizens in the dispossess of their property growing out of the search, seizure, detention, or sale of their vessels lawfully within the territorial waters of British North America.

The general source of the difficulty that has arisen is well understood. It is to be found in the irritation that has taken place among a portion of the Canadian people on account of the termination, by the United States' Government, of the Treaty of Washington on the 1st July last, whereby fish imported from Canada into the United States, and which, so long as that Treaty remained in force, was admitted free, is now liable to the import duty provided by the General Revenue Laws. And the opinion appears to have gained ground in Canada that the United States may be driven, by harassing and annoying their fishermen, into the adoption of a new Treaty by which Canadian fish shall be admitted free.

It is not necessary to say that this scheme is likely to prove as mistaken in policy as it is indefensible in principle. In terminating the Treaty of Washington the United States were simply exercising a right expressly reserved to both parties by the Treaty itself, and of the exercise of which by either party neither can complain. They will not be coerced by wanton injury into the making of a new one. Nor would a negotiation that had its origin in mutual irritation be promising of success. The question now is not what fresh Treaty may or might be desirable, but what is the true and just construction, as between the two nations, of the Treaty that already exists.

The Government of the United States, approaching this question in the most friendly spirit, cannot doubt that it will be met by Her Majesty's Government in the same spirit, and feels every confidence that the action of Her Majesty's Government in the premises will be such as to maintain the cordial relations between the two countries that have so long happily prevailed.

Lord Lansdowne to Earl Granville.

26th June, 1886.

Your Lordship's telegrams of the 24th inst. have been received. It was decided by the Vice-Admiralty Court in 1871 that the buying of bait was evidence of preparing to fish. The master of the "D. J. Adams" having purchased bait, that vessel becomes liable under the Imperial Statute of 1819, section 2. There is also a Canadian Statute to the same effect. The master of the "Adams" is also liable to a penalty for entering Canadian waters for a purpose which the Convention of 1818 does not recognize. The vessel is liable also under the Customs Act until the penalty of $400 for not making proper entry at the Custom House has been paid. Nothing concerning the "Annie M. Jordan" is known here.

[Enclosure No. 4.]

Mr. Bayard to Sir L. West.

WASHINGTON, 14th June, 1886.

Sir,—The Consul General, of the United States, at Halifax, communicates to me the information derived by him from the Collector of Customs at that port, to the effect that American fishing vessels will not be permitted to land fish at that port of entry for transportation, in bond, across the Province.

I have also to inform you that the masters of the American fishing vessels of Gloucester, Mass., "Martha A. Bradley," "Rattler," "Eliza Boynton" and "Pioneer," have severally reported to the Consul General, at Halifax, that the Sub-Collector of Customs, at Canso, has warned them to keep outside an imaginary line drawn from a point three miles outside Canso Head to a point three miles outside St. Esprit, on the Cape Breton coast, a distance of forty miles. This line, for nearly its entire continuance, is distant twelve to twenty-five miles from the coast. The same masters also report that they were warned against going inside an imaginary line drawn from a point three miles outside North Cape, on Prince Edward Island, to a point three miles outside East Point, on the same island, a distance of one hundred miles, and that this last named line was, for nearly that entire distance, about thirty miles from the shore.

The same authority informed the masters of the vessels referred to that they would not be permitted to enter Bay Chaleur.

Such warnings are, as you must be well aware, wholly unwarranted pretensions of extra-territorial authority and usurpation of jurisdiction by the provincial officers.

It becomes my duty in bringing this information to your notice, to request that if any such orders for interference with the unquestionable rights of the American fishermen to pursue their business without molestation, at any point not within three marine miles of the shore, and within the defined limits as to which renunciation of the liberty to fish was expressed in the Treaty of 1818, may have been issued the same way at once, be revoked as a violation of the rights of citizens of the United States under Convention with Great Britain.

I will ask you to bring this subject to the immediate attention of Her Britannic Majesty's Government, to the end that proper remedial orders may be forthwith issued.

It seems most unfortunate and regrettable that questions which have been long since settled between the United States and Great Britain should now be sought to be revived.

No. 111.

LORD LANDSOWNE TO EARL GRANVILLE.

[No. 238.]

CITADEL, QUEBEC, 29th July, 1886.

My Lord,—I have the honour to forward herewith a copy of an approved report of a Committee of the Privy Council in reference to the Act entitled "An Act further to amend the Act respecting fishing by foreign vessels," which was passed at its last session by the Parliament of Canada, and which, as Your Lordship will remember, was referred to me for the signification of Her Majesty's pleasure thereon.

Your Lordship will observe that for the reasons offered by the Minister of Justice my Government recommends that the attention of Her Majesty's Government may be drawn to the necessity for having the Royal Assent given as early a day as possible to the Act above referred to.

Your Lordship has already been fully informed of the circumstances under which this Bill was originally introduced, and which are again recurrent to the report now submitted.

I enclose herewith a copy of clause 17 of the Act No. 85 mentioned by the Minister, and I apprehend that there can be no doubt that should the President at any time determine to issue a proclamation such as that contemplated in the clause Canadian vessels would become liable to seizure and forfeiture in consequence of acts for which, as the law now stands, it might not be possible to enforce the same penalties against vessels of the United States.

I have, &c.,

The Right Honourable
EARL GRANVILLE, K. G.

(Sd.) LANSOWNE.

[Enclosure No. 1.]

"On a Report dated 17th July, 1886, from the Honourable Mr. Thompson, for the Minister of Marine and Fisheries, submitting the following observations in reference to the Act entitled "An Act further to amend the Act respecting fishing by foreign vessels," which was passed at its last session by the Parliament of Canada, and which has been reserved by Your Excellency for the assent of Her Majesty the Queen, a full and careful consideration of the subject with which the Act deals, made apparent the necessity for such a measure for the enforcement within Canadian waters of the statutes, which have been already passed in the Imperial and Canadian Parliaments, for carrying out the provisions of the Treaty of 1818 between Great Britain and the United States. The Statute 59 Geo. III., cap. 33, provides the penalty of forfeiture as to any foreign fishing vessels found fishing, or to have been fishing, or preparing to fish, within three marine miles of any of the coasts, bays, creeks, or harbours in any part of Her Majesty's Dominions in America, &c.

The Canadian Act of 1868, (cap. 61,) entitled "An Act respecting fishing by foreign vessels," and its amendment followed the Imperial Act and established the same penalty for the same offences. For all other offences against the treaty, and against the Imperial Act above referred to, the only penalty now provided by statute is that mentioned in section 4 of the Imperial Act, viz., the penalty of £200 to be recovered in the Superior Courts.

The Minister has had his attention called to the fact that the ordinary common law remedy for violation of a statute, viz., indictment as for a misdemeanour, is an unsuitable one..."
for such cases, because it would involve long personal imprisonment, even before trial (as the defendants would generally be foreigners without available security to offer for their appearance) and would after conviction be followed in nearly all cases by a further term of imprisonment, as the person on whom the penalties would fall would probably be unable to bear a considerable fine.

It is obvious that the mere right to bring a suit against the masters of offending fishing vessels, is a remedy of little or no avail. Before judgment for the £200 could be obtained, the person sued would be almost certain to be out of the jurisdiction of the Dominion courts, and the enforcement of the judgment would, for that reason become, in most cases, impossible, even if the defendants possessed the means from which the judgment could be realized.

The Minister submits that the penalty of forfeiture applied by the second section of the Imperial Statute, and by the Canadian Act, to the offence of fishing, &c., would be a suitable and most available penalty for the infringement of these statutes.

It cannot be claimed by the United States' Government to be an excessive or an unreasonable penalty, because, by Statute No. 85, of the United States' Congress, lately assented to by the President of the United States, the same penalty is established against foreign vessels whose masters, officers or agents do any act which may be contrary to any proclamation issued under that Statute.

The Committee concurring in the foregoing report, and considering the great value of the Canadian fishing grounds, and the necessity which exists for their protection from encroachments by foreign fishermen, in order that these natural resources may be made available to our own people, recommends that the attention of Her Majesty's Government be drawn to this subject, and that representations be made as to the necessity for having the Royal assent given at as early a day as possible to the Act of last session which is before referred to.

All which is respectfully submitted for Your Excellency's approval.

Section 17. That whenever any foreign country whose vessels have been placed on the one footing in the ports of the United States as American vessels (the coastwise trade excepted) shall deny to any vessels of the United States any of the commercial privileges accorded to national vessels in the harbours, ports, or waters of such foreign country, the President, on receiving satisfactory information of the continuance of such discriminations against any vessels of the United States, is hereby authorized to issue his Proclamation excluding, on and after such time as he may indicate, from the exercise of such commercial privileges in the ports of the United States as are denied to American vessels in the ports of such foreign country, all vessels of such foreign country of a similar character to the vessels of the United States thus discriminated against, and suspending such concessions previously granted to the vessels of such country; and on and after the date named in such Proclamation for it to take effect, if the master, officer, or agent of any vessel of such foreign country, by said Proclamation from the exercise of any commercial privileges shall do any act prohibited by said Proclamation in the ports, harbours, or waters of the United States for an account of such vessel, such vessel, and its rigging, tackle, furniture and boats, and all the goods on board, shall be liable to seizure and to forfeiture to the United States; and any person opposing any officer of the United States in the enforcement of this Act, or aiding and abetting any other person in such opposition, shall forfeit eight hundred dollars and be guilty of a misdemeanor, and, upon conviction, shall be liable to imprisonment for a term not exceeding two years.

DEPARTMENT OF STATE,

WASHINGTON, 10th July, 1886.

SIR,—I have the honour to inform you that I am in receipt of a report from the Comptroller General of the United States, at Halifax, accompanied by sworn testimony stating that
"Novelty," a duly registered merchant steam vessel of the United States, has been denied the right to take in steam coal, or purchase ice, or tranship fish in bond to the United States, at Pictou, N.S.

It appears that, having reached that port on the 1st inst., and finding the Customs Office closed on account of a holiday, the Master of the "Novelty" telegraphed to the Minister of Marine and Fisheries, at Ottawa, asking if he would be permitted to do any of the three things mentioned above. That he received in reply a telegram reciting with certain inaccurate and extended application, the language of Art. I, of the Treaty of 1818, the limitations upon the significance of which are in pending discussion between the Government of the United States and that of Her Britannic Majesty. That on entering and clearing the "Novelty" on the following day at the Custom House, the Collector stated that his instructions were contained in the telegram the Master had received; and that, the privilege of clearing being denied, the "Novelty" was compelled to leave Pictou without being allowed to obtain fuel necessary for her lawful voyage on a dangerous coast.

Against this treatment I make instant and formal protest as an unwarranted interpretation and application of the Treaty by the Officers of the Dominion of Canada and the Province of Nova Scotia, as an infraction of the laws of commercial and maritime intercourse existing between the two countries, and as a violation of hospitality, and for any loss or injury resulting therefrom the Government of Her Britannic Majesty will be held liable.

DEPARTMENT OF STATE.
WASHINGTON, 10th July, 1886.

Sir,—On the 2nd of June last, I had the honour to inform you that despatches from Eastport, in Maine, had been received, reporting threats by the Customs Officials of the Dominion to seize American boats coming into those waters to purchase herring from the Canadian weirs for the purpose of canning the same as sardines, which would be a manifest infraction of the right of purchase and sale of herring caught and sold by Canadians in their own waters in the pursuance of legitimate trade.

To this note I have not had the honour of a reply.
To-day Mr. C. A. Boutwell, M. P. from Maine, informs me that American boats visiting St. Andrews, N. B., for the purpose of there purchasing herring from the Canadian weirs for canning had been driven away by the Dominion cruiser "Middleton."

Such inhibition of usual and legitimate commercial contracts and intercourse is assuredly without warrant of law, and I draw your attention to it in order that the commercial rights of citizens of the United States may not be thus invaded and subjected to unfriendly discrimination.

EXTRACT from the "National Republican" of 12th July, 1886.

THE EXPELLED SARDINE BOATS.—AN ALLEGED VIOLATION OF COMMERCIAL RIGHTS WILL BE ASSERTED,

Representative Boutelle, of Maine, has received the following reply to his request that the State Department give immediate attention to the statement telegraphed him from Eastport, that American boats were driven away from St. Andrew's, N. B., on Friday, by a Dominion cruiser:

HON. C. A. BOUTELLE, House of Representatives.

Dear Sir,—I have just received your telegram of this date stating that you had a despatch from Eastport, Me., that American boats after herring for sardines at St. Andrew's, N. B., were driven away by the Dominion cruiser "Middleton," with the announcement that no American boats will be allowed to take herring for any purpose. And to this you invite the immediate attention of this Department.

On the 2nd of June last, you called at this Department, in company with Senator Halls, of Maine, and then drew my attention to a similar threat of interference with the purchase of small herring for canning as sardines from the Canadian weirs. On the same day I made representation of the alleged threats to the British Minister at this capital, and drew his attention to the alleged violation of lawful commercial intercourse between British subjects in Canada and the citizens of the United States.

It will assist materially in all such cases of alleged violation of commercial rights, if accurate and full statement of all the facts in each case are procured and forwarded to this Department, accompanied by affidavits.

A great deal of loose rumour and sensational statement would be thus disposed of, and a tangible basis be laid for claim for compensation by the injured parties.

I have, &c.,

Mr. Boutelle has telegraphed to Eastport requesting that full and accurate sworn statements of the interference complained of be prepared and forwarded at once to the Department of State.

STATEMENT TELEGRAPHED TO WASHINGTON.

EASTPORT, Me, 11th July, 1886.

Captain Balkam, in charge of one of the American boats which were at St. Andrew's, N.B., Friday night, and which were driven away by the Dominion cruiser "General Middleton," in command of Lieutenant Kent, makes the following statement:—"I was lying in St. Andrew's harbour, waiting for the fishermen to seine their weirs, when 'General Middleton' came into port. Lieutenant Kent, of the 'Middleton,' came on board my boat, and inquired if she was an American boat and if I was an American citizen. I told him I did not know whether my boat was American or not, but as for myself I was an American citizen. 'It makes no difference,' he replied, 'whether your boat is American or English, you have no right to purchase fish in this port, and if you do not leave, or if you attempt to buy fish, your boat will be seized." He also notified the other boatmen. Not wishing to have any trouble with the Dominion Government, we all set sail, and blowing our fog horns in derision of the 'General Middleton,' steered for the American shore. Collector Null has taken my statement and telegraphed to Washington.

No. 115.

Lord Lansdowne to Earl Granville.

4th August, 1886.

My Lord,—Your telegram of the 2nd. Full particulars by to-morrow's mail.

(Sd.) LANSDOWNE.
No. 116.

Governor General to Secretary of State.

Quebec, 4th August, 1886.

My Lord,—I had the honour of receiving Your Lordship's telegram of the 2nd instant, requesting me to supply you with full particulars of all the United States' fishing vessels which have been seized or warned off by the Fisheries Police of the Dominion, of the grounds for such seizures and warnings, and of the exact locality in which they had taken place, with especial reference to the distance from the shore of such vessels at the time when they were seized or warned.

In regard to seizures, I have ascertained that the only cases have been the following:

1st. The "David J. Adams," seized at Digby, N.S., on the 7th May last.
2nd. The "Ella M. Doughty," of Portland, Me., seized at Eastport, N.S., on the 17th of May last.
3rd. The "George W. Cashing," and the "C. B. Harrington," both of which vessels were seized at Shelburne on the 3rd of July.

Copies of the seizure reports, which contain all the information of which my Government is possessed relative to these seizures, are enclosed herewith.

The circumstances under which the "David J. Adams" was seized have been already explained at some length in my previous despatches. This vessel is still detained, and awaits trial before the Vice-Admiralty Court.

Particulars with regard to the "Ella M. Doughty" were given in my despatch No. 107, of the 26th May. This vessel has been released, her owners having deposited the sum of $3,000.

The "City Point," "George W. Cashing" and "C. B. Harrington" were released upon deposit of $400 each, that being the amount of the penalty to which they were liable under Section 29 of the Customs' Act of 1833, which they had contravened.

In the large majority of cases where vessels have been warned or ordered to leave Canadian waters the vessel was boarded in harbour. It has been thought sufficient to give the name of the harbour by way of a description of the locality.

In the few cases in which vessels appear to have been boarded outside a port or harbour in which cases no seizure was made or attempted and a simple warning given in accordance with the terms of the circular of which Your Lordship has already seen a copy, it has, I understand, not been thought necessary to instruct the officers in command of police vessels to mark the locality with greater exactness than by giving the name of the port or harbour off or near which the vessel was boarded.

In the case of vessels actually seized the reports contain much further information as to locality.

I may add in explanation of the fact that the returns of some of the police vessels have not been brought down to a more recent date, that these vessels were ordered not to come into port more than once a week and then only if they can be spared from their cruising grounds.

I have given directions that Your Lordship is to be from time to time supplied with further information in regard to any seizures or warnings which may hereafter take place.

I have, &c.,

The Right Honourable
THE SECRETARY OF STATE,
for the Colonies.

(L. Lansdowne.)
Lord Lansdowne to Earl Granville.

CITADEL, QUEBEC, 4th August, 1886.

No. 117.

My Lord,—I have the honour to acknowledge receipt of Your Lordship's despatch of the 15th July, enclosing Mr. Panmure's letter of 30th June, with which were transmitted the enclosures noted in the margin, relative to the points raised in Mr. Bayard's note to Sir Lionel West, dated 14th July, 1886.

So dated in enclosure, but it is presumed the date should be 14th June.

I desire at once to point out to Your Lordship the inaccuracy of the language in which Mr. Bayard has described "such warnings," including, it is presumed, the alleged warning which had reference to the Bay des Chaleurs, as "wholly unwarranted pretensions of extra territorial authority and usurpations of jurisdiction by the Provincial officials," constituting "an interference with the unquestionable rights of the American fishermen to pursue their business without molestation at any point not within three marine miles of the shores, and within the defined limits as to which renunciation of the liberty to fish was expressed in the Treaty of 1818."

My Government will be prepared at the proper moment, and whenever it becomes necessary to raise the questions formally, to uphold by sufficient arguments the contention which has, from the time that these matters first engaged the attention of the Governments interested, been maintained by that of the Dominion in regard to the interpretations which should be placed upon that portion of Art. I. of the Convention of 1818, which describes the limits within which the liberty of fishing was renounced by the United States.

It is not necessary upon the present occasion that I should recur to the past history of the "headlands question," or that I should do more than state that Mr. Bayard's suggestion that the Bay des Chaleurs does not form a part of the waters from which United States fishermen are excluded, is one in which my Government cannot acquiesce. Throughout the negotiations which have at different times taken place in regard to these matters no such admission has ever been made on the part of the Dominion, or, as far as I am aware, by the Imperial Government. It is therefore wholly incorrect of Mr. Bayard to speak of the question as one which should be included amongst those "which have been long since settled between the United States and Great Britain."

I shall ascertain whether any statement according with that referred to in the first paragraph of Mr. Bayard's note was made by the Collector at Halifax in regard to the landing of fish at that point for transportation in bond across the Province. It will, however, be evident to Your Lordship that the landing of fish for the above purpose is not one of the objects for which entrance to Canadian harbours is permitted within the terms of the Convention of 1818.

[Enclosure No. 2.]

Extract from the "New York Herald" of 9th July, 1886.

DEPARTMENT OF STATE,
WASHINGTON, 30th June, 1886.

Captain JESSE LEWIS,
Owner of the schooner "David J. Adams," Gloucester, Mass.

Sir,—I have your letter, dated the 26th inst., stating the severe loss to you occasioned by the summary seizure by the Canadian authorities, in Annapolis Basin, Nova Scotia, of your fishing schooner the "David J. Adams," which, as you say, is all the property you possess and constituted your only support.

It is proper that I should inform you that demand was made upon the Government of Great Britain for the release of the vessel, coupled with a notification that that Government would be held answerable for all loss and damage caused by her seizure and detention. Your case stands in the same condition of consideration, and of the consular officers of the United States in Canada.

Mr. William L. Putnam, of Portland, Me., in conjunction with Mr. George W. Biddle, of Philadelphia, has been engaged by this Government as its legal counsel in respect of its rights and duties which may be brought in question by reason of the seizure of your vessel.

If you will communicate with Mr. Putnam he will no doubt give you all information in his power in relation to the laws under which your property was so seized, and suggest what steps should be taken to protect your private interest in the premises.

Moreover, I suggest that you should carefully secure evidence of all the facts connected with the presence of your vessel in Annapolis Basin, and of the absence of any unlawful act committed by you or by reason of this harsh and, as I believe, wholly unwarranted action of Canadian officials—such evidence to be obtained and preserved as the basis of claims for indemnification.

About a year ago I sought to protect our citizens engaged in fishing from the results which might attend any possible misunderstanding between the Governments of Great Britain and the United States as to the measure of their mutual rights and privileges in the territorial waters of British North America, after the termination of the fishery articles of the Treaty of Washington in June last. It seemed to me then, and seems to me now, very hard that differences of opinion between the two Governments should cause loss to the honest citizens whose line of obedience might be thus rendered vague and uncertain and their property be brought into jeopardy. Influenced by this feeling, I procured a temporary arrangement at which secured our fishermen full enjoyment of all the Canadian fisheries, free from molestation during a period which would permit discussion of a just international settlement of the whole fishery question. But other counsels prevailed, and my efforts further to protect the fishermen from such trouble as you now suffer were unsavory.

To secure for them full protection in the enjoyment of all their just rights and privileges is still my earnest intent and object, and for all losses to which they may be unlawfully subjected at the hands of the authorities of foreign Governments I shall seek and expect to obtain full redress. I regret exceedingly the disturbance in the long customary pursuits and the serious loss and inconvenience attendant upon a disputed construction of laws and treaties by two separate Governments, and I trust that I shall soon be enabled to secure such a clear and comprehensive declaration of agreement between those charged with the administration of the two Governments as will define the line of their rights and secure from molestation those American fishermen who, obeying the injunctions of their Government respecting subordination to the laws of foreign Governments, keep within the laws of their own country.

Reparation for all losses unlawfully caused by foreign authority will be made the subject of international presentation and demand.

I am, &c.,

Regina vs. "Ella M. Doughty."

Sir,—I received your telegram to-day as follows:—"please send me to-day copy of Collector's affidavit in re Doughty seizure."

The only affidavit made by the Collector of Customs is the affidavit to lead warrant, which is very brief and contains no particulars of fact, the Admiralty rules only requiring that it should state the nature of the claim. I, therefore, forward in addition to this the other documents enumerated below as they may contain some information required by you. Enclosed herewith are:—1st. Affidavit of Daniel G. McAskill and Donald J. Morrison, 18th May, 1886. 2nd. Affidavit of Angus Morrison, 31st May 1886. 3rd. Affidavit of Donald McRitchie, 31st May 1886. 4th. Statement of Torquell McLean. 5th. [Enclosure No. 2.]

We, Daniel G. McAskill and Donald J. Morrison, of Englishtown, do solemnly swear that we sold on the 12th day of March, 1886, 1,400 herring at 25 cents per hundred, and on the 13th 3 barrels more or less at $1.00 per barrel to schooner "Ella M. Doughty."

(Sd.) DANIEL G. McASKILL,
D. J. MORRISON.

I, Angus Morrison, of Englishtown, make the following statement and say:—

That I was aboard schooner "Ella M. Doughty" with Torquell McLean selling 500 herring for 30 cents per 100. I did not sell any myself. The Captain and crew were warning me not to tell. The day before this day the crew were ashore wanting me to take herring aboard at night time. They were talking about the trading license but they did not know whether it was good or not.

I, Angus Morrison, do solemnly swear that the above statements are true and correct in all their particulars.

(Sd.) ANGUS MORRISON.

I, the undersigned certify that the above Angus Morrison made the statements and swore to them before me this 31st day of May, 1886.

(Sd.) D. McAULAY,
Deputy Collector.

[Enclosure No. 3.]

I, Donald McRitchie, went aboard schooner "Ella M. Doughty" on the 12th day of May, 1886, and took aboard with me 900 herring which the Captain bought from me and gave me $2.25 for them.

Captain of schooner "Ella M. Doughty" wished me to keep it quite secret. While I was about leaving, Donald McLennan, Daniel G. McAskill and Donald J. Morrison came aboard, and I solemnly swear that the above statements are correct, so help me God.

(Sd.) DONALD McRITCHIE,

I, the undersigned certify that the above statements were made before me and sworn to on the 31st day of May, 1886.

(Sd.) D. McAULAY,
Deputy Collector.

[Enclosure No. 5.]

I, Torquell McLean, and Angus Morrison went aboard schooner "Ella M. Doughty" on the 13th May, and sold herring and there were aboard Donald McLennan, Donald J. Morrison and Daniel G. McAskill.

This statement made in presence of Daniel Morrison and Daniel McLean. Torquell McLean refuses to sign this or swear to it: says it is true.

Deputy Collector.

[Enclosure No. 6.]

I, Donald J. Morrison, was in the boat on the 12th day of May, 1886, with Daniel McAskill and Donald McLennan when the dory of the schooner "Ella M. Doughty" met a coming home with nets and herrings; the crew told us to clean nets and take herrings aboard and captain would buy them when we were in vessel. We saw aboard Torquell McLean

Donald McRitchie. They seemed to be very much afraid that they would be seized. Second day we went aboard Torquell McLean and Angus Morrison (little) had left schooner "Ella M. Doughty" and they commenced cleaning net. They said Torquell McLean and Angus Morrison went aboard with herring when cleaned out of nets, and we saw the herring taken out of boat into vessel "Ella M. Doughty"; while aboard they saw some men ashore and us if they were Customs officers.

We got 25 cents per 100 for 1,400 first day and $3 for the lot which we had the second day, 13th inst., which was about three barrels, more or less.

ENLISTOWN, 31st May, 1886.

I, the undersigned, certify that the above statement was made before me this 31st day of May, 1886.

(Sd.) D. McAULAY,
Deputy Collector.

[Enclosure No. 7.]

When we, D. G. McAaskill and D. J. Morrison and Donald McInnes, were coming home on 12th May, inst., 1886, with nets with herring in, and not taken out of net, a dory met us that came from the schooner "Ella M. Doughty" and asked us if we had herring to sell. D. McInnes told them we had about 1,000 herrings; they told us to get herring out of nets and go aboard and they would buy them. They seemed to be afraid of being seized as the crew of vessel told us not to report them ashore. When we went aboard Donald McRitchie, Eel Cove, was aboard. Torquell McLean was aboard after D. McRitchie left schooner "Ella M. Doughty." We were aboard when Torquell McLean put bait aboard said schooner "Ella M. Doughty." Second day, we went to said schooner and had about three barrels of herring, more or less, and captain said he had no change but would give $3.00 for the lot. Torquell McLean and Angus Morrison were then on board but let the vessel go and commenced taking herring out of net and they went aboard again and sold the herring to captain, but I did not see them receive any payment. When we counted herring first day we had 1,400 and we got 25 cents per 100.

ENLISTOWN, 31st May, 1886.

I, the undersigned, do certify that the above statement was made in my presence.

Deputy Collector.

[Enclosure No. 8.]

In the Vice-Admiralty Court of Halifax.

Her Majesty the Queen, Plaintiff, against the ship or vessel "Ella M. Doughty" and her cargo.

Action for forfeiture of the said vessel and her cargo for violation of a certain convention between His Late Majesty King George the Third, King of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland, of the one part, and the United States of America, of the other part, made on the twentieth day of October, 1818, and for violation of the Act of the Parliament of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland made and passed in the fifty-ninth year of the reign of His Late Majesty George the Third, King of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland, being chapter thirty-eight of the Acts of the last named Parliament made and past in the said year.

We also for forfeiture of the said vessel and her cargo for violation of chapter sixty-one of the Acts of the Parliament of the Dominion of Canada made and passed in the year 1868, and of chapter fifteen of the Acts of the said Parliament passed and made in the year 1870, and of chapter twenty-three of the Acts of the said Parliament made and passed in the year 1871.

I, Lachlin G. Campbell, of Baddeck, in the County of Victoria and Province of Nova Scotia, Collector of Customs, make oath and say as follows:

1. That the Honourable John S. D. Thompson, Her Majesty’s Attorney General for the Dominion of Canada, claims, on behalf of Her Majesty the Queen, to have the said ship or vessel "Ella M. Doughty" and her cargo condemned to Her Majesty the Queen for violation of a certain convention between His Late Majesty George the Third, King of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland, of the one part, and the United States of America, of the other part, made and signed at London in Great Britain on the twentieth day of October in the year of our Lord 1818, and also for violation of the Act of the Parliament of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland, made and passed in the fifty-ninth year of the reign of His Late Majesty George the Third, King of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland, being chapter thirty-eight of the Acts of the said Parliament made and passed in the said year, and being intituled "An Act to enable His Majesty to make regulations with respect to the taking and curing of fish in certain parts of the coasts of Newfoundland and Labrador and His Majesty's other possessions in North America, according to a convention made between His Majesty and the United States of America."

The said Honourable John S. D. Thompson, Her Majesty's Attorney General for the Dominion of Canada, also claims, on behalf of Her Majesty the Queen, to have the said ship "Ella M. Doughty" and her cargo condemned as forfeited to Her Majesty the Queen for violation of chapter sixty-one of the Acts of the Parliament of the Dominion of Canada made and passed in the year 1868, and intituled "An Act respecting fishing by foreign vessels," and for violation of chapter fifteen of the Acts of the Parliament of the Dominion of Canada made and passed in the year 1870, and intituled "An Act to amend the Act respecting fishing by foreign vessels," and for violation of chapter twenty-three of the Acts of the Parliament of the Dominion of Canada made and passed in the year 1871, and intituled "An Act further to amend the Act respecting fishing by foreign vessels."

The said ship "Ella M. Doughty" is a foreign vessel and not navigated according to the laws of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland or of the Dominion of Canada, and is registered in the United States of America and is owned by foreigners residing in the said United States of America.

I further make oath and say that the said of this Court is required to enforce the said claim.

I am the Collector of Customs at Baddeck aforesaid.

(Sd.) LAUCHLIN GEO. CAMPBELL, Collector of Customs.

On the 25th day of May, A.D. 1886, the said Lauchlin George Campbell was duly sworn to the truth of this affidavit at Baddeck, in the County of Victoria and Province of Nova Scotia, before me.

(Sd.) ALEX. TAYLOR,
A Commissioner duly appointed to administer oaths in the Vice-Admiralty Court of Halifax.

(No 47:)

[Enclosure No 9.]

In the Vice-Admiralty Court at Halifax.

Her Majesty the Queen, Plaintiff, against the Ship or Vessel "Ella M. Doughty" and her Cargo.

Action for forfeiture of the said vessel and her cargo for violation of a certain convention between His Late Majesty George the Third, King of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland of the one part, and the United States of America of the other part, made on the twentieth day of October, 1818, and for the violation of the Act of the Parliament of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland, made and passed in the fifty-ninth year of the reign of His Late Majesty George the Third, King of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland, being Chapter thirty-eight of the Acts of the said last named Parliament made and passed in the said year. Also for forfeiture of the said vessel and her cargo, for violation of Chapter sixty-one of the Acts of the Parliament of the Dominion of Canada, made and passed in the year 1868, and of Chapter fifteen of the Acts of the said Parliament passed and made in the year 1870, and of Chapter twenty-three of the Acts of the said Parliament made and passed in the year 1871.

Writ issued on the 20th day of May, A.D. 1886.

1. A certain Convention between His Late Majesty George the Third, King of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland, and the United States of America was made and signed at London, on the 20th day of October 1818, and by the first Article thereof, after resi-
... said of the said United States for the inhabitants thereof to take, dry and cure fish on certain coasts, bays, harbours and creeks of the said United States. It was agreed between the High Contracting Parties that the inhabitants of the said United States should have forever in common with the subjects of His Britannic Majesty the liberty to take fish of every kind on that part of the southern coast of Newfoundland which extends from Cape Ray to the Rameau Islands, on the western and northern coasts of Newfoundland from the said Cape Ray to the Quirpon Islands, on the shores of the Magdalen Islands, and also on the coasts, bays, creeks, and harbours from Mount Hope on the southern coast of Labrador and through the Strait of Belle Isle, and thence northwardly indefinitely along the coast without prejudice, however, to any of the exclusive rights of the Hudson Bay Company; and that the American fishermen should also have liberty forever to dry and cure fish in any of the unsettled bays, harbours and creeks of the southern part of the coast of Newfoundland thereabove described, and of the coast of Labrador; but so soon as the same or any portion thereof should be settled it should not be lawful for the said fishermen to dry and cure fish at such portion so settled without previous agreement for such purpose with the inhabitants, proprietors or possessors of the ground. And the said United States thereby renounced forever any liberty theretofore enjoyed by the inhabitants thereof to take dry or cure fish on or within three marine leagues of any of the coasts, bays, creeks or harbours of His Majesty's Dominions in America not included within the above mentioned limits; provided, however, that the American fishermen should be admitted to enter such bays or harbours for the purpose of shelter and of repairing damages therein, of purchasing wood and of obtaining water and for no other purpose whatever. But they should be under such restrictions as might be necessary to prevent their taking, drying or curing fish therein, in any manner whatever abusing the privileges thereby reserved to them.

2. That a certain Act of the Parliament of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland was made and passed in the fifty-ninth year of the reign of His late Majesty George the Third, being Chapter thirty-eight of the Acts of the said Parliament made and passed in the fifty-ninth year of the reign of His late Majesty George the Third, and being intituled "An Act to enable His Majesty to make regulations with respect to the taking, drying and curing of fish on certain parts of the Coasts of Newfoundland, Labrador, and His Majesty's other possessions in North America, according to a Convention made between the United Kingdom of Great Britain and the United States of America."

3. That on the 29th day of March, A.D. 1867, a certain Act of the Parliament of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland was made and passed, being Chapter three of the Acts of the said Parliament made and passed in the thirty-first and thirtieth years of the reign of Her present Majesty Queen Victoria, being an Act for the union of Canada, Nova Scotia and New Brunswick and the Government thereof, and for purposes connected therewith," which said Act is cited and known as "The British North America Act, 1867."

4. That a certain Act of the Parliament of Canada was made and passed in the thirty-first year of the reign of Her said Majesty Queen Victoria, being Chapter fifteen of the Acts of the said Parliament made and passed in the year 1870, and being intituled "An Act respecting fishing by foreign vessels."

And a certain other Act of the Parliament of Canada was made and passed in the thirty-sixth year of the reign of Her said Majesty Queen Victoria a certain other Act of the said Parliament of Canada was made and passed, being Chapter twenty-three of the Acts of the said Parliament made and passed in the year 1871, and being intituled "An Act further to amend the Act respecting fishing by foreign vessels."

5. That the said Convention and the said several Acts hereinbefore mentioned were and are still in full force and effect.

6. The Harbor of St. Ann's, situate in the County of Victoria, in the Province of Nova Scotia, together with its outlet to the Bay of St. Ann's, and also, the said Bay of St. Ann's, all hereinafter designated as the Bay and Harbor of St. Ann's, are a portion of the Dominions of America formerly of His late Majesty George the Third, King of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland, and now of Her Majesty, Queen Victoria, Queen of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland, not included or lying on that part of the southern coast of Newfoundland which extends from Cape Ray to the Rameau Islands, on the western and northern coasts of Newfoundland from the said Cape Ray to the Quirpon Islands, on the shores of the Magdalen Islands, or on the coasts, bays, harbours and creeks from Mount Joly to and through the Strait of Belle Isle, and thence northwardly indefinitely along the coast....
7. That the said ship, "Eliza M. Doughty," whereof one Warren A. Doughty, who was not a natural born subject of Her Majesty, was or is master, is a foreign ship or vessel not navigating according to the laws of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland, or according to the laws of Canada, but was and is a ship of the Dominion of Canada, being a person residing in the said Dominion, and being engaged in trade between the ports of the said ship or vessel, and the said ship or vessel "Eliza M. Doughty" was at the time hereinafter mentioned licensed and permitted to carry on the fisheries under and in pursuance of the Acts of the United States of America, and was engaged in the prosecution of the fisheries and on a fishing voyage, and was and is without license to fish or any license whatsoever in that behalf from the Government of Canada or Nova Scotia under the statutes of Canada, or of Nova Scotia in that behalf.

8. Between the tenth and seventeenth days of May, 1856, the said Warren A. Doughty, the master of the said ship or vessel, "Eliza M. Doughty," and the officers and crew of the said ship or vessel, "Eliza M. Doughty," did enter and with the said ship or vessel, "Eliza M. Doughty," into the Bay and Harbour of St. Ann's aforesaid, within three marine miles of the shores of the said Bay and Harbour of St. Ann's, and within three miles of the coast, bays, creeks and harbours of those portions of the Dominions in America of His late Majesty King George the Third, being now the Dominions in America of Her Majesty Queen Victoria, not included within the limits specified and defined in the said first Article of the said Convention, and set out and recited in the first paragraph hereof, for the purpose of procuring herring, whereof to fish, and ice for the preservation on board said vessel of fish to be used in fishing, and of fresh fish to be fished for, taken and caught by the said vessel and by the master, officers and crew thereof, and did procure such herring, and did enter upon the said vessel and these vessels or any of them or both, as vessel, is hereby declared liable for breach or violation of the said Convention and of the said several Acts, and the said vessel, "Eliza M. Doughty," and her cargo were thereupon seized within three marine miles of the coasts or shores of the said Bay and Harbour of St. Ann's, by Donald McAulay and Lauchlin G. Campbell, officers of the Customs of Canada, as being liable to forfeiture for breach or violation of the said Convention and of the said several Acts.

9. The said Warren A. Doughty, the master of the said ship or vessel, "Eliza M. Doughty," and the officers and crew of the said ship or vessel, "Eliza M. Doughty," on the tenth and seventeenth days of May, 1856, and subsequently in the said ship or vessel, "Eliza M. Doughty," in the Bay and Harbour of St. Ann's aforesaid, and while he and they and the said ship or vessel, "Eliza M. Doughty," were within three marine miles of the coasts or shores of the said Bay and Harbour of St. Ann's, and within three marine miles of the coasts, bays, creeks and harbours of those portions of the Dominions in America of His late Majesty King George the Third, being now the Dominions in America of Her Majesty Queen Victoria, not included within the limits specified and defined in the said first Article of the said Convention, and set out and recited in the said first paragraph hereof, for the purpose of procuring herring, whereof to fish, and ice for the preservation on board said vessel of fish to be used in fishing, and of fresh fish to be fished for, taken and caught by the said vessel and by the master, officers and crew thereof, and did procure such herring, and did enter upon the said vessel and these vessels or any of them or both, as vessel, is hereby declared liable for breach or violation of the said Convention and of the said several Acts, and the said vessel, "Eliza M. Doughty," and her cargo were thereupon seized within three marine miles of the coasts or shores of the said Bay and Harbour of St. Ann's, by Donald McAulay and Lauchlin G. Campbell, officers of the Customs of Canada, as being liable to forfeiture for breach or violation of the said Convention and of the said several Acts.

10. The said Warren A. Doughty, the master of the said ship or vessel, "Eliza M. Doughty," and the officers and crew of the said ship or vessel "Eliza M. Doughty," between the tenth and seventeenth days of May, 1856, and subsequently in the said ship or vessel, "Eliza M. Doughty," in the Bay and Harbour of St. Ann's, while he and they and the said ship or vessel, "Eliza M. Doughty," were within three marine miles of the coasts or shores of the said Bay or Harbour of St. Ann's, and within three marine miles of the coasts, bays, creeks and harbours of those portions of the Dominions in America of His late Majesty King George the Third, being now the Dominions in America of Her Majesty Queen Victoria, not included within the limits specified and defined in the said first Article of the said Convention, and set out and recited in the said first paragraph hereof, for the purpose of procuring herring, whereof to fish, and ice for the preservation on board said vessel of fish to be used in fishing, and of fresh fish to be fished for, taken and caught by the said vessel and by the master, officers and crew thereof, and did procure such herring, and did enter upon the said vessel and these vessels or any of them or both, as vessel, is hereby declared liable for breach or violation of the said Convention and of the said several Acts, and the said vessel, "Eliza M. Doughty," and her cargo were thereupon seized within three marine miles of the coasts or shores of the said Bay or Harbour of St. Ann's, by Donald McAulay and Lauchlin G. Campbell, officers of the Customs of Canada, as being liable to forfeiture for breach or violation of the said Convention and of the said several Acts.

11. Between the said tenth and seventeenth days of May, 1856, and subsequently in the said ship and Harbour of St. Ann's, within three marine miles of the shores thereof and within the... maritime miles of the coasts, bays, creeks and harbours of those portions or parts of the Dominions in America of His late Majesty King George the Third, being now the Dominions in America of Her present Majesty Queen Victoria, not included within the limits specified and defined in the said first Article of the said Convention and set out and recited in the said first paragraph hereof, the said ship or vessel "Ella M. Doughty" was found to be fishing within the said distance of three maritime miles of the said coasts, bays, creeks and harbours, contrary to the provisions of the said Convention and of the said several Acts, and the said vessel "Ella M. Doughty" and her cargo were thereupon seized within three maritime miles of the coasts or shores of the said Bay and Harbour of St. Ann's, by Donald McAlay and Lauchlin G. Campbell, officers of the Customs of Canada, as being liable to forfeiture for breach or violation of the said Convention and of the said several Acts.

12. Between the said 10th and 17th days of May, 1886, and subsequently thereto, in the said Bay and Harbour of St. Ann's, within three maritime miles of the shores thereof, and within three maritime miles of the coasts, bays, creeks and harbours of those parts or portions of the Dominions in America of His late Majesty King George the Third, being now the Dominions in America of Her present Majesty Queen Victoria, not included within the limits specified and defined in the said first article of the said convention, and set out and recited in the said first paragraph hereof, the said ship or vessel "Ella M. Doughty" was found to have been fishing within the said distance of three maritime miles of the said coasts, bays, creeks and harbours, contrary to the provisions of the said Convention and of the said several Acts, and the said vessel "Ella M. Doughty" and her cargo were thereupon seized within three maritime miles of the coasts or shores of the said Bay and Harbour of St. Ann's, by Donald McAlay and Lauchlin G. Campbell, officers of the Customs of Canada, as being liable to forfeiture for breach or violation of the said Convention and of the said several Acts.

13. Between the said 10th and 17th days of May, 1886, and subsequently in the said bay and harbour of St. Ann's, within three maritime miles of the shores thereof, and within three maritime miles of the coasts, bays, creeks and harbours of those parts or portions of the Dominions in America of His said late Majesty King George the Third and now of Her said late Majesty Queen Victoria, not included within the limits specified and defined in the said first Article of the said Convention and set out and recited in the said first paragraph hereof, the said ship or vessel "Ella M. Doughty" was found to be procuring baih, that is to say, herring, herewith to fish and ice for the preservation on board said vessel of baih to be used in fishing for the purpose of shelf or repairing damages or of purchasing wood or of obtaining water contrary to the provisions of the said Convention and of the said several Acts, and the said vessel "Ella M. Doughty" and her cargo were thereupon seized within three maritime miles of the coasts or shores of the said Bay or Harbour of St. Ann's, by Donald McAlay and Lauchlin G. Campbell, officers of the Customs of Canada, as being liable to forfeiture for breach or violation of the said Convention and of the said several Acts.

14. During the months of April and May, 1886, the said Warren A. Doughty, the master of the said ship or vessel "Ella M. Doughty" and the officers and crew of the said ship or vessel "Ella M. Doughty," did, in the said ship or vessel "Ella M. Doughty" enter within three maritime miles of the coast, bays, creeks and harbours of the Province of Nova Scotia being a portion of the Dominions in America of His said late Majesty King George the Third and now of Her said late Majesty Queen Victoria not included within the limits specified and defined in the said first Article of the Convention and set out and recited in the first paragraph hereof for the purpose of procuring baih, that is to say, herring, herewith to fish and ice for the preservation on board said vessel of baih to be used in fishing for the purpose of shelf or repairing damages or of purchasing wood or of obtaining water contrary to the provisions of the said Convention and of the said several Acts, and the said vessel "Ella M. Doughty" and her cargo were thereupon seized within three maritime miles of the coasts or shores of the said Province of Nova Scotia, by Donald McAlay and Lauchlin G. Campbell, Officers of the Customs of Canada, as being liable to forfeiture for breach or violation of the said Convention and of the said several Acts.

15. During the months of April and May, 1886, the said Warren A. Doughty, the master of the said ship or vessel "Ella M. Doughty," and the officers and crew of the said ship or vessel "Ella M. Doughty," did in the said ship or vessel "Ella M. Doughty," and while he and they and the said ship or vessel "Ella M. Doughty" were within three maritime miles of the coasts, bays, creeks and harbours of the Province of Nova Scotia being a portion of the Dominions in America of His said late Majesty King George the Third and now of Her said late Majesty Queen Victoria not included within the limits specified and defined in the said first Article of the said Convention and set out and recited in the said first paragraph hereof, for the purpose of procuring baih, that is to say, herring, herewith to fish and ice for the preservation on board said vessel of baih to be used in fishing for the purpose of shelf or repairing damages or of purchasing wood or of obtaining water contrary to the provisions of the said Convention and of the said several Acts, and the said vessel "Ella M. Doughty" and her cargo were thereupon seized within three maritime miles of the coasts or shores of the said Province of Nova Scotia, by Donald McAlay and Lauchlin G. Campbell, Officers of the Customs of Canada, as being liable to forfeiture for breach or violation of the said Convention and of the said several Acts.
Acts hereinbefore mentioned contrary to the provisions of the said Convention and of the said several Acts, and the said vessel "Ella M. Doughty," and the officers and crew of the said vessel, "Ella M. Doughty," were in the said ship or vessel, "Ella M. Doughty," while they and the said ship or vessel "Ella M. Doughty," were within three marine miles of the coasts, bays, creeks, and harbours of the Province of Nova Scotia, being a portion of the Dominions in America, formerly of the late Majesty King George the Third, and now of Her Majesty Queen Victoria, not included within the limits specified and defined in the said first article in the said Convention, set out and recited in the first paragraph hereof, preparing to fish within the meaning of the said Convention, and of the several Acts hereinbefore mentioned, contrary to the provisions of the said Convention, and of the said several Acts, and the said vessel "Ella M. Doughty," and her cargo were thereupon seized within three marine miles of the coasts or shores of the said Province of Nova Scotia, by Donald McAulay and Lauchlin G. Campbell, officers of the Customs as being liable to forfeiture for breach or violation of the said Convention and of the said several Acts.

The Honourable John S. D. Thompson, Her Majesty's Attorney General, for the Dominion of Canada, on behalf of Her Majesty, the Queen, claims the condemnation of the said ship and her cargo and her guns, ammunition, tackle, apparel, furniture, and stores for violation of the said Convention and of the said several Acts.

No. 120.

Mr. Stanhope to the Marquis of Lansdowne.

DOWNING STREET, 5th August, 1886.

My Lord,—I have the honour to transmit to Your Lordship a copy of a letter from the Foreign Office with a copy of a note from Mr. Bayard protesting against the action of Captain Kent of the Dominion cruiser "General Middleton" in refusing Stephen A. Balkam permission to buy fish from Canadians, and I have to request that you will obtain a report from your Government in reference to this case.

I have, &c.,

(Gd.) EDWARD STANHOPE.

Governor General
The Most Honourable
THE MARQUIS OF LANSDOWNE, G.C.M.G.
&c. &c. &c.

[Enclosure No. 1.]

The Foreign Office to the Colonial Office.

FOREIGN OFFICE, 2nd August, 1886.

Sir,—I am directed by the Earl of Rosebery to transmit to you a copy of a despatch from Her Majesty's Charge d'Affaires at Washington, enclosing a copy of a note from Mr. Bayard protesting against the action of Captain Kent of the Dominion cruiser "General Middleton" in refusing Stephen A. Balkam permission to buy fish from Canadians; and I am to suggest that Earl Granville should obtain a report on the subject from the Dominion Government.

I am, &c.,

THE UNDER SECRETARY OF STATE,
Colonial Office.
Mr. Harding to Earl of Rosebery.

(Treaty No. 71.)

My Lord,—With reference to my despatch No. 68 of this series, of the 12th instant, I have the honour to transmit herewith to Your Lordship a copy of a note which I have received from Secretary Bayard protesting against the action of Captain Kent, of the Dominion cruiser "General Middleton" in expelling Stephen R. Balkam from the Harbour of St. Andrews, New Brunswick, and in refusing to permit him to purchase fish caught and sold by Canadians for the purpose of canning as sardines.

I have, &c.,

The Earl of Rosebery,
&c., &c., &c.

[Enclosure No. 2.]

Mr. Bayard to Mr. Harding.

WASHINGTON, 16th July, 1886.

Sir,—I have just received through the Honourable C. A. Boutelle, M.C., the affidavit of Stephen R. Balkam, alleging his expulsion from the Harbour of St. Andrews, N.B., by Captain Kent of the Dominion cruiser "Middleton," and the refusal to permit him to purchase fish, caught and sold by Canadians, for the purpose of canning as sardines.

The action of Captain Kent seems to be a gross violation of ordinary commercial privileges against an American citizen, proposing to transact his customary and lawful trade and not prepared, or intending, in any way to fish or violate any local law, or regulation, or treaty stipulation.

I trust instant instructions to prevent the recurrence of such unfriendly treatment of American citizens may be given to the offending officials at St. Andrews, and reparation be made to Mr. Balkam.

I have, &c.,

No. 121.

The Administrator to the Right Honourable E. Stanhope.

HALIFAX, Nova Scotia, 21st August, 1886.

Sir,—With reference to Earl Granville’s despatch of the 15th July last, addressed to the Marquis of Lansdowne, requesting a report from my Government on the subject of an enclosed note from the Secretary of the United States to Her Majesty’s Minister at Washington, relating to certain Warnings alleged to have been given to United States’ fishing vessels by the Collector of Customs at Canso I have the honour to forward herewith a copy of an approved report of a Committee of the Privy Council, embodying a report by my Minister of Marine and Fisheries on the subject.

I have, &c.,

(Sd.) A. RUSSELL.

The Right Honourable

EDWARD STANHOPE,
&c., &c., &c.

The Committee of the Privy Council have had under consideration a despatch dated 15th July, 1886, from the Secretary of State for the Colonies in which he asks for a report from the Canadian Government on the subject of an enclosed note from Mr. Secretary Bayard to the British Minister at Washington, relating to certain warnings alleged to have been given to United States' fishing vessels by the Sub-Collector of Customs at Canso.

Mr. Bayard states:—1st. That the masters of the four American fishing vessels of Gloucester, Mass.: "Martha C. Bradley," "Rattler," "Eliza Foyston," and "Pioneer," have severally reported to the Consul-General at Halifax that the Sub-Collector of Customs at Canso had warned them to keep outside an imaginary line drawn from a point three miles outside Canso Head to a point three miles outside St. Esprit on the Cape Breton coast.

2nd. That the same masters also report that they were warned against going inside an imaginary line drawn from a point three miles outside North Cape in Prince Edward Island to a point three miles outside East Point on the same Island.

3rd. That the same authority informed the masters of the vessels referred to that they "would not be permitted to enter Bay Chaleur."

The Minister of Marine and Fisheries to whom the despatch and enclosures were referred observes that the instructions issued to Collectors of Customs authorized them in certain cases to furnish United States' Fishing vessels with a copy of the circular heretofore attached and which constitutes the only official "warning" that Collectors of Customs are empowered to give. It was to be presumed that the Sub-Collector of Customs at Canso, as all other Collectors, would carefully follow out the instructions as received, and that therefore no case such as this alleged by Secretary Bayard would be likely to arise.

The Minister states, however, that as soon as the despatch above referred to was received, he sent to the Sub-Collector at Canso a copy of the allegations and requested an immediate reply thereeto. The Sub-Collector in answer emphatically denies that he has ordered any American vessel out of any harbour in his district or elsewhere, or that he did anything in the way of warning, except to deliver copies of the circular above alluded to, and states that he boarded no United States' vessel other than the "Annie Jordan" and the "Hereward," and that neither the "Martha C. Bradley," "Rattler," or "Pioneer," of Gloucester have during this season reported at his port of entry. He, with equal clearness, denies that he has warned any United States' Fishing vessels to keep outside the line from Cape North to East Point alluded to by Secretary Bayard, or that they would not be permitted to enter Bay Chaleur.

The Minister has every reason to believe the statements made by the Sub-Collector at Canso, and taking into consideration all the circumstances of the case, is of the opinion that the information which has reached the Secretary of State does not rest upon a trustworthy basis.

With reference to the concluding portion of Mr. Bayard's note, which is as follows:—

"Such warnings are, as you must be well aware, wholly unwarranted pretensions of extra territorial authority and usurpations of jurisdiction by the provincial officials.

"It becomes my duty in bringing this information to your notice to request that if any such orders for interference with the unquestionable rights of the American fishermen to pursue their business without molestation at any point not within three marine miles of the shores and within the defined limit, as to which renunciation of the liberty of fish, was expressed in the Treaty of 1818, may have been issued, the same may at once be revoked as violation of the rights of citizens of the United States under convention with Great Britain.

"I will ask you to bring this subject to the immediate attention of Her Britannic Majesty's Government to the end that proper remedial orders may be forthwith issued.

"It seems most unfortunate and regrettable that questions which have been long since settled between the United States and Great Britain should now be sought to be revived."

The Minister further observes that, in his opinion, the occasion of the present despatch, which has to deal mainly with questions of fact, does not render it necessary for him to enter upon any lengthened discussion of the question of headland limits. He cannot, however, do otherwise than place upon record the earnest expression of his entire dissent from the interpretation therein sought to be placed upon the Treaty of 1818 by the United States' Secretary of State.

The Committee concur in the foregoing report of the Minister of Marine and Fisheries, and advise that Your Excellency be moved to transmit a copy thereof to Her Majesty's Secretary of State for the Colonies.

The Administrator to the Honourable E. Stanhope.

HALIFAX, N. S., 21st August, 1888.

Sir—I caused to be referred to my Government a copy of Earl Granville's despatch No. 175, of the 23th ult., addressed to the Marquis of Lansdowne enclosing two despatches from Her Majesty's Chargé d'affaires at Washington containing protests of Mr. Bayard against the action of the authorities of the Dominion in regard to certain United States' fishing vessels.

2. I now have the honour to transmit herewith a copy of an approved report of a Committee of the Privy Council to which is annexed a report by the Minister of Marine and Fisheries relative to the circumstances under which the Secretary of State of the United States affirms that the American fishing steamer "Novelty" was not permitted to take steam coal, purchase ice, or tranship fish in bond to the United States at Picton, Nova Scotia.

3. You will observe that Mr. Foster's report deals also with Mr. Bayard's note of the 10th ultimo relating to the alleged threats by the Customs officials of the Dominion to seize American boats coming into those waters to purchase herring from the Canadian weirs for the purpose of canning as sardines.

I have, &c.,

(Signed) A. RUSSELL.

The Right Honourable
EDWARD STANHOPE.

The Committee of the Privy Council have had under consideration the despatch dated 29th July last, from Her Majesty's Secretary of State for the Colonies, enclosing two notes from Mr. Secretary Bayard to the British Minister at Washington, and asking that Her Majesty's Government be furnished with a report upon the cases therein referred to.

The Committee respectfully submit the annexed report from the Minister of Marine and Fisheries, to whom the said despatches and its enclosures were submitted, and they advise that your excellency be moved to transmit a copy thereof, if approved, to Her Majesty's principal Secretary of State for the Colonies.

OTTAWA, 14th August, 1883.

The undersigned has the honour to submit the following, in answer to a despatch from Lord Granville to the Governor General under date 27th July last, enclosing two notes from Mr. Secretary Bayard to the British Minister at Washington, and asking that Her Majesty's Government be furnished with a report upon the cases therein referred to.

In his first communication, dated 10th July, Mr. Bayard says:

"I have the honour to inform you that I am in receipt of a report from the Consul General of the United States at Halifax, accompanied by sworn testimony, stating that the "Novelty," a duly registered merchant steam vessel of the United States, has been denied the right to take in steam coal, or purchase ice, or tranship fish in bond to the United States, at Picton, Nova Scotia."

"It appears, that having reached that port on the 1st instant, and finding the Customs office closed on account of a holiday, the master of the "Novelty" telegraphed to the Minister of Marine and Fisheries at Ottawa, asking if he would be permitted to do any of the three things mentioned above; that he received in reply a telegram reciting with certain inaccurate and extended application the language of Article I of the Treaty of 1818, the limitations upon the significance of which are in pending discussion between the Government of the United States and that of Her Britannic Majesty; that on entering and clearing the "Novelty" on the following day at the Customs House, the Collector stated that his instructions were contained in the telegram the master had received, and that the privilege of coaling being denied, the "Novelty" was compelled to leave Pictou without being allowed to obtain fuel necessary for her lawful voyage on a dangerous coast.

"Against this treatment I make instant and formal protest, as an unwarranted interpr. etation and application of the Treaty, by the officers of the Dominion of Canada and the Province of Nova Scotia, as an infraction of the laws of commercial and maritime intercourse, between the two countries, and as a violation of hospitality; and for any loss or injury resulting therefrom the Government of Her Britannic Majesty will be held liable.

With reference to this, the undersigned begs to observe that Mr. Bayard's statement appears to need modification in several important particulars. In the first place, the "Novelty" was not a vessel regularly trading between certain ports in the United States and Canada, but was a fishing vessel, whose purpose was to carry on the mackerel seining business in the waters of the Gulf of St. Lawrence, around the coast of Prince Edward Island and Nova Scotia; that she had on board a full equipment of seines and fishing apparatus and men; that she was a steam vessel and needed coal, not for the purpose of cooking or warming, but to produce motive power for the vessel, and that she wished to pursue her business of fishing in the above-named waters, and to send her clears home over Canadian Territory, to the end that she might the more uninterruptedly and profitably carry on her business of fishing. That she was a fishing vessel and not a merchant vessel, is proved not only by the facts above-mentioned, but also from a telegram over the signature of H. B. Joyce, the Captain of the vessel, a copy of which is appended. In his telegram, Captain Joyce indicates the character of his vessel by using the words "American Fishing Steamer," and he signs himself "H. B. Joyce, Master Fishing Steamer, 'Novelty.'"

There seems, no doubt therefore, that the "Novelty" was in character, and in purpose, a fishing vessel, and as such comes under the provision of the Treaty of 1818, which allows United States fishing vessels to enter Canadian ports "for the purpose of shelter and repairing damages therein, and of purchasing wood and of obtaining water, and for no other purpose whatever."

The object of the Captain was to obtain supplies for the prosecution of his fishing, and to transport his cargoes of fish at a Canadian port, both of which are contrary to the letter and spirit of the Convention of 1818.

To Mr. Bayard's statement, that in reply to Captain Joyce's enquiry of the Minister of Marine and Fisheries, he received in reply a telegram reciting with certain inaccurate and extended application, the language of Art. I of the Treaty of 1818, the undersigned considers it a sufficient answer to adduce the telegrams themselves.

1st. Enquiry by the captain of the "Novelty":

Hon. George E. Foster, Minister of Marine and Fisheries, Ottawa.

Picton, N.S., 1st July, 1886.

Will the American fishing steamer now at Pictou be permitted to purchase coal or ice, or to transport fresh fish, in bond, to the United States' markets? Please answer.

(Sd.)

H. B. JOYCE,

Master of fishing steamer "Novelty."

2nd. Reply of the Minister of Marine and Fisheries thereto:

To H. B. Joyce, Master American steamer "Novelty," Pictou, N.S.

OTTAWA, 1st July, 1886.

By terms of Treaty 1818, United States' fishing vessels are permitted to enter Canadian ports for shelter, repairs, wood and water, and for no other purpose whatever. That treaty is now in force.

(Sd.)

GEO. E. FOSTER,

Minister of Marine and Fisheries.

The undersigned fails to observe wherein any "inaccurate or extended application" of the language of the treaty can be found in the above answer, inasmuch as it consists of a de facto citation from the treaty itself with the added statement for the information of the captain, that said treaty was at that time in force. As to the "unwarranted interpretation and application of the treaty," of which Mr. Bayard speaks, the undersigned has already discussed that phase of the question in his memorandum of 14th June, which was adopted by Council, and has been forwarded to Her Majesty's Government.

Mr. Bayard's second note is as follows:— "On the 2nd of June last I had the honour to inform you that despatches from Eastport, in Maine, had been received, reporting threats by the customs officials of the Dominion, to seize American boats coming into those waters to purchase herring from the Canadian weirs, for the purpose of canning the same as sardines, which would be a manifest infraction of the right of purchase and sale of herring caught and sold by Canadians in their own waters in the pursuance of legitimate trade."

"To this note I have not had the honour of a reply."

"To-day, Mr. C. A. Boutelle, M.C., from Maine, informs me that American boats visiting St. Andrews, N.B., for the purpose of there purchasing herring from the Canadian weirs, for canning, had been driven away by the Dominion cruiser 'Middleton.'"

"Such inhibition of usual and legitimate commercial contracts and intercourse is scandalous without warrant of law, and I draw your attention to it, in order that the commercial rights of the citizens of the United States may not be thus invaded and subjected to unfriendly discrimination."

With reference to the above the undersigned observes that so far as his information goes, no Collectors of Customs or captains of cruisers have threatened to "seize American boats coming into Canadian waters to purchase herring from Canadian weirs for the purpose of canning them as sardines."

Collectors of Customs have, however, in pursuance of their duties under the Customs law of Canada, compelled American vessels coming to purchase herring to enter and clear in conformity to Customs law.

With reference to the action of the Dominion cruiser "Middleton," the undersigned cannot do better than quote from the official report of the captain of that vessel as to the facts of the case referred to. In his report of date 9th July, 1886, Captain McLean, of the "General Middleton" says:

"At 9 a.m. made sail and drifted with the tide towards the bay. Seeing a large number of boats of various sizes hovering around the fishing weirs, I ordered the boat in waiting and sent officer Kent in charge, giving him instructions to row among the boats and see if there were any Americans purchasing fish. On the return of the boat, Chief Officer Kent reported the boats mentioned were Americans there for the purpose of fishing. I immediately directed the Chief Officer to return and order the American boats to cease fishing and came up with them, and ordered the boats to cease fishing and come to the bay, where they complied with the request and received a permit to load fish for Eastport. The other boats were very much disturbed on receiving the above instructions and sailed away from the American shore."

"The above extract from the report of the Chief Officer of the "General Middleton" goes to show that it was not his object to prevent American boats from trading in sardines, but rather to prevent them from sailing without having first conformed to the Customs law of Canada."

The whole respectfully submitted.

Sir,—I am directed by the Earl of Iddesleigh to transmit to you, to be laid before Mr. Secretary Stanhope, a copy of a despatch from Her Majesty’s Minister at Washington enclosing a copy of a note from Mr. Bayard protesting against the action of the officer of the Canadian schooner "F. E. Conrad" in forbidding the master of the United States' schooner "Golden Hind" to enter the Bay of Chaleur for the purpose of renewing his supply of fresh water at that place.

The warning off of the vessel under the circumstances stated would appear to be a distinct breach of the Convention of 1818, and Lord Iddesleigh would therefore suggest that the Canadian Government should be requested to furnish with the least possible delay a report on the case.

Lord Iddesleigh further suggests for the consideration of Mr. Stanhope, that in calling for the report in question it would be highly desirable to add that Her Majesty’s Government earnestly hope the Dominion Government will take prompt steps to prevent any infraction of the Convention on their side, and that, if the facts stated by Mr. Bayard are correct, steps will be at once taken by the Dominion Government to reprimand the officials concerned.

My Lord,—I have the honour to transmit herewith to Your Lordship a copy of a note which I have received from the Secretary of State, protesting against the action of the officer of the Canadian schooner "F. [Enclosure No. 3.]

Mr. Bayard to Sir L. West.

WASHINGTON, 17th August, 1886.

Sir,—An affidavit has been filed in this Department by Reuben Cameron, master of the American schooner "Golden Hind," of Gloucester, Mass., setting forth that on or about the 23rd of July, ultimo, being out of water, he attempted to put into Port Daniel, Bay of Chaleur, to obtain a fresh supply; that at the entrance of the Bay, about four or five miles from land, the "Golden Hind" was boarded by an officer from the Canadian schooner "F. E. Conrad," and by him ordered not to enter the Bay of Chaleur; that said officer furnished Captain Cameron with a printed "Warning," with this endorsement written thereon, "Don't enter the Bay of Chaleur;" and that in consequence of said act the Canadian officer the "Golden Hind" was obliged to go to Tignish, Prince Edward Island, to obtain water, whereby the fishing venture was interfered with, and loss and injury caused to the vessel and her owners.

I have the honour to protest against this act of the officers of Her Britannic Majesty being not only distinctly unfriendly and contrary to the humane usage of civilized nations, but also in direct violation of so much of Article I of the Convention of 1818 between the United States and Great Britain as secures forever to American fishermen upon the British North American coast admission to the bays or harbours thereof, for the purpose of obtaining water. And for all loss or injury which may be shown to have accrued by reason of the act in question, the Government of Her Britannic Majesty will be held justly liable.

I have further the honour to ask with all earnestness that the Government of His Britannic Majesty will cause steps to be forthwith taken to prevent and rebuke acts so violative of treaty and of the common rights of hospitality.

Sir,—I am directed by the Earl of Idesleigh to transmit to you, to be laid before Mr. Secretary Stanhope, a copy of a despatch from Her Majesty's Minister at Washington, enclosing a copy of a note from the United States' Secretary of State calling attention to causes of complaint alleged by the masters of several United States' fishing vessels against Captain Quigley, of the Canadian cruiser "Terror," and I am to request that a report on the subject may be obtained from the Dominion Government.

I am, &c.,

[Enclosure No. 3]

Mr. Bayard to Sir L. West.

WASHINGTON, 18th August, 1886.

Sir,—Grave cause of complaint is alleged by the masters of several American fishing vessels, among which can be named the schooner "Shiloh" and "Julia Ellen," against the hostile and outrageous misbehaviour of Captain Quigley of the Canadian cruiser "Terror," who, upon the entrance of these vessels into the harbour of Liverpool, N.S., fired a gun across their bows to hasten their coming to, and placed a guard of two armed men on board each vessel, who remained on board until the vessels left the harbour.
In my note to your Legation of the 9th inst., I made earnest remonstrances against another unfriendly act of Captain Quigley against the schooner “Rattler” of Gloucester, Mass., which, being fully laden, and on her homeward voyage, sought shelter from severe weather in Shelburne Harbour, N.S., and was there compelled to report at the Custom House, and have a guard of armed men kept on board.

Such conduct cannot be defended on any just ground, and I draw your attention to it in order that Her Britannic Majesty’s Government may reprimand Captain Quigley for his unwarranted and rude act.

It was simply impossible for this officer to suppose that any invasion of the fishing privileges of Canada was intended by these vessels under the circumstances.

The firing of a gun across their bows was a most unusual and wholly uncalled for exhibition of hostility, and equally so was the placing of armed men on board the peaceful and harmless craft of a friendly neighbour.

[Enclosure No. 1.]

CUSTOMS DEPARTMENT,
OTTAWA, 14th August, 1886.

Sir,—Numerous seizures have been recently made by Officers of the Special Agent's Branch of this Department, which, with other evidence in the possession of the Department, serves to show that great laxity exists on the part of Collectors and other Customs Officers, in connexion with traffic going on in small open boats and fishing vessels between Canadian and foreign ports.

I am directed by the Hon. the Minister of Customs to call your attention to certain provisions of the Customs Law and Regulations bearing upon this subject, and to enjoin you, as far as the necessity for greater vigilance and a stricter enforcing of the law than you have been in the habit of insisting upon.

Section 38 of the Customs Act declares that it shall not be lawful, unless otherwise authorized by the Governor in Council, to import goods, wares or merchandise from any port or place out of Canada in any vessel which has not been duly registered and has not a certificate of registry on board.

Sections 141 to 150 relating to the exportation of goods require that any vessel outward and bound to deliver the Collector a proper entry and report of all goods on board, and prevent officers giving clearances until such report and entry have been made, and fixes penalties for non-observance of these requirements.

Section 37 gives authority to the Governor in Council to make regulations respecting coasting voyages. These regulations you will find embodied in an Order in Council bearing date the 17th of April, 1883, they declare what shall be considered a coasting trade, and that vessels only can be allowed to conduct such trade, viz.: Only British registered vessels wholly owned by British subjects, and such other boats and vessels as may be included in the subjects of countries included in any treaty with Great Britain, by which the coasting trade is mutually conceded.

As there is no reciprocal coasting trade existing between Great Britain and the United States, United States vessels cannot be allowed to in any manner participate in such trade.

Coasters are not permitted to go on a foreign voyage without reporting in the same, or would be required from all vessels not coasters.

Vessels or boats must not be allowed to go from place to place in Canadian waters for the purpose of making up or seeking a cargo, as such a course would be in violation of the coasting regulations.

The Collector of a port may assign to such vessels a landing berth at any one place within the limits of his jurisdiction, but must not allow vessels to go from place to place in order to fill up or take in her cargo.

Permits are to be given under any circumstances, by Customs Officers, under cover which, or under pretext of which, any law or regulation can be evaded.

Stringent means must be taken to confine all small or unregistered vessels within the limits allowed by law and regulations.

Vessels or boats of any kind or class, although of Canadian build, or owned by Canadians, or have been entered as personal property, or otherwise, and on which duty has been paid in any foreign port, must be considered strictly as foreign boats, and excluded from any act that might attach to them had they not been so entered, as such entry changes their character as much as if they had been formally registered.

In order to insure the better protection of the revenue, it is absolutely necessary that these instructions receive your closest attention, and that all vessels irrespective of their character be required to observe the same.

I have the honour to be, Sir,
Your obedient servant,

Assistant Commissioner.

Sir,—I have the honour to enclose herewith a certified copy of a minute of my Private Council, embodying a Report of the Minister of Customs for the Dominion in relation to the alleged improper treatment of the United States' fishing schooner "Rattler," in being required to report to the Collector of Customs at Shelburne, Nova Scotia, when seeking that harbour for shelter.

The reply of the Collector to the enquiries addressed to him in respect to the matter is appended to the Minister's Report, and in it the facts of the case, as set forth in my telegram of the 14th instant are given.

I have communicated your Despatch No. 195 of the 1st. instant forwarding Mr. Bayard's protest concerning this case to my Ministers and requested to be furnished with a report thereon, which I shall forward for your information as soon as it shall have been received.

CERTIFIED COPY of a Report of a Committee of the Honourable the Privy Council for Canada approved by His Excellency the Administrator of the Government in Council, on the 11th September, 1886.

The Committee of Council have had before them a cablegram from the Right Honourable the Secretary of State for the Colonies, dated 1st September, 1886, as follows:

"Report should be made as to treatment United States' fishing boat 'Rattler,' alone compelled report Customs when seeking Shelburne Harbour. Despatch follows by mail." The Minister of Customs, to whom the cablegram was referred for immediate report, caused a telegram to be forwarded to the Collector of Customs at Shelburne to the effect that it was "stated that United States' fishing boat 'Rattler' compelled report Customs when seeking Shelburne Harbour; what were circumstances; answer by telegram, and report in copy by mail," and he submits the report, dated 6th September, instant, from Mr. Atwood, the Collector of Customs at Shelburne.

The Committee advise that Your Excellency be moved to cable a copy of the report above mentioned for the information of the Right Honourable the Secretary of State for Canada.

CUSTOM HOUSE,
Shelburne, 6th September, 1886.

Sir,—I have to acknowledge receipt of your telegram of 4th instant, relative to schooner "Rattler," and I wired an answer this morning as requested.

On the morning of 4th ultimo, Chief Officer of "Terror," accompanied by Captain A. J. Cunningham, called at this office. Captain Cunningham reported his vessel inwards, as follows, viz. "Schooner 'Rattler,' of Gloucester, 93 tons register, 16 men, from Fishing Bank with 655 barrels mackerel, came in for shelter." I was afterwards informed by the officer of cutter that they found the schooner the evening before at anchor off Sandy Point, five miles down the harbour; two men from cutter were put on board, and the master required report at Customs in the morning. I was also informed that the master, Captain Cunningham, made an attempt to put to sea in the night, by hoisting sails, weighing anchor, &c., but was stopped by officers from cutter.

CERTIFIED COPY OF A REPORT OF A COMMITTEE OF THE HONOURABLE THE PRIVY COUNCIL FOR CANADA, APPROVED BY HIS EXCELLENCY THE ADMINISTRATOR OF THE GOVERNMENT IN COUNCIL ON THE 21ST SEPTEMBER, 1886.

The Committee of the Privy Council have had under their consideration a despatch dated 5th August, 1886, from the Right Honourable the Secretary of State for the Colonies transmitting a copy of a letter from the Foreign Office with a copy of a note from Mr. Bayard protesting against the action of Captain Kent of the Dominion cruiser "General Middleton," refusing Stephen R. Balkam permission to buy fish from Canadians.

The Minister of Marine and Fisheries to whom the despatch and enclosures were referred, submits the following report from the First Officer of the "General Middleton":—

HALIFAX, 25th August, 1886.

"I have the honour to state that when boarding several boats in St. Andrew's Bay I asked Stephen R. Balkam, if the boat he was in was American. He replied that he thought she was. I informed him that if she was American he could not take fish from the weirs on the English side without a permit from the Collector of Customs at St. Andrews or West Isles.

"He asked permission to take the fish from the weirs in Kelly's Cove without a permit. I declined to accede to his request.

"Mr. Balkam went around the point in his boat and after accosting several others I met him again evidently trying to evade my instructions. I told him that he must not take the fish without permission from the Customs. He left for the American shore and I returned to the Middleton."

"Mr. Stephen R. Balkam I have known for some years. He formerly belonged to St. Andrews but is now living in Eastport. His business is to carry sardines from the English side to Eastport for canning purposes."

The Minister is of opinion, in view of the above, that in warning Mr. Balkam, that if his boat belonged to the United States he could not take herring from the weirs without first having reported at the Custom House, Mr. Kent acted within the scope of the law and his instructions.

The Committee respectfully advise that Your Excellency be moved to transmit a copy of this minute to the Right Honourable the Secretary of State for the Colonies as requested in his despatch of the 5th August last.

WASHINGTON, 10th September, 1886.

Sir,—It is my duty to bring to the attention of Her Britannic Majesty's Government the treatment lately experienced by an American fishing vessel, the "Mollie Adams," of Gloucester, Mass., at the hands of the Collector of Customs at Port Mulgrave, in the Strait of Canso, Nova Scotia.

By the sworn statement of Solomon Jacobs, master of the schooner "Mollie Adams," it appears that on the 31st ult., whilst on his homeward voyage, laden with fish from the fishing banks, he was compelled to put into Port Mulgrave to obtain water, and duly made report of entry at the Custom House.

The water tank of the vessel having been burst in his voyage by heavy weather, he asked permission of the Collector to purchase two or three barrels to hold a supply of water for his voyage on their homeward voyage of about 500 miles. The application was refused and his vessel threatened with seizure if barrels were purchased. In consequence the vessel was compelled to put to sea with an insufficient supply of water, and in trying to make some port wherein to obtain water a severe gale was encountered which swept away his deck and destroyed two seine boats.

This inhospitable, indeed, inhuman conduct on the part of the Customs Officer in question should be severely reprimanded, and for the infraction of Treaty rights and commercial privileges, compensation equivalent to the injuries sustained, will be claimed from Her Majesty's Government.

WASHINGTON, 23rd September, 1866.

Sir,—I have the honour to bring to your attention an instance which has been brought to my knowledge of an alleged denial of one of the rights guaranteed by the Convention of 1818 in the case of an American fishing vessel.

Captain Joseph E. Graham, of the fishing schooner “A. R. Crittenden,” of Gloucester, Mass., states under oath, that on or about the 21st of July last, on a return trip from open sea fishing grounds to his home port, and while passing through the Straits of Canso, he stopped at Steep Creek for water. The Customs officer at that place told him that if he took in water his vessel would be seized; whereupon he sailed without obtaining the needed supply and was obliged to put his men on short allowance of water during the passage homeward.

I have the honour to ask that Her Britannic Majesty’s Government cause investigations to be made of the reported action of the Customs officer at Steep Creek, and, if the facts be as stated, that he be promptly rebuked for his unlawful and inhumane conduct in denying a vessel of a friendly nation a general privilege which is not only held sacred under the maritime law of nations, but which is expressly confirmed to the fishermen of the United States throughout the Atlantic coasts of British North America by the 1st Article of the Convention of 1818.
It does not appear that the "A. R. Crittenden" suffered other damage by this alleged writable treatment, but, reserving that point, the incident affords an illustration of the

CERTIFIED COPY OF A REPORT OF A COMMITTEE OF THE PRIVY COUNCIL FOR CANADA, APPROVED BY HIS EXCELLENCY THE ADMINISTRATOR OF THE GOVERNMENT IN COUNCIL ON THE 26th OCTOBER, 1886.

On a report dated 14th October, 1886, from the Honourable Mackenzie Bowell, for the Minister of Marine and Fisheries, stating that on Monday 11th October inst., the United States fishing schooner "Marion Grimes" of Gloucester, Mass., was under detention at Shelburne, Nova Scotia, by the Collector of Customs at that port, for an infraction of the Customs Regulations, that while so detained and under the surveillance of the Canadian Government cutter "Terror," the captain of the "Marion Grimes" hoisted the United States' flag.

The Minister further states that it appears that Captain Quigley, of the "Terror," considered such act as an intimation that there was an intention to rescue the vessel, and requested Captain Landry to take the flag down. This request was complied with; an hour later, however, the flag was again hoisted, and on Captain Landry being asked if his vessel had been released, and replied that she had not. Captain Quigley again requested that the flag be lowered. This was refused, when Captain Quigley himself lowered the flag, acting under the belief that while the "Marion Grimes" was in possession of the Customs authorities, and until her case had been adjudicated upon, the vessel had no right to fly the United States' flag.

The Minister regrets that he should have acted with undue zeal although Captain Quigley may have been technically within his right while the vessel was in the custody of the law.

The Committee advise that Your Excellency be moved to forward a copy of this minute, if approved, to the Right Honourable the Secretary of State for the Colonies and to Her Majesty's Minister at Washington expressing the regret of the Canadian Government at the occurrence.

[Enclosure No. 1.]

The Committee of the Privy Council have had their attention called by a cablegram from the Right Honourable Mr. Stanhope, as to when he may expect answer to despatch No. 195 “Rattler.”

The Honourable Mr. Bowell, for the Minister of Marine and Fisheries, to whom the papers were referred, submits for the information of His Excellency in Council that having considered the statements, copies of which are annexed, of Captain Quigley of the Gover Cutters "Terror" and of the Collector of Customs at Shelburne with reference to the subject matter of the despatch, he is of opinion that these officers only performed their respective duties in the case of the "Rattler," and that no just ground exists for the complaint put forward in Mr. Bayard's despatch of a "violation of that hospitality which all civilized nations prescribe," or of a "gross infraction of Treaty stipulations."

The Minister states that it does not appear at all certain from the statements submitted that this vessel put into Shelburne for a harbour in consequence of stress of weather. It does, however, appear that immediately upon the "Rattler's" coming into port, Captain Quigley addressed this Chief Officer to inform the Captain of the "Rattler," that before sailing he must report his vessel at the Custom House, and left on board the "Rattler" a guard of two men to see that no supplies were landed or taken on board or men allowed to leave the vessel during her stay in Shelburne Harbour. That at midnight the guard fired a shot as signal to the cruiser, and the First Officer at once proceeded to the "Rattler," and found the vessel being holstered and the anchor weighed preparatory to leaving port. The Captain being informed he must comply with the Customs regulations and report his vessel, he headed her up the harbour. That on the way up she became becalmed when the First Officer of the "Terror" took the Captain of the "Rattler" in his boat and rowed him to the town, when the Collector of Customs received his report at the usual hour of 8 a.m., rather than detain him, and the Captain with his vessel proceeded to sea.

The Minister observes that under Section 23 of the Customs Act every vessel entering port in Canada is required to immediately report at the Customs, and the strict enforcement of this regulation as regards United States' fishing vessels, has become a necessity, in view of the illegal trade transactions carried on by United States' fishing vessels when entering Canadian ports under pretence of their Treaty privileges.

That under these circumstances a compliance with the Customs Act, involving only the report of a vessel, cannot be held to be a hardship or an unfriendly proceeding.

The Minister, in view of the repeated groundless complaints of being harshly treated that have been made during the present season by the captains of United States' fishing vessels, and in almost every instance traceable to a refusal or neglect to observe the Customs regulations which it is proper to state are enforced upon other vessels as well as those of the United States, submits herewith, a letter written by Captain Blake of the United States' schooner "Andrew Burnham," which appear in the Boston (Mass.) Herald, of the 7th inst., and also the editorial comment thereon, made in a subsequent issue of the paper referred to.

The Minister believes that the statements made by Captain Blake are strictly accurate, and as applied to other vessels are substantiated by the weekly boarding reports received by the Fisheries Department from the different captains engaged in the Fisheries Protection Service. He, the Minister, therefore, respectfully submits that the reflections of Mr. Secretary Bayard characterising the treatment extended to the captain of the "Rattler" as unwarantable and unfriendly is not merited in view of the facts as stated by Captain Quigley and Collector Atwood.

The Committee concur in the report of the Acting Minister of Marine and Fisheries, and advise that Your Excellency be moved to transmit a copy of this Minute, if approved, to the Right Honourable Her Majesty's Principal Secretary of State for the Colonies.

All which is respectfully submitted for Your Excellency's approval.

Clerk, Privy Council, Canada.

CAPTAIN BLAKE'S LETTER.

A FISHERMAN'S TALE.

What a Boston Skipper says of His Experience in Canadian Waters.

The following letter which appears in the Boston Herald conveys a different impression to many statements that have appeared on the subject:

So much has been written and printed about the experiences of American fishermen in Canadian waters, and the indignities put on them, I wish you would open your columns and... give your readers an insight into the other side of the story. I sailed from Boston for Nova Scotia on June 18, not knowing just what the cutters would do or how the law would be interpreted. I feared the coast with fear and anxiety. The first land sighted was Whitehead, and immediately cries came from aloft: "Cutter in sight ahead!" I rushed to the deck, found the vessel which proved to be the "Houllett," commanded by Capt. Lorway, nearing us rapidly. At that time of the year we were standing inshore. She hoisted her flags to let us know what she was, and we immediately "about ship" and put to sea to get out of her way, for fear we might be placed on the prize list of the cutters. We finally headed up for Port Hawkesbury in Cape Breton, expecting to receive rough usage from the authorities, but to our surprise we found Collector Murray a perfect gentleman, willing to assist us as far as he could without encroaching on the Canadian laws. From there we went in at Port Hawkesbury and boarded the cutter "Conrad," and asked the captain for instructions in regard to the three-mile limit, and what privileges, if any, we had. I was answered, in a courteous and hearty way, that he did not have them aboard, but would go ashore in a few moments and get me a printed copy of the regulations, which he did, and assured us that if we followed them we would not be molested; the law was not violated, but not to cause unnecessary annoyance. After receiving instructions from the Captain, thanks to him, I went to the Custom House and entered my vessel, paying twenty-five cents. I found a very pleasant gentleman in the collector, who did all in his power to relieve my mind and make us comfortable.

Souris was our next port of landing, where we also reported, and were well treated. From there we went to Malpeque, where we found another gentleman in the collector. We met him at the Customs House, and had several interviews with him and another gentleman, Captain Lorway, whom I found a quiet, just and gentlemanly officer. My vessel was one of the fleet ordered out of harbour by him. At that time it was as good a fish day as one could ask for, and the instructions were plain that at such times we had no right to remain in harbour. At no time is there much water to spare on the bar, and it is a common occurrence for vessels to ground in going in or out, and that some did touch was due to ignorance of the channel or carelessness on the part of captains. At the time the order was issued the weather was fair, but before all the fleet could work out through the channel, one of the sudden changes in weather, so much to be dreaded on such a coast, came, and the cutter rescinded the order and the fleet returned. It has been printed in a Boston paper that, owing to being forced to stay by the cutter's orders in bad weather, my schooner, the "Andrew Burnham," fouled two Englishmen and narrowly escaped serious damage. If true it would look like a hardship. It was simply this: In getting under way, in a small and crowded space, finding I would not have room, I dropped our starboard anchor. That night, the wind had shifted, and it brought us up all right; not much in this to point to as an outrage or danger from stress of weather. I believe Captain Lorway to be a man who would carry out all the requirements of the Canadian laws, but I saw nothing in my experience in those waters that could be considered as being arbitrary, or taking an undue advantage of his official authority to annoy anyone. Captain Lorway has been a master of vessels for twenty-five years, is a man of high reputation as a seaman, and as a judge of whether the weather is favourable for a vessel to go to sea as any man who walks the sea, and when he ordered the fleet to sea he went himself, and I know he would not order a vessel to leave harbour if there was danger or risk of injury to the crew or property. We reported buoys that were treated the same as at all other ports we touched at. If our vessels would attend to reporting at the Custom House, the same as they do in our ports, no trouble would be met with.

If we had "free fish" it would give the Canadians some compensation for what our fishermen want, viz., the right to go anywhere and everywhere, use their harbours, ship men, get provisions, land and mend our nets, buy salt and barrels, and ship our catch home by rail or steamer without expense or annoyance, the same as we have heretofore.

If we had had that privilege this year, myself and vessel would have been $5,000 better off this season, and all the fishermen in the bay would have been in the same boat with me. I do not say that I am too honest not to fish within the three-mile limit, nor do I believe there is a vessel in the fleet who would not, if the cutter was out of sight, make two trips to the bay, both of which were very successful, and I lived up to the requirements of the law as well as I knew how, and did not find them obnoxious, or interfere with my success, and everywhere I went was courteously treated by the officials--especially so by both the cutters. Should it be a year next season, I hope to meet them again. Those who openly preached that they would go where they pleased, do what they wanted to in spite of law or cutters, shipped men, smuggled or openly fished inside of the limit, and indulged in the satisfaction of damning the cutter, the captain, the government and the other forces when they knew they might do it with impunity, and that the men they were talking to could not resent it by word or blow, were looked after sharp and were not extended the courtesy that was shown so many of us.
In the interest of fair-play I could not help writing you and asking you to give this to your readers, if not taking up too much of your valuable space.

Very respectfully,

CAPT. NATHAN F. BLAKE.
Schooner "Andrew Burnham" of Boston.

Boston, 6th October, 1886.

[Enclosure No. 3.]

Extract from the Boston Herald, dated the 9th October, 1886.

A FISHING CAPTAIN'S EXPERIENCE.

The letter of Captain Nathan F. Blake, of the fishing schooner "Andrew Burnham" of this city, which we published on Wednesday, would apparently indicate that the Canadian officials have not been disposed to push the requirements of their law quite as rigorously as some of our fishermen have maintained. Captain Blake says that he has experienced not the least trouble in his intercourse with the Canadian officials, but that, as he has treated them courteously, they on their side have reciprocated in like terms. There is, undoubtedly, a great deal of bitterness felt on both sides, and probably this bitterness has led both parties to be ungracious in their own conduct, and to exaggerate the wrongs they have endured.

Hardships frequently due to an unwillingness to observe the requirements of the law as these are now laid down. If all American fishing captains exhibited the same courtesy and moderation that Captain Blake has shown, we imagine that there would be very little trouble in arriving at an equitable and pleasing understanding with Canada.

[Enclosure No. 4.]

SHELBURNE, 30th September, 1886.

Sir,—I beg to acknowledge the receipt of your letter of the 27th instant, requesting the circumstances connected with the boarding of the vessels "Rattler," "Julia and Ellen," and "Shilo."

In the case of the "Rattler," she came into Shelburne harbour on the evening of the 4th of August, at 6 o'clock. She being at some distance from where I was anchored, and it being too rough to send my boat so far, I fired a musket signal for her to round to, which she did and came to an anchor alongside of my vessel.

I then sent the chief officer to board her. He reported she put in for shelter. The captain was told by the chief officer to report his vessel before he sailed, and that he must not let his men on shore, and that he would leave two men, who are always armed, on board to see that he did not otherwise break the law.

About midnight the captain hoisted his sails to leave port, thereby evading the Customs law requiring him to report (for which I refer you to Section 23 of the Customs Act) and disregarding my instructions.

The watchmen fired a signal calling my attention to this act, when I sent the chief officer to tell the captain he must lower his sails and report his vessel in the morning, otherwise he would likely have his vessel detained.

He did so, and sailed up in company with the chief officer at 4 o'clock a.m. On the way up it fell calm and the vessel anchored. The chief officer with my boat's crew, rowed him up to the Custom House, where he reported at 6 a.m., and returned, passing out to sea at 8 a.m. The captain was only asked to report his vessel as all others do, but was not disposed to do so.

In the case of the "Julia and Ellen," she came into the harbour of Liverpool on the 9th of August, about 5 p.m. Being some distance from me I fired a blank musket shot to round her to. When she anchored, I boarded her and the captain reported that he came in for water.

I told him to report his vessel in the morning as it was then after Customs' hours, and that he must not let his men ashore, and that I would leave two men on his vessel to see that my instructions were carried out, and to see that he did not otherwise break the law.

In the morning at 8 o'clock, I called for the captain to go to the Custom House and told him his men could go on and take water while he was reporting, so that he would be all ready to sail when he returned, which they did, and he sailed at noon.
In the case of the "Shilo," she came into the harbour about 6 p.m., on the 9th of August, at Liverpool, and a signal was fired in her case the same as the others.

When she anchored I boarded her, and the captain reported he was in for water. I told him it was then too late to report at the Customs till morning, and that he must not allow his crew on shore, also that I would leave two men on board to see that he did not otherwise break the law and that my instructions were carried out.

In the morning I called for the captain when taking the "Julia and Ellen's" captain ashore. When there I told him, as I did the other, that his men could go on taking water while he was reporting, so that he could sail when he returned and not be delayed. This they did not do.

I have reason to know that it was not water this vessel came in for, as several of the crew lived there, and it was for the purpose of letting his men ashore and not for taking water that he put in. He afterwards emptied six barrels of water, stating they were sour, and fooled all day filling them, delaying the time that he might get his crew on shore. I refused to allow his crew on shore for any other purpose than to take water, after completing which, the weather being fine, I ordered him to sea in the evening.

The signals that were fired were not intended to make them come to quickly, but as a signal for them to either round to or show their ensign.

After the "Shilo" sailed, the harbour master informed me that she landed two men at the mouth of the harbour, seven miles down, before she reported, and the evening she sailed she called after dark and picked them up.

In many cases it is an understood thing between the captains and crews to let the men ashore and then make them desert. In all cases where a vessel puts in for shelter, the captain reports, and the rest of his crew are not allowed ashore, as the vessel only put in for the privilege of shelter, and for no other purpose.

When she puts in for water, after reporting, the captain is allowed to take his boats and the men in the boat to procure water, and the rest remain on board, after which he is ordered to sea. When in for repairs, he is allowed all the privileges he requires after reporting, and when ready is ordered to sea. In all cases, except when in for repairs, I place men on board to see that the law is not violated, as many of those vessels put into the harbour and make taking water and seeking shelter an excuse either to get men or land them, or to allow them a chance to see their friends, or to get goods ashore if the vessel is on her way from American ports to the fishing grounds, and have landed men here and at other ports on this coast in my absence. In one case in this port a vessel, finding I was in the harbour, let men take a boat and land, she going on her way home to the States. That is why I put men on these vessels, to keep them from breaking the law under cover of night.

I might remark here that the Collector of Customs at Liverpool informed me that the "Shilo" on her previous voyage remained in port five days after being ordered out, delaying for the purpose of letting the men be with their friends.

Now that they are not allowed all the privileges they once enjoyed it is an outrage on my part.

These are the facts connected with those vessels, which I reported to Captain Scott while in Halifax sometime ago.

I treat all courteously but firmly, and find no trouble with any but a few who wish to evade the law.

CUSTOMS HOUSE, SHELBOURNE, 6th September, 1886.

Sir,—I have to acknowledge receipt of your telegram of 4th inst. relative to schooner "Rattler," and I wired an answer this morning as requested.

On the morning of 4th ulto., Chief Officer of "Terror" accompanied by Captain A. F. Cunningham called at this office. Captain Cunningham reported his vessel inwards as follows:—viz.: "schooner 'Rattler' of Gloucester, 93 tons register, 16 men, from fishing banks with 465 barrels mackerel; came in for shelter."
I was afterwards informed by the officer of cutter that they found the schooner the evening before at anchor off Sandy Point, five miles down the harbour. Two men from cutter were put on board, and the master required to report at Customs in the morning.

I was also informed that the master, Captain Cunningham, made an attempt to put to sea in the night, by hoisting sails, weighing anchor, &c., but was stopped by officers from cutter.

HALIFAX, 30th October, 1886.

Sir,—With reference to your telegraphic message of the 22nd August, and to your despatch of the 23rd August, transmitting copy of a despatch from Her Majesty's Charge d'Affaires at Washington, with a note from Mr. Bayard, complaining of the action of the Customs Officer at Magdalen Islands with reference to the American fishing schooner "Mascotte." I have the honour to forward herewith a copy of an approved Minute of the Privy Council of Canada, embodying a report of the Minister of Marine and Fisheries on the subject.

No. 3617.

[Enclosure No. 1.]

The Committee of the Privy Council have had under consideration a telegram of the 22nd August and a despatch of the 26th August last from the Right Honourable the Secretary of State for the Colonies, transmitting copy of a letter from Her Majesty's Minister at Washington, enclosing a note from Mr. Secretary Bayard, complaining of the action of the Customs Officer at Magdalen Islands with reference to the American fishing schooner "Mascotte."

The Minister of Marine and Fisheries, to whom the correspondence was referred, observes that Mr. Bayard, in his note to the British Minister at Washington, says:

"I am also in possession of the affidavit of Alex. T. Vachem, master of the American fishing schooner 'Mascotte,' who entered Port Amherst, Magdalen Islands, and was there threatened by the Customs Official with seizure of his vessel if he attempted to obtain bait for fishing or take a pilot. And from a report of the Customs Officer at Magdalen Islands, a copy of which, so far as it relates to the case in point, is hereto annexed, it appears that no grounds exist for the complaint made by the master of the 'Mascotte.'"

The Minister states that Captain Vachem was served with a printed copy of the "warning," and was in addition informed by the Collector that under the Treaty of 1818 he had no right to buy bait or to ship men. He was not forbidden to take fish, but on the contrary the Collector pointed out to him on the chart the places in which by the Convention of 1818, he as a United States' fisherman, had the right to inshore fishing, and one of the places so pointed out to him was the Magdalen Islands.

Notwithstanding the "warning" and the personal explanation of the Collector it appears that Captain Vachem did go up the country and attempt to hire men and upon his return informed the Collector that he could not get any. For this, clearly an illegal Act, he was not interfered with by the Collector.
The Minister further observes that the Convention of 1818, while it grants to United States' fishermen the right of fishing in common with British subjects on the shores of the Magdalen Islands, does not confer upon them privileges of trading or of shipping men, and it was against possible acts of the latter kind and not against fishing inshore, or seeking the rights of hospitality guaranteed under the Treaty, that Captain Vachon was warned by the Collector.

With reference to the remark of the Colonial Secretary that "Her Majesty's Government would recommend that special instructions should be issued to the authorities at the places where the inshore fishery has been granted by the Convention of 1818 to the United States' fishermen, calling their attention to the provisions of that Convention and warning them that no action contrary thereto may be taken in regard to United States' fishing vessels," the Minister states that the circular instructions issued to Collectors of Customs, recite the articles of the Convention of 1818 which grant to United States' fishermen the right to take fish upon the shores of the Magdalen Islands and of certain parts of the Coast of Labrador and Newfoundland, which instructions the Collector in question had received and the import of which his report shows him to be familiar with.

In addition to this the Commander of the Fishery Protection steamer "La Canadienne" was ordered to visit Magdalen Islands and explain fully to Collectors there, the extent of their powers.

The Minister in view of these instructions, printed and oral, does not deem it necessary to send further special orders.

The Committee concurring in the foregoing report, advise that Your Excellency be moved to transmit a copy hereof, if approved, to the Right Honourable the Secretary of State for the Colonies.

All which is respectfully submitted for Your Excellency's approval.

MAGDALEN ISLANDS, 28th August, 1886.

Sir,—I beg to acknowledge the receipt of your telegram respecting captain of the schooner "Mascotte's" report in reference to my having threatened him with seizure.

I replied on receipt: "Mascotte's information incorrect. Particulars per mail Tuesday."

Particulars.

On the arrival of the captain I served him with a "warning," personally informed him he could not buy bair or ship men. I say this to all American fishermen. He tried, however, to hire, went up the country to hire, but could not hire a man.

I saw him and men go up and on his return he told me he could not hire. I did not oppose him. He intended halibuttting at Seven Islands, Dominion. I found this out since. I deny having said I would seize him if he obtained bair, himself or crew. I did not use the term but it suits the captain or owners to use it as it serves their meaning to make the report good.

I particularly showed him where, on the chart, he had the right to fish inshore, to wit: At the Magdalen Islands, Cape Ray, &c., as per Treaty in my hands then.

I think I was very lenient with him and all American fishermen calling here, knowing their privileges.

I treated him so gentlemanly that I am surprised to hear he made the above inaccurate report to you.

My Lord,—I have the honour to acknowledge the receipt of your despatch, No. 288, of the 29th of July last, enclosing a copy of an approved report of your Privy Council, in reference to the Bill recently passed by the Parliament of Canada, and reserved by you for the signification of Her Majesty's pleasure, entitled "An Act further to amend the Act respecting Fishing by Foreign Vessels."

Her Majesty's Government, after having given their most attentive consideration to the question and to the views which have been urged by your Ministers, and having, moreover, had the advantage of considering the representations which you have yourself made upon the subject during your recent visit to this country, have come to the conclusion that they would not be justified in advising Her Majesty to withhold her assent from the Bill in question.

They will, therefore, be prepared to submit the Bill to Her Majesty for confirmation on receiving a transcript of it, properly authenticated in the usual form.

[Enclosure No. 2.]

To His Excellency the Administrator of the Government in Council.

DEPARTMENT OF JUSTICE, OTTAWA, 22nd July, 1886.

With reference to the despatch of the 24th June last, from the Secretary of State for the Colonies to Your Excellency respecting the fisheries question, and enclosing copies of letters on the subject from the Foreign Office to the Colonial Office, and of one from Mr. Phelps to the Secretary of State for Foreign Affairs, the undersigned has the honour to report as follows:—

The letter of Mr. Phelps seems designed to present to Earl Rosebery the case of the "David J. Adams," the fishing vessel seized a short time ago near Digby, in the Province of Nova Scotia.

Mr. Phelps intimates that he has received from his Government a copy of the report of the Consul General of the United States at Halifax, giving full details and depositions relating to the seizure, and that that report, and the evidence annexed to it, appear fully to sustain the points which he had submitted to Earl Rosebery at an interview which he had had a short time before the date of his letter.

The report of the Consul General and the depositions referred to seem not to have been presented to Earl Rosebery, and their contents can only be inferred from the statements made in Mr. Phelps' letter.

These statements appear to be based on the assertions made by the persons interested in the vessel by way of defence against the complaint under which she was seized, but cannot be regarded as presenting a full or accurate representation of the case. The undersigned submits the facts in regard to this vessel, as they are alleged by those on whose testimony the Government of Canada can rely to sustain the seizure and detention.
The Office as to the Treaty and Fishery Laws.

The “David J. Adams” was a United States' fishing vessel, whether, as alleged in her behalf, her occupation was deep sea fishing or not, and whether, as suggested, she had not been engaged, nor was intended to be engaged, in fishing in any limit prescribed by the Treaty of 1818 or not, are questions which do not, in the opinion of the undersigned, affect the validity of the seizure and of the proceedings subsequent thereto, for reasons which will be hereafter stated; but in so far as they may be deemed material to the defence, they are questions of fact which remain to be proved in the Vice-Admiralty Court of Halifax, in which the proceedings for the vessel's condemnation are pending, and in respect of which proof is now being taken, and inasmuch as the trial has not been concluded (much less a decision reached) it is perhaps premature for Mr. Phelps to claim the restoration of the vessel, and to assert a right to damages for her detention, on the assumption of the supposed facts above referred to.

It is alleged in the evidence on behalf of the prosecution that the “David J. Adams” being a United States' fishing vessel, on the morning of the 5th of May, 1886, was in what is called the “Annapolis Basin,” which is a harbour on the north-west coast of Nova Scotia. She was several miles within the basin, and the excuse suggested (that the captain and crew may have been there through a misapprehension as to the locality) by the words of Mr. Phelps' letter, “Digby is a small fishing settlement and its harbour not defined,” is unworthy of much consideration.

Digby is not a fishing settlement, although some of the people on the neighbouring shores engage in fishing. It is a town, with a population of about two thousand persons. Its harbour is formed by the Annapolis Basin, which is a large inlet of the Bay of Fundy, and the entrance to it consists of a narrow strait marked by conspicuous headlands which are little more than a mile apart. The entrance is called “Digby Gut” and for all purposes connected with this enquiry, the harbour is one of the best defined in America.

The “David J. Adams” was, on the morning of the 6th day of May, 1886, as has already been stated, several miles within the Gut. She was not there for the purpose of “shelter” or “repairs” nor “to purchase wood” nor “to obtain water.” She remained there during the 5th and on the 6th May, 1886, she was lying at anchor about half a mile from the shore, at a locality called “Clement's West.”

On the morning of the 6th of May, 1886, the Captain made application to the owners of a fishing weir, near where he was laying for bait, and purchased four and a half barrels of that article.

He also purchased and took on board, about two tons of ice. While waiting at anchor for these purposes the name of the vessel’s “hailing place” was kept covered by canvas, and this concealment continued while she afterwards sailed down past Digby. One of the crew represented to the persons attending the weir that the vessel belonged to the neighbouring Province of New Brunswick. The Captain told the owner of the weir, when the Treaty was spoken of by the latter, that the vessel was under British register. The Captain said he would wait until the next morning to get more bait from the catch in the weir which was expected that day. At daybreak, however, on the morning of the 7th of May, 1886, the Government steamer “Lansdowne” arrived off Digby, and the “David J. Adams” got under way without waiting to take in the additional supply of bait, and sailed down the Basin towards the Gut.

Before she had passed Digby she was boarded by the First Officer of the “Lansdowne” and to him the Captain made the following statement: That he had come to that place to see his people, as he had formerly belonged there, that he had no fresh bait on board, and that he was from the “Banks” and bound for Eastport, Maine.

The officer of the “Lansdowne” told him he had no business there, and asked him if he knew the law. His reply was “Yes.”

A few hours afterwards, and while the “David J. Adams” was still inside the Gut, the officer of the “Lansdowne,” ascertaining that the statements of the Captain were untrue, and that bait had been purchased by him within the harbour on the previous day, returned to the “David J. Adams,” charged the Captain with the offence, and received for his reply the assertion that the charge was false, and that the person who gave the information was a “liar.”

The officer looked into the hold of the vessel and found the herring which had been purchased the day before, and which, of course, was perfectly fresh, but the Captain declared that “bait” was ten days old.

The officer of the “Lansdowne” returned to his ship, reported the facts, and went again to the “Adams,” accompanied by another officer, who also looked at the bait. Both returned to the “Lansdowne” and then conveyed to the “Adams” the direction that she should come to Digby and anchor near the “Lansdowne.” This was, in fact, the seizure.

Those are the circumstances by which the seizure was, in the opinion of Mr. Phelps, "much aggravated," and which makes it seem very apparent to him that the seizure "was not made for the purpose of enforcing any right, or redressing any wrong."

The fact that the seizure was preceded by visitations and searches was due to the statements of the master, and the reluctance of the officers of the "Lansdowne" to enforce the law until they had ascertained to a demonstration that the offence had been committed, and that the Captain's statements were untrue.

The Offence as to Customs' Laws.

The "David J. Adams," as already stated, was in the harbour upwards of forty eight hours, and, when seized, was proceeding to sea, without having been reported at any Customs House. Her business was not such as to make it her interest to attract the attention of the Canadian authorities, therefore, to conjecture the reason why she was not so reported, or to see that the reason put forward that Digby is but a small fishing settlement and its harbours not defined, is a disingenuous one. In going to the weir to purchase bait, the vessel passed the Customs House at Digby, almost within hailing distance. When at the weir, she was within one or two miles of another Customs House (at Clementsport), and within about fifteen miles of another (at Annapolis). The master has not asserted that he did not know the law on this subject, as it is established that he knew the law in relation to the restriction on foreign fishing vessels.

The provisions of the Customs Act of Canada on this subject are not essentially different from those of his own country. The captain and crew were ashore during the 5th and 6th of May, 1886. The following provisions of the Customs Act of Canada apply:—

1. The master of every vessel coming from Canada, or coastwise, and entering any port in Canada, whether laden or in ballast, shall go without delay, when such vessels is anchored or moored, to the port or place of entry where he arrives, and there make a report in writing to the collector or other proper officer, of the arrival and voyage of such vessel, stating her name, country and tonnage, the port of registry, the name of the master, the country of the owners, the number and the names of the passengers, if any, the number of the crew, and whether the vessel is laden or in ballast, and if laden, the marks and numbers of every package and parcel of goods on board, and where the same are laden, and the particulars of any goods stove loose, and where and to whom consigned, and where any and what goods, if any, have been laden or unladen, or bulk has been broken, during the voyage, what part of the cargo, and the number and names of the passengers which are intended to be landed at that port, and what and where at any other port in Canada, and what part of the cargo, if any, is intended to be exported in the same vessel, and what surplus stores remain on board, as far as any of such particulars are or can be known to him. —46 V. c. 12, s. 25.

2. If any goods are unladed from any vessel before such report is made, or if the master fails to make such report, or makes an untrue report, or does not truly answer the questions demanded of him, as provided in the next preceding section, he shall incur a penalty of four hundred dollars, and the vessel may be detained until such penalty is paid. —46 V. c. 12, s. 28.

Proceedings Following the Seizure.

These have been made the subject of a complaint by Mr. Phelps, although the explanations which were given in the previous memorandum of the undersigned (in reference to the letters of Mr. Bayard to Her Majesty's Minister at Washington) and in the report, on the same subject, of the Minister of Marine and Fisheries, laid before his Excellency the Governor General on the 14th June, ultimo, coupled with a dissavowal by the Canadian Government of any intention that the proceedings in such cases should be unnecessarily harsh or pursued in a punitive spirit, might have been expected to be sufficient. After the seizure was made, the commander of the "Lansdowne" took the "David J. Adams" across the Bay of Fundy to Saint John, a distance of about forty miles. He appears to have had the impression that, as his duties would not permit him to remain at Digby, the vessel would not be secure from rescue, which has in several cases occurred after the seizure of fishing vessels. He believed she would be more secure in the harbour of Saint John, and that the legal proceedings, which in due course would follow, could be taken there. He was
Mr. Phelps, by his seizure "was immediately directed, however, to return with the vessel to Digby, as it seemed more in order, and more in compliance with the statutes relating to the subject, that she should be detained in the place of seizure, and that the legal proceedings should be taken in the Vice-Admiralty Court of the Province where the offence was committed. It does not seem to be claimed by the United States' authorities that any damage to the vessel, or that any injury or inconvenience to any one concerned was occasioned by this removal to Saint John, and by her return to Digby, occupying as they did but a few hours, and yet this circumstance seems to be relied on as aggravating "the seizure," and as depriving it of the character of a seizure made "to enforce a right or to redress a wrong."

Another ground of complaint is that in Digby "the paper alleged to be the legal precept for the capture and detention of the vessel was nailed to her mast in such a manner as to prevent its contents being read, and the request of the captain and of the United States' Consul General to be allowed to detach the writ from the mast, for the purpose of learning its contents, was positively refused by the Provincial official in charge; that the United States' Consul General was not able to learn from the commander of the 'Lansdowne' the nature of the complaint against the vessel, and that his respectful application to that effect was fruitless."

1. As to the position of the paper on the mast. It is not a fact that it was nailed to the vessel's mast "in such a manner as to prevent its contents being read." It was nailed there for the purpose of being read, and could have been read.

2. As to the attachment. Such refusal was not intended as a discourtesy, but was legitimate and proper. The paper purported to be, and was, a copy of the writ of summons and warrant which were then in the Registry of the Vice-Admiralty Court at Halifax. It was attached to the mast by the Officer of the Court, in accordance with the rules and procedure of that Court. The purposes for which it was so attached did not admit of any consent for its removal.

3. As to the desire of the Captain and of the United States' Consul General to ascertain the contents of the paper. The original was in the Registry of the Court, accessible to every person, and the Registry is within eighty yards of the Consul General's Office. All the reasons for the seizure were made known to the Captain days before the paper arrived to be placed on the mast, and before the Consul General arrived at Digby. These reasons were not only matters of public notoriety, but had been published in the newspapers of the Provinces, and in hundreds of other newspapers circulating throughout Canada and the United States. The Captain and the Consul General did not need, therefore, to take the paper from the mast in order to learn the causes of the seizure and detention.

As to the application refused by the General having been in charge. The fact has transspired that he had reported the seizure and its causes to his Government before the application was made. It has been already explained in the previous memorandum of the undertaken, and in the report of the Minister of Marine and Fisheries, that the application was for a specific statement of the charges, and that it was made to an officer who had neither the legal acquirements nor the authority to state them in a more specific form than that in which he had already stated them. The Commander of the "Lansdowne" requested the Consul General to make his request to the Minister of Marine and Fisheries, and if he had done so the specific statement which he desired could have been furnished in an hour.

It is hoped that the explanation already made, and the precautions which have been taken against even the appearance of discourtesy in the future, will, on consideration, be found to be satisfactory.

Incidents of the Customs Seizure.

Mr. Phelps presents the following views with respect to the claim that the "David J.
Adams" besides violating the Treaty and the statutes relating to "fishing by foreign vessels," is liable to be detained for the penalty under the Customs Laws.

1. That this claim indicates the consciousness that the vessel could not be forfeited for the offence against the Treaty and Fishery Laws. This supposition is groundless. It is by no means uncommon, in legal proceedings, both in Canada and the United States, for such proceedings to be based on more than one charge, although any one of the charges would, in itself, if sustained, be sufficient for the purpose of the complainant. The success of this litigation, like that of all litigation, must depend not merely on the rights of the parties but on the proof which may be adduced as to a right having been infringed. In this instance it appears, from Mr. Phelps' letter, that the facts which are to be made the subject of proof are widely in dispute, and the Government of Canada could, with propriety, assert both its claims so that both of them should not be lost by any miscarriage of justice in regard to one of them.
This was, likewise, the proper course to be taken in view of the fact that an appeal might, at any time, be made to the Government by the owners of the "David J. Adams" for remission of the forfeiture incurred in respect of the Fishery Laws. The following is a section of the Canadian Statute relating to fishing by foreign vessels:

"In cases of seizure under this Act the Governor in Council may direct a stay of proceedings and release from the penalty, in whole or in part, and on such terms as are deemed right."—51 V, c. 61, s. 19.

It seemed necessary and proper to make at once any claim founded on injunction of the Customs Laws, in view of the possible termination of the proceedings by executive interference under this enactment. It would surely not be expected that the Government of Canada should wait until the termination of the proceedings under the Fishery Acts before asserting its claim to the penalty under the Customs Act. The owners of the offending vessel, and all concerned, were entitled to know, as soon as they could be made aware, what the claims of the Government were in relation to the vessel, and they might fairly urge that any which were not disclosed were waived.

2. Mr. Phelps' remarks that this charge is "not the one on which this vessel was seized," and "was an afterthought." The vessel was seized by the commander of the "Lansdowne" for a violation of the Fishery Laws before the Customs authorities had any knowledge that such a vessel had come into the port, or had attempted to leave it, and the Commander was not aware at that time whether the "David J. Adams" had made proper entry or not. A few hours afterwards, however, the Collector of Customs at Digby ascertained the facts, and on the facts being made known to the head of his Department at Ottawa, was immediately instructed to take such steps as might be necessary to assert the claim for the penalty which had been incurred. He Collector did so.

3. Mr. Phelps asserts that the charge of breach of the Customs Law is not the one "which must now be principally relied on for condemnation." It is true that condemnation does not necessarily follow. The penalty prescribed is a forfeiture of our hundred dollars, on payment of which the owners are entitled to the release of the vessel.

If Mr. Phelps means by the expression just quoted, that the Customs' offence cannot be relied on, in respect to the penalty claimed, and that the vessel cannot be detained until that penalty is paid, it can only be said that in this contention the Canadian Government does not concur. Section 29 of the Customs' Act, before quoted, is explicit on that point.

4. It is also urged that the offence was "only an accidental and clearly technical breach of a Customs House regulation, by which no harm was intended, and from which no harm came, and would in ordinary cases be easily condoned by an apology, and, perhaps, payment of costs." What has already been said under the heading, "The Offence (as to Custom Laws)," presents the contention opposed to the offence being considered as an accidental. The master of the "David J. Adams" showed by his language and conduct that what he did, he did with design and with the knowledge that he was violating the laws of the country. He could not have complied with the Customs Law without frustrating the purposes for which he had gone into port. As to the breach being a technical one, it must be remembered that with thousands of miles of coast, indented as the coasts of Canada are, by hundreds of harbours and inlets, it is impossible to enforce the Fishery Law without a strict enforcement of the Customs Laws. This difficulty was not unforeseen in the framers of the Treaty of 1818, who provided that the fishermen should be "under such restrictions as might be necessary to prevent their taking, drying, or curing fish, * * * or in any other manner whatever abusing the privileges reserved to them." No naval force which could be equipped by the Dominion would of itself be sufficient for the enforcement of the Fishery Laws. Foreign fishing vessels are allowed by the Treaty to enter the harbours and inlets of Canada, but they are allowed to do so only for specified purposes. In order to confine them to those purposes it is necessary to insist on the observance of the Customs Laws, which are enforced by officers all along the coast. A strict enforcement of the Customs Laws, and one consistent with the Treaty, would require that, even when coming into port for the purposes for which such vessels are allowed to enter our waters, a report should be made at the Customs House, but this has not been insisted on in all cases. When the Customs Laws are enforced against those who enter for other than legitimate purposes, and who choose to violate both the Fishery Laws and Customs Laws, the Government is far within its right, and should not be asked to accept an apology and payment of costs. It may be observed here, as affecting Mr. Phelps' demand for restoration and damages, that the apology and costs have never been tendered, and that Mr. Phelps seems to be of opinion that they are not called for.

5. Mr. Phelps is informed by the Consul General at Halifax that it is "conceded by the Customs authorities there that foreign fishing vessels have for forty years been accustomed to go in and out of the bay at pleasure, and have never been required to send ashore and report, where they had been, to the port, and had no business with the port, and that no seizure had ever before been made, or claim against them for so doing." Nothing of this kind is, or could be conceded by the Customs authorities there, or elsewhere in Canada. The bay referred to, the Annapolis Basin, is like all the other harbours of Canada, except that it is unusually well defined and land locked, and furnished with Customs Houses. Neither there, nor any where else, have foreign fishing vessels been accustomed to go in and out at pleasure without reporting. If they had been so permitted the fishery laws could not have been enforced, and Mr. Phelps has been no protection against illicit trade, when the Reciprocity Treaty of 1854 and the fishery clauses of the Washington Treaty were in force, the Convention of 1818 being of course suspended, considerable laxity was allowed to United States' fishing vessels, - much greater than the terms of those treaties entitled them to, but the Consul General is greatly mistaken when he supposes that at other times the Customs laws were not enforced, and that seizures of foreign fishing vessels were not made for omitting to report. Abundant evidence on this point can be had.

In 1839, Mr. Vail, the Acting Secretary of State (United States) reported that most of the seizures (which then were considered numerous) were for alleged violations of the Customs Laws. (Papers relating to the Treaty of Washington. Vol. 6, p. 283, Washington Edition.) From a letter of the United States' Consul at Charlottetown, dated 19th August, 1870, to the United States' Consul General at Montreal, it appears that it was the practice of the United States' fishermen at that time to make regular entry at the port to which they resorted. The Consul said 'here the fishermen enter and clear, and take out permits to land their mackerel from the collector, and as their mackerel is a free article in this island, there can be no illicit trade.' In the year 1870, two United States' fishing vessels, the "H. L. Lewis" and the "Granada" were seized on like charges in Canadian waters.

What Mr. Phelps styles "a Customs House regulation" is an Act of the Parliament of Canada, and has for many years been in force in all the Provinces of the Dominion. It is one which the Government cannot at all alter or repeal, and which its officers are not at liberty to disregard.

6. It is suggested, though not asserted, in the letter of Mr. Phelps, that the penalty cannot reasonably be insisted on, because a new rule has been suddenly adopted without notice. The rule, as before observed, is not a new one, nor is its enforcement a novelty. As the Government of the United States chose to put an end to the arrangements under which the fishermen of that country were accustomed to frequent Canadian waters with so much freedom, the obligation of giving notice to those fishermen, that their rights were thereafter, by the action of their own Government, to be greatly restricted, and that they must not infringe the laws of Canada, was surely a duty incumbent on the Government of the United States, rather than on that of Canada. This point cannot be better expressed than in the language reported to have been recently used by Mr. Bayard, the United States' Secretary of State, in his reply to the owners of the "George Cushing," a vessel recently seized on a similar charge. "You are well aware that questions are now pending between this Government and that of Great Britain in relation to the justification of the rights of American fishing vessels in the territorial waters of British North America, and we shall pursue no effort to arrive at a satisfactory solution of the difficulty. In the meantime it is the duty and manifest interest of all American citizens, entering Canadian jurisdiction, to assert their rights there in force. For all unlawful deprivations of property or commercial rights this Government will expect to procure redress and compensation for the innocent sufferers."

Interpretation of the Treaty.

Mr. Phelps after commenting in the language already quoted from his letter, on the claim for the Customs penalty, treats, as the only real question in the case, the question whether the vessel is to be forfeited for purchasing bait to be used in lawful fishing. In following his argument on this point, it should be borne in mind, as already stated, that, in so far as the fact of the bait having been intended to be used in lawful fishing is material to the case, that is a fact which is not admitted. It is one in respect of which the burden of proof is on the owners of the vessel, and it is one on which the owners have not obtained an adjudication by the tribunal before which the case has gone.

Mr. Phelps admits "that if the language of the Treaty of 1818 is to be interpreted literally, rather than according to its spirit and plain intent, a vessel engaged in fishing would be prohibited from entering a Canadian port for any purpose whatever, except to obtain wood or water, or to repair damages, or to seek shelter."

It is claimed on the part of the Government of Canada that this is not only the language of the Treaty of 1818, but "its spirit and plain intent." To establish this contention, it should be sufficient to point to the clear, unambiguous words of the Treaty. To those clear and unambiguous words Mr. Phelps has attached a hidden meaning, by suggesting that certain "preposterous consequences" might ensue from giving them their ordinary construction. He says that with such a construction a vessel might be forfeited for entering a port "to post a letter, to send a telegram, to buy a newspaper, to obtain a physician in case of illness, or a surgeon in case of accident, to land or bring off a passenger, or even to lend assistance to the inhabitants, &c.

There are probably few treaties or statutes, the literal enforcement of which might not in certain circumstances produce consequences worthy of being described as preposterous.

At most this argument can only suggest that in regard to this Treaty as in regard to every enactment its enforcement should not be insisted on where accidental hardships or "preposterous consequences are likely to ensue. Equity, and a sense of natural justice, would doubtless lead the Government with which the Treaty was made to abstain from its rigid enforcement for inadvertent offences, although the right so to enforce it might be beyond question. It is for this reason that inasmuch as the enforcement of this Treaty, to some extent, devolves on the Government of Canada, the Parliament of the Dominion has in one of the sections already quoted of the statute relating to "Fishing by foreign Vessels" (3 Vic, cap. 61, s. 19) entrusted the Executive with power to mitigate the severity of those provisions when an appeal to Executive interference can be justified. In relation to every law of a penal character the same power for the same purpose is vested in the Executive.

Mr. Phelps will find it difficult, however, to discover any authority among the jurisprudents of his own country or of Great Britain, or among the writers on International Law, for the position that against the plain words of a treaty or statute, an interpretation is to be sought which will obviate all chances of hardship and render unnecessary the exercise of the Executive power before mentioned.

It might fairly be urged against his argument, that the Convention of 1818 is less open to an attempt to change its plain meaning than even a statute would be. The latter is a declaration of its will by the supreme authority of the State, the former was a compact deliberately and solemnly made by two parties, each of whom expressed what he was willing to concede, and by what terms it was willing to be bound. If the purpose for which the United States desired that their fishing vessels should have the right to enter British American waters included other than those expressed, their desire cannot avail them now, nor be a pretext for a special interpretation, after they assented to the words "and for no other purpose whatever." If it was "preposterous" that their fishermen should be precluded from entering Provincial waters "to post a letter" or for any other of the purposes which Mr. Phelps mentions, they would probably never have assented to a treaty framed as this was. Having done so, they cannot now urge that their language was "preposterous" and that its effect must be destroyed by resort to "interpretation".

But that which Mr. Phelps calls "literal interpretation" is by no means so preposterous as he suggests, when the purpose and object of the treaty come to be considered. While it was not desired to interfere with ordinary commercial intercourse between the people of the two countries, the deliberate and declared purpose existed on the part of Great Britain, and the willingness existed on the part of the United States to secure, absolutely and free from the possibility of encroachment, the fisheries of the British possessions in America, to the people of those possessions, excepting as to certain localities in respect of which special provisions were made. To effect this it was not merely necessary that there should be a joint declaration of the right of the latter to be established, but means must be taken to preserve that right. For this purpose a distinction was necessarily drawn between United States' vessels engaged in commerce and those engaged in fishing. While the former had free access to our coasts, the latter were placed under a strict prohibition.

The purpose was to prevent the fisheries from being poached on, and to preserve them to "the subjects of His Britannic Majesty in North America" not only for the pursuit of fishing within the waters adjacent to the coast (which can under the law of nations be done by any nation but as a basis of supplies for the pursuit of fishing in the deep sea. For this purpose it was necessary to keep out foreign fishing vessels, excepting in cases of dire necessity, no matter under what pretext they might desire to come in. The fisheries could not be preserved to our people if every one of the United States' fishing vessels that were accustomed to swarm along our coasts could claim the right to enter our harbours, "to post a letter, or send a telegram, or buy a newspaper, to obtain a physician in case of illness, or a surgeon in case of accident, to land or bring off a passenger, or even to lend assistance to the inhabitants in fire, flood or pestilence," or to "buy medicine" or to "purchase a new rope." The slightest acquaintance with the negotiations which led to the Treaty of 1818, and with the state of the fisheries question preceding it, induces the belief that if the United States' negotiators had suggested these, as purposes for which their vessels should be allowed to enter our waters the proposal would have been rejected as "preposterous," to quote Mr. Phelps' own words. But Mr. Phelps appears to have overlooked an important part of the case, when he suggested that it is a "preposterous" construction of the treaty which would lead to the purchase of bait being prohibited. So far from such a construction being against "its spirit and plain intent," no other meaning would accord with that spirit and intent. If we adopt...

one of the methods, contended for by Mr. Phelps, of arriving at the true meaning of the treaty, namely, having reference to the "attending circumstances," &c., we find that so-far from its being considered by the framers of the treaty that a prohibition of the right to obtain bait would be a "preposterous" and an "extreme instance," a proposition was made by the United States' negotiators that the proviso should read thus: Provided, "however, that American fishermen shall be permitted to enter such bays and harbours, for the purposes only of obtaining shelter, wood, water, and bait;" and the insertion of the word "bait" was resisted by the British negotiators and struck out. After this how can it be contended that any rule of interpretation would be sound which would give to United States' fishermen the very pretension which was sought for on their behalf during the negotiations, successfully resisted by the British representatives and deliberately rejected by the framers of the convention?
It is a well known fact that the negotiations preceding the Treaty had reference very largely to the deep sea fisheries, and that the right to purchase bait in the harbours of the British possessions, for the deep sea fishing was one which the United States' fishermen were intentionally excluded from. Referring to the difficulties which subsequently arose from an enforcement of the Treaty, an American author says: "It will be seen that most of those difficulties arose from a change in the character of the fisheries. Cod being caught on the banks were seldom pursued within the three mile limit, and yet it was too cold, and perhaps halibut, that all the early negotiations had reference."
"The mackerel fishing had now sprung up in the Gulf of St. Lawrence, and had proved extremely profitable. This was at that time an inshore fishery." (Schuyler's American Diplo-many, page 411.)
In further amplification of this argument the undersigned would refer to the views set forth in the memorandum, before mentioned, in the letters of Mr. Bayard, in May last, and to those presented in the report of the Minister of Marine and Fisheries, approved on the 14th June, ultimo.
While believing, however, that Mr. Phelps cannot, by resort to any such matters, successfully establish a different construction for the Treaty from that which its words present, the undersigned submits that Mr. Phelps is mistaken as to the right to resort to any matters outside the Treaty itself to modify its plain words. Mr. Phelps expresses his contention thus:
"It seems to me clear that the Treaty may be considered in accordance with those ordinary and well settled rules, applicable to all written instruments, which, without such salutary assistance, must constantly fail of their purpose. By these rules the letter often gives way to the intent, or rather is only used to ascertain the intent, and the whole document will be taken together, and will be considered in connection with the attending circumstances, the situation of the parties and the object in view, and thus the literal meaning of an isolated clause is often shown not to be the meaning really understood or intended." It may be readily admitted that such rules of interpretation exist, but when are they to be applied?
Only when "interpretation" is necessary. When the words are plain in their ordinary meaning, the task of interpretation does not begin, Vattel says, in reference to the "Interpretation of Treaties":
"The first general maxim of interpretation is that, it is not allowable to interpret what has no need of interpretation. When the deed is worded in clear and precise terms; when the meaning is evident, and leads to no absurd conclusion, there can be no reason for refusing to admit the meaning which each deed naturally presents. To go elsewhere in search of conjectures, in order to restrict or extend it, is but an attempt to elude it."
Those cavillers who dispute the sense of a clear and determinate article are accustomed to seek their frivolous subterfuges in the pretended intentions and views which they attribute to its author. It would be very often dangerous to enter with them into the discussion of those supposed views that are pointed out in the piece itself. The following rule is better calculated to foil such cavillers and will at once cut short all chicanery. If he who could, and ought to have explained himself clearly and fully, has not done it, it is the worse for him; he cannot be allowed to introduce subsequent restrictions which he has not expressed.
This is a maxim of the Roman Law: Pacta sunt servanda, i.e., "every promise is sac-stem impermeabile conscribere." The equity of this rule is glaringly obvious and its necessity is not less evident." (Vattel's "Interpretation of Treaties" Liv. II, Cap. 17.) Sedgewich, the American writer, on the "Construction of Statutes," (and treaties are constructed by much the same rules as statutes), says, at page 194: "The rule is, as we shall constantly see, cardinal and universal, that if the statute is plain and unambiguous, there is no room for construction or interpretation. The Legislature has spoken, their intention is free from doubt, and their will must be obeyed. "It may be proper," it has been said in Kentucky, in giving a construction to a statute, to look to the effects and consequences, when its provisions are ambiguous, or the Legislative intention is doubtful. But when the law is clear and explicit, and its provisions are susceptible of but one interpretation, its consequences, if evil, can only be avoided by a change of the law itself, to be effected by legislative and not judicial action. So too it is said by the Supreme Court of the United States, where a law is plain and unambiguous, whether it be expressed in general or limited terms, the Legislature should be intended to mean what they have plainly expressed, and consequently no room is left for construction."

At the tribunal of Arbitration at Geneva, held under the Washington Treaty in 1872, a similar question arose. Counsel for Her Majesty's Government presented a supplemental argument in which the ordinary rules for the interpretation of Treaties were invoked. Mr. Evarts, one of the Counsel for the United States, and afterwards Secretary of State, made a supplemental reply to the argument, in the following passage occurs: "At the close of the special argument we find a general presentation of canons for the construction of the Treaties, and some general observations as to the light, or the controlling reason, under which these rules of the Treaty should be construed. These suggestions may be briefly dismissed. It certainly would be a great reproach to these nations, which had deliberately fixed upon three propositions, as expressive of the law of nations in their judgment for the purposes of this trial, that a resort to general instructions, for the purpose of interpretation, was necessary. Eleven canons of interpretation drawn from Vattel are presented in order, and then several of them, as the case suits, are applied as valuable in elucidating this or that point of the rules. But the learned Counsel has omitted to bring to your notice the first and most general rule of Vattel, which being once understood, would, as we think, dispense with any consideration of the subordinate canons, which Vattel has introduced, to be used only in case his first general rule does not apply. This first proposition is that "it is not allowable to interpret what has no need of interpretation." (Washington Treaty Papers, Vol. III. pp. 446–7.)

In a letter of Mr. Hamilton Fish to the United States' Minister in England, on the same subject, dated 16th April, 1872, the following view was set forth:—

"Further than this it appears to me that the principles of English and American law (and they are substantially the same) regarding the construction of Statutes and Treaties and of written instruments generally, would preclude the seeking of evidence of interest outside the instrument itself. It might be a painful trial on which to enter, in seeking the opinions and recollections of parties to bring into conflict the differing expectations of those who were engaged in the negotiation of an instrument." (Washington Treaty Papers, Vol. II, page 473.)

But even at this barrier, the difficulty in following Mr. Phelps' argument, by which he seeks to reach the interpretation he 'esires, does not end after taking a view of the Treaty which all authorities thus forbid. He says: "Thus regarded, it appears to me clear that the words 'for no other purpose whatever,' as employed in the Treaty, mean 'for no other purpose inconsistent with the provisions of the Treaty.'"

Taken in that sense the words would leave no meaning, for no other purpose would be consistent with the Treaty, excepting those mentioned.

He proceeds, "or prejudicial to the interests of the Provinces or their inhabitants."

If the United States' authorities are the judges as to what is prejudicial to those interests, the Treaty will have very little value. If the Provinces are to be the judges, it is most prejudicial to them. That the United States' fishermen should be permitted to come into their harbours on any pretext, and it is fatal to their fishery interests that those fishermen, with whom they have to compete at such a disadvantage in the markets of the United States, should be allowed to enter for supplies and bait, even for the pursuit of the deep sea fisheries. Before concluding his remarks on this subject, the undersigned would refer to a passage in the answer on behalf of the United States to the case of Her Majesty's Government, as presented to the Halifax Fisheries Commission in 1877: "The various incidental and reciprocal advantages of the Treaty, such as the privileges of traffic, purchasing bait and other supplies, are not the subject of compensation, because the Treaty of Washington confers no such rights on the inhabitants of the United States, who now enjoy them merely by sufferance, and who can at any time be deprived of them by the enforcement of existing laws, or the re-enactment of former oppressive Statutes."

Mr. Phelps has made a lengthy citation from the Imperial Act, 59 Geo. III. cap. 38, for the purpose of establishing:

1st. That the penalty of forfeiture was not incurred by any entry into British ports, unless accompanied by fishing, or preparing to fish, within the prohibited limits.

2nd. That it was not the intention of Parliament, or its understanding of the Treaty, that any other entry should be regarded as an infraction of the provisions of that Act.

As regards the latter point it seems to be effectually disposed of by the quotation which Mr. Phelps has made. The Act permits fishermen of the United States to enter into the bays or harbours of His Britannic Majesty's Dominions in America for the purposes named in the Treaty, and for no other purpose whatever; and after enacting the penalty of forfeiture, in regard to certain offences, provides a penalty of £200 sterling against any person otherwise offending against the Act. It cannot, therefore, be successfully contended that Parliament intended to permit entry into the British American waters for the purchase of fish as for any other than the purposes specified in the Treaty.

As to the first point it is to be observed that the penalty of forfeiture was expressly pronounced as applicable to the offence of fishing or preparing to fish. It may be the forfeiture is incurred by other illegal entry, contrary to the Treaty and contrary to the Statute. It may also be contended that preparing within the prohibited limits to fish in any place is the offence at which the penalty is aimed, or it may be that the preparing within these waters to fish, is evidence of preparing to fish within the prohibited waters under the Imperial Statute, and especially under the Canadian Statute which places the burden of proof on the defendant.

The undersigned does not propose, at this time, to enter into any elaborate argument to show the grounds on which the penalty of forfeiture is available, because that question is one which is more suitable for determination by the courts, to whose decision it has been referred in the very case under consideration.

The decision in the case of the "David J. Adams" will be soon pronounced, and as the Government of Canada will be bound by the ultimate judgment of competent authority on this question, and cannot be expected to acquiesce in the view of the United States' Government, without such judgment, any argument of the case in diplomatic and future.

In order, however, to show that Mr. Phelps is in error when he assumes that the practical construction hitherto given to the Treaty is in accordance with its views, it is as well to state that in the year 1815 the Commander of one of Her Majesty's ships of war seized four British vessels (see Sabine on Fisheries), and again in 1817 the Imperial Government acted on the view that they had the right to seize foreign vessels encroaching on the fishing grounds. Instructions were issued by Great Britain to seize foreign vessels fishing or at anchor in any of the harbours or creeks in the British North American possessions, or within their jurisdiction, and send them to Halifax for adjudication. Several vessels were seized and information was fully communicated to the Government of the United States. This, it will be remembered, was not only before the Imperial Act above referred to.

The following were the words of the Admiralty instructions then issued: "On your meeting with any foreign vessel fishing or at anchor in any of the harbours or creeks in His Majesty's North American Provinces, or within our maritime jurisdiction, you will seize and send such vessel so trespassing to Halifax for adjudication, unless it should clearly appear that they have been obliged to put in there in consequence of distress, acquainting me with the cause of such seizure, and every other particular, to enable me to give all information to the Lord's Commissioners of the Admiralty."

Under these instructions eleven or twelve American vessels were seized in Nova Scotia on 8th June, 1817, in consequence of their frequenting some of the harbours of that Province.

In 1818 the fishing vessels "Nabby" and "Washington" were seized and condemned for entering and harbouring in British American waters.

In 1839 the "Java," "Independence," "Magnolia" and "Hart" were seized and confiscated, the principal charge being that they were within British American waters without legal cause.

In 1840 the "Papineau" and "Mary" were seized and sold for purchasing bait.

In the spring of 1819 a United States' fishing vessel named the "Charles" was seized and condemned in the Vice-Admiralty Court in New Brunswick for having resorted to a harbour of that Province after warning and without necessity.

In the year 1871 the United States' fishing vessel "J. H. Nickerson" was seized for having purchased bait within three marine miles of the Nova Scotia shore, and condemned by the judgment of Sir William Young, Chief Justice of Nova Scotia, and Judge of the Court of Vice-Admiralty. The following is a passage from his judgment: "The vessel has not to obtain water or men, as the allegation says, but to purchase or procure bait (which, as I take it, is a preparing to fish), and it was contended that they had a right to do so, and that no forfeiture accrued upon such entering. The answer is, that if a privilege to enter our harbours for bait was to be conceded to American fishermen it ought to have been in the Treaty, and it is too important a matter to have been accidentally overlooked. We know, indeed, from the State papers, that it was not overlooked, that it was suggested and declined. But the Court, as I have already intimated, does not insist upon that as a reason for its judgment. What may be fairly and justly insisted on is, that beyond the four purposes specified in the Treaty—shelter, repairs, water and wood—here is another purpose or claim, not specified, while the Treaty itself declares that no such other purpose or claim shall be received to justify any entry. It appears to me an inevitable conclusion that the "J. H. Nickerson" in entering the Bay of Ingonish for the purpose of procuring bait, while there, became liable to forfeiture and upon the true construction of the Treaty and Acts of Parliament was legally seized. (Vide Halifax Com., Vol. III, pp. 3398, Washington Edition.)

In view of these seizures and of this decision it is difficult to understand the following passages in the letter of Mr. Phelps: "The practical construction given to the Treaty, down to the present time, has been in entire accord with the conclusions thus deduced from the Act of Parliament. The British Government has repeatedly refused to allow interference with American fishing vessels, unless for illegal fishing, and has given explicit orders to the contrary."

"Judicial authority upon the question is to the same effect. That the purchase of bait by American fishermen in the Provincial ports has been a common practice is well known, but in no case, so far as I can ascertain, has a seizure of an American vessel ever been enforced on the ground of the purchase of bait, or of any other supplies. On the hearing before the Halifax Fishery Commission in 1877-78 this question was discussed and no case could be produced of any such condemnation. Vessels shown to have been condemned were in all cases adjudged guilty either of fishing or preparing to fish, within the prohibited limits."

Although Mr. Phelps is under the impression that "in the hearing before the Halifax Fishery Commission in 1877 this question was discussed and no case could be produced of any such condemnation," the fact appears in the records of that Commission, as published by the Government of the United States, that on a discussion which there arose, the instances above mentioned were nearly all cited, and the judgment of Sir William Young in the case of the "J. H. Nickerson" was presented in full, and it now appears among the papers of that Commission (see Vol. III, Documents and Proceedings of Halifax Commission, page 3398, Washington edition). The decision in the case of the "J. H. Nickerson" was subsequent to that in the case of the "White Fawn" mentioned to the exclusion of all the other cases referred to by Mr. Phelps. Whether that decision should be reaffirmed or not is a question more suitable for judicial determination than for discussion here.

Right of the Dominion Parliament to Make Fishery Enactments.

Mr. Phelps deems it unnecessary to point out that it is not in the power of the Canadian Parliament to alter or enlarge the provisions of the Act of the Imperial Parliament, or to give to the Treaty a construction or legal effect not warranted by that Act.

No attempt has ever been made by the Parliament of Canada or by that of any of the Provinces to give a "construction" to the Treaty, but the undersigned submits that the right of the Parliament of Canada, with the Royal assent given in the manner provided in the constitution, to pass an Act on this subject to give that Treaty effect, or to protect the people of Canada from the infringement of the Treaty provisions, is clear beyond question. An Act of that Parliament duly passed, according to constitutional forms, has as much the force of law in Canada and binds as fully offenders who may come within its jurisdiction, as any Act of the Imperial Parliament.

The efforts made on the part of the Government of the United States to deny and refute the validity of Colonial statutes on this subject have been continued for many years, and in every instance have been set at nought by the Imperial authorities and by the judicial tribunals.

In May, 1870, this vain contention was completely abandoned. A circular was issued by the Treasury Department at Washington, in which circular the persons to whom it was sent were authorized and directed to inform all masters of fishing vessels that the authorities of the Dominion of Canada had resolved to terminate the system of granting fishing licenses to foreign vessels.

The circular proceeds to state the terms of the Treaty of 1818, in order that United States' fishermen might be informed of the limitation thereby placed on their privileges. It proceeds further to set out at large the Canadian Act of 1868, relating to fishing by foreign vessels, which has been hitherto referred to.

The fishermen of the United States were by that circular expressly warned of the nature of the Canadian statute which is now once more pretended is without force, but no intimation was given to those fishermen that these provisions were nugatory, and would be resisted by the United States Government. Let there should be any misapprehension on that subject, however, on 9th June of the same year, less than a month after that circular, another circular was issued from the same Department, stating again the terms of the Treaty of 1818, and these containing the following paragraph:

"Fishermen of United States are bound to respect the British laws for the regulation and preservation of the fisheries, to the same extent to which they are applicable to British and Canadian fishermen." The same circular, noticing the change made in the Canadian Fishery Act of 1868, by the Amendment of 1870, makes this observation: "It will be observed that the warning formerly given is not required under the amended Act, but that vessels trespassing are liable to seizure without such warning."

The Canadian Statute of 1886.

Mr. Phelps is again under an erroneous impression, with regard to the statute introduced at the last session of the Dominion Parliament.

He is informed that "since the seizure the Canadian authorities have pressed, or are pressing through the Canadian Parliament, in much haste, an Act, which is designed, for the first time in the history of the legislation under this Treaty, to make the facts upon which the American vessels have been seized illegal, and to authorize proceedings against them therefor."

The following observations are appropriate in relation to this passage of Mr. Phelps' letter:

1. The Act which he refers to, was not pressed with haste. It was passed through the two Houses in the usual manner, and with the observance of all the usual forms. Its passage occupied probably more time than was occupied in the passage through the Congress of the United States, of a measure which possesses much the same character, and which will be referred to hereafter.

2. The Act has no bearing on the seizures referred to.

3. It does not make any Act illegal which was legal before, but declares what penalty attaches to the offences which were already prohibited.

It may be observed, in reference to the charges of "undue haste" and of "legislating for the first time in the history of the legislation under the Treaty," that before the Statute referred to had become law the United States' Congress passed a Statute containing the following section:

"That whenever any foreign country whose vessels have been placed on the same footing in the ports of United States as American vessels (the coastwise trade excepted) shall deny to any vessels of the United States at any of the commercial privileges accorded to national vessels in the harbours, ports, or waters of such foreign country, the President, on receiving satisfactory information of the continuance of such discriminations against any vessels of the United States, is hereby authorized to issue his proclamation, excluding, on and after such time as he may indicate, from the exercise of such commercial privileges in the ports of the United States as are denied to American vessels in the ports of such foreign country, all vessels of such foreign country of a similar character to the vessels of the United States thus discriminated against and suspending such concessions previously granted to the vessels of such country, and on and after the date named in such proclamation for it to take effect, if the master, officer or agent of any vessel of such foreign country excluded by said proclamation from the exercise of any commercial privileges shall do any act prohibited by said proclamation, in the ports, harbours, or waters of the United States for or on account of such vessel, such vessel, and its rigging, tackle, furniture, and boats, and all the goods on board shall be liable to seizure and forfeiture to the United States, and any person opposing or interfering with such officer in the enforcement of this Act, or aiding and abetting any other person in such opposition, shall forfeit eight hundred dollars, and be guilty of a misdemeanor, and, upon conviction, shall be liable to imprisonment for a term not exceeding two years."

This enactment has all the features of hostility which Mr. Phelps has stigmatized as "unprecedented in the history of legislation under the Treaty."

Enforcement of the Acts Without Notice.

Mr. Phelps insisted upon what he regards as "obvious grounds of reason and justice" and "upon common principles of comity," that previous notice should have been given of the "new and stringent restrictions" it was intended to enforce. It has already been shown that no new restrictions have been attempted. The case of the "David J. Adams" is proceeding under the Statutes which have been enforced during the whole time when the Treaty had operation.

It is true that for a short time prior to the Treaty of Washington, and when expectations existed of such a Treaty being arrived at, the instructions of 1870, which are cited by Mr. Phelps, were issued by the Imperial authorities. It is likewise true that under these instructions the rights of Her Majesty's subjects in Canada were not insisted on, in their entirety. These instructions were obviously applicable to the particular time at which and the particular circumstances under which they were issued by Her Majesty's Government.
But it is obviously unfair to invoke them now, under wholly different circumstances, as establishing a "practical construction" of the Treaty, or as affording any ground for claiming that the indulgence which they extended should be perpetual.

The fishery clauses of the Treaty of Washington were annulled by a notice from the Government of the United States, and, as has already been urged, it would seem to have been the duty of that Government, rather than of the Government of Canada, to have warned its people of the consequences which must ensue. This was done in 1870 by the circulators from the Treasury Department at Washington, and might well have been done at this time.

Mr. Phelps has been pleased to stigmatize "the action of the Canadian authority in seizing and still detaining the 'David J. Adams' as not only unfriendly and discourteous, but altogether unwarrantable."

He proceeds to state that that vessel "had violated no existing law," although his letter cites the statute which she had directly and plainly violated, and he states that she "had incurred no penalty that any existing statute imposed," while he has quoted at large the words which inflict a penalty for the violation of that statute. He declares, it seems impossible for him to escape the conclusion that "this and similar seizures were made by the Canadian authorities for the deliberate purpose of harassing and embarrassing the American fishing vessels in the pursuit of their lawful employment," and that the injury is "very much aggravated by the motives which appear to have prompted it."

He professes to have found the real source of the difficulty in "the irritation which has taken place among a portion of the Canadian people, on account of the termination by the United States' Government of the Washington Treaty," and in a desire to drive the United States, by harassing and annoying their fishermen, into the adoption of a new Treaty, by which Canadian fishermen have been admitted free, and he declares that "this scheme is likely to prove mistaken in policy as it is unjustifiable in principle."

He might, perhaps, have more accurately stated the real source of the difficulty had he suggested that the United States' authorities have long endeavored, and are still endeavoring, to obtain that which, by their solemn Treaty, they deliberately renounced, and to deprive the Canadian people of that which by Treaty the Canadian people lawfully acquired.

The people of the British North American Provinces, ever since the year 1818 (with the exception of those periods in which the Reciprocity Treaty and the Fishery clauses of the Washington Treaty prevailed) have, at enormous expense, and with great difficulty, been protecting their fisheries against encroachments by fishermen of the United States, carried on under every form and pretext, and aided by such denunciations as Mr. Phelps has thought proper to reproduce on this occasion. They value no less now than they formerly did the rights which were secured to them by the Treaty, and they are still indisposed to yield those rights, either to individual aggression or official demands.

The course of the Canadian Government since the rescission of the Fishery clauses of the Washington Treaty has been such as hardly to merit the aspersions which Mr. Phelps has used. In order to avoid irritation, and to meet a desire which the Government represented by Mr. Phelps professed to entertain for the settlement of all questions which a wild re-awakened controversy, they concurred, for six months, after the expiration of those clauses, all the benefits which the United States' fishermen had enjoyed under them, although during that interval the Government of the United States enforced against Canadian fishermen the laws which those fishery clauses had suspended.

Mr. Bayard, the United States' Secretary of State, has made some recognition of these facts in a letter which he is reported to have written recently to the owners of the "David J. Adams." He says:

"More than one year ago I sought to protect our citizens engaged in fishing from results which might attend any possible misunderstanding between the Governments of Great Britain and the United States, as to the measure of their mutual rights and privileges in the territorial waters of British North America. After the termination of the Fishery Articles of the Treaty of Washington, in June last, it seemed to me then, and seems to me now, very hard that differences of opinion between the two Governments should cause loss to honest citizens, whose line of obedienc might be thus rendered vague and uncertain, and their property be brought into jeopardy. Influenced by this feeling I procured a temporary arrangement, which secured our fishermen full enjoyment of all Canadian fisheries, free from molestation, during a period which would permit discussion of a just international settlement of the whole fishery question; but other counsels prevailed, and my efforts further to protect fishermen from such trouble as you now suffer, were unavailing."

"At the end of the interval of six months, the United States' authorities concluded to refrain from any attempt to negotiate for larger fishery rights for their people, and they have continued to enforce their Customs laws against the fishermen people of Canada.
The least they could have been expected to do under these circumstances was to leave to the people of Canada the full and unquestioned enjoyment of the rights secured to them by Treaty.

The Government of Canada has simply insisted upon those rights, and has presented to the legal tribunals its claim to have them enforced.

The insinuations of ulterior motives, the imputations of unfriendly dispositions, and the singularly inaccurate representation of all the leading features of the questions under discussion may, it has been assumed, be passed by with little more comment. They are hardly likely to induce Her Majesty's Government to sacrifice the rights which they have heretofore helped our people to protect, and they are too familiar to awaken indignation or surprise.

The undersigned respectfully recommends that the substance of this memorandum, if approved, be forwarded to the Secretary of State for the Colonies, for the information of Her Majesty's Government.

Sir,—I am directed by the Earl of Iddesleigh to transmit to you a copy of a despatch from Her Majesty's Minister at Washington, remonstrating against the action of the Canadian authorities in detaining the United States' fishing vessel "Everitt Steele," which is alleged to have entered Shelburnes Harbour for shelter, water, and repairs.

I am to request that you will move Mr. Secretary Stanhope to ask for an immediate report from the Canadian Government upon the circumstances of this case; and I am to suggest that the opportunity might perhaps be taken to urge upon the Dominion Government the great importance of issuing stringent instructions to all officials connected with the fisheries to the effect that great care should be taken not to interfere with the privileges expressly reserved to American fishermen under Article I of the Convention of 1818.

MY LORD,—I have the honour to enclose to Your Lordship herewith copy of a note which I have received from the Secretary of State, bringing to the notice of Her Majesty's Government the case of the United States' fishing vessel "Everitt Steele," which is alleged to have entered the Port of Shelburne, Nova Scotia, for shelter, water, and repairs, and to have been detained by the captain of the Canadian cruiser "Terror."

[Enclosure No. 3.]

Mr. Bayard to Sir L. West.

WASHINGTON, 19th October, 1886.

SIR,—The "Everitt Steele," a fishing vessel of Gloucester, Mass., in the United States, of which Chas. E. Forbes, an American citizen, was master, was about to enter, on the 10th of September, 1886, the harbour of Shelburne, Nova Scotia, to procure water, and for shelter during repairs. She was hailed when entering the harbour by the Canadian cutter "Terror," by whose Captain, Quigley, her papers were taken and retained. Captain Forbes on arriving off the town anchored and went with Captain Quigley to the Custom House, who asked... him whether he reported whenever he had come in. Captain Forbes answered that he had always reported with the exception of a visit on the 25th of March, when he was driven into the lower harbour for shelter by a storm and where he remained only eight hours. The collector did not consider that this made the vessel liable, but Captain Quigley refused to discharge her, said he would keep her until he heard from Ottawa, put her in charge of policemen and detained her until next day, when at noon she was discharged by the collector. But a calm having come on she could not get to sea, and by the delay her bait was spoiled and the expected profits of her trip lost.

It is scarcely necessary for me to remind you, in presenting this case to the consideration of your Government, that when the north-eastern coast of America was wrested from France in a large measure by the valor and enterprise of New England fishermen they enjoyed in common with other British subjects, the control of the fisheries with which that coast was enriched; and that by the Treaty of Peace of 1783, which, as was said by an eminent English judge when treating an analogous question, was a treaty of "Separation," this right was expressly affirmed. It is true that by the Treaty of 1818, the United States renounced a portion of its rights in these fisheries, retaining, however, the old prerogatives of visiting the bays and harbours of the British north-eastern possessions for the purpose of obtaining wood, water and shelter, and for objects incidental to those other rights of territoriality so retained and confirmed. What is the nature of these incidental prerogatives, it is not, in considering this case, necessary to discuss. It is enough to say that Captain Forbes entered the harbour of Shelburne to obtain shelter and water, and that he had as much right to be there, under the Treaty of 1818, confirming in this respect the ancient privileges of American fishermen on those coasts, as he would have had on high seas, carrying on, under shelter of the flag of the United States, legitimate commerce. The Government which you so honourably represent has with its usual candour and magnanimity conceded that when a merchant vessel of the United States is stopped in time of peace by a British cruiser on the grounds of being a slave trader, damages are to be paid to this Government, not merely to redress the injuries suffered, but as an apology for the insult offered to the flag of the United States. But the case now presented to you is a much stronger one than that of a seizure on the high seas of a ship unjustly suspected of being a slaver. When a vessel is seized on the high seas on such suspicion, its seizure is not on waters where its rights, based on prior and continuous ownership, are guaranteed by the sovereign making the seizure. If in such case the property of the owner is injured, it is, however wrongful the act, a case of rare occurrence on seas comparatively unfrequented, with consequences not very far reaching; and if a blow is struck at a system of which such vessel is unjustly supposed to be a part, such system is one which the civilized world excretes.

But seizures of the character of that which I now present to you have no such features. They are made in waters not only conquered and owned by American fishermen, but for the very purpose for which they were being used by Captain Forbes, guaranteed to them by two successive Treaties between the United States and Great Britain. These fishermen also, I may be permitted to remind you, were engaged in no nefarious trade. They pursue one of the most useful and meritorious of industries; they gather from the seas, without detriment to others, a food which is nutritious and cheap for the use of an immense population; they belong to a stock of men which contributed, before the revolution, most essentially to British victories on the north-eastern Atlantic; and it may not be out of place to say they have shown since that revolution, when serving in the navy of the United States, that they have lost none of their ancient valour, hardihood and devotion to their flag.

The indemnity which the United States has claimed, and which Great Britain has conceded, for the visitation and search of isolated merchantmen seized on remote African seas on unfounded suspicion of being slavers, it cannot do otherwise now than claim, with a gravity which the importance of the case demands, for its fishermen seized on waters in which they have as much right to traverse for shelter as have vessels by which they are molested. This shelter, it is important to observe, they will, as a class, be debarred from if annoyances such as I now submit to you are permitted to be inflicted on them by minor officials of the British Provinces.

Fishermen, as you are aware, have been considered, from the usefulness of their occupation, from their simplicity, from the perils to which they are exposed, and from the small quantity of provisions and protective implements they are able to carry with them, the wards of civilized nations, and it is one of the peculiar glories of Great Britain that she has taken the position, a position now generally accepted, that even in time of war, they are not to be the subjects of capture by hostile cruisers. Yet in defence of this immunity, thus generously granted by humanity and the laws of nations, the very shelter to which they are allowed admission, and which is ratified to them by two successive Treaties, is to be denied to them, not, I am confident, by the act of the wise, humane and magnanimous Government you represent, but by deputys of deputys permitted to pursue, not uninfluenced by local rivalry, these methods of annoyance in fishing waters which our fishermen have as much right to visit on lawful errands as those officials have themselves. For let it be remembered that by annoyances and expulsions such as these, the door of shelter is shut to American fishermen as a class.

If a single refusal of that shelter such as the present be sustained, it is a refusal of shelter to all fishermen pursuing their tasks in those inhospitable coasts. Fishermen have not funds enough, or outfit enough, nor I may add, recklessness enough, to put into harbours where, perfect as is their title, they meet with such treatment as that suffered by Captain Forbes.

To sanction such treatment, therefore, is to sanction the refusal to the United States fishmen as a body of that shelter to which they are entitled by ancient right, by the law of nations, and by solemn Treaty. Nor is this all. That Treaty is part of a system of mutual concessions, as was stated by a most eminent English Judge in the case of Sutton v. Sutton, (1 Nyl v. r. 673,) which I have already noticed, it was the principle of the Treaty of Peace and of the Treaties which followed between Great Britain and the United States, that the "subjects of the two parts of the divided empire should be, notwithstanding the separation, protected in the mutual enjoyment" of the rights these Treaties affirmed. If, as I cannot permit myself to believe, Great Britain should refuse to citizens of the United States the enjoyment of the plainest and most undeniable of these rights, the consequences would be so serious that they cannot be contemplied by this Government but with the gravest concern.

My Lord,—In connection with my preceding despatch, I have the honour to enclose to Your Lordship herewith copy of a further note which I have received from the Secretary of State, together with copy of the document which accompanied it, drawing the attention of Her Majesty's Government to the case as therein set forth of the United States' fishing vessel "Pearl Nelson," which it is alleged, has been subjected to treatment by the Customs officials at Arichat (N.S.) inconsistent with the national law of ordinary amity and hospitality, and also plainly violative of treaty rights under the Convention of 1818 between Great Britain and the United States.

[Enclosure No. 6.]

Mr. Bayard to Sir L. West.

WASHINGTON, 20th October, 1886.

Sir,—Permit me to ask you to draw the attention of your Government to the case set forth in the enclosed affidavit of Murdoch Kemp, master of the American fishing vessel "Pearl Nelson," of Provincetown, Mass., which has been subjected to treatment by the Customs officials at Arichat, Nova Scotia, inconsistent with the international law of ordinary amenity and hospitality, and also plainly violative of treaty rights under the Convention of 1818, between Great Britain and the United States.

The vessel in question was compelled by stress of weather to seek shelter in the harbour of Arichat, N.S., and arrived late at night when the Custom House was closed. Before the Custom House was opened the next day the captain went there, and after waiting over an hour, the collector arrived and the usual inward report was made and permission asked to land the clothing of a sailor lost overboard, whose family resided in that vicinity.

He was then informed that his vessel was seized for allowing his crew to go ashore the night before, before reporting at the Custom House.

The cruel irony of this was apparent when the Collector knew such report was impossible and that the landing of the crew was usual and customary, and that no charge of smuggling had been suggested or was possible under the circumstances.

To compel the payment of a fine or a deposit of $290, which is practically the same in its results, was harsh and unwarranted and was adding a price and a penalty to the privilege of shelter guaranteed to American fishermen by treaty.

I beg you will lose no time in representing the wrong inflicted upon an unoffending citizen of the United States, and procure the adoption of such orders as will restore the money so compelled to be deposited.

I am, &c.                      (Sd) T. F. BAYARD.

The Honourable Sir L. West, K.C.M.G., &c., &c., &c.

[Enclosure No. 7.]

I, Murdoch Kemp, of Provincetown, Massachusetts, a citizen of the United States, on my oath do say: That I was master and part owner of the schooner "Pearl Nelson," a vessel of the United States, duly licensed,—1886, for the fisheries, and holding a permit to touch and trade during the existence of said license.

I further say that the crew of the said vessel were shipped on wages at Provincetown and Boston for a fishing voyage to the Grand Banks and return to Provincetown for discharge. Said schooner with license and permit aforesaid, sailed May 29th, 1886, from Provincetown, and on her passage home touched at Arichat, Cape Breton, driven in there by stress of weather; sailed by the wind from Banquereau and blowing fresh, a heavy sea running, and foggy, made Point Michaux, nine miles from Arichat. The vessel was deep, her dorsa floated on deck in her lee waist, wind being about west. I concluded to make a harbour and wait for better weather and wind.

I anchored the vessel in Arichat Harbour at 11 p.m., September 7th, 1886. I had lost a man on the Grand Banks named James Sampson, who belonged to Arichat, and I wanted to land his effects; if the Customs officer would allow me to. Some of my crew belonged in that neighborhood. William Batino, my cook, and nine others of my crew took boats off the deck and went ashore without asking my permission. I saw them, but had never known that was any objection. I had been in this and other British and American ports frequently, and witnessed the landing from my own and other vessels crews, but never before heard such landing was illegal or improper. These men took nothing with them from the vessel, nor carried away anything but the clothes they wore.

From the time I left Provincetown I had been into no port anywhere. Next morning after my arrival in Arichat, at 8.30 o'clock, I went ashore to enter at the Custom House, and found it closed. I called at 9 o'clock and it was not open. I went again at 10 o'clock, and found the Collector opening the office door. I made the regular inward report to him, and requested permission to land the clothes of James Sampson, who had been lost from my vessel on the Grand Banks.

He told me he had sent a man for me. After I got there this man came in the office and was holding my papers, and told the man to go back and take charge of the vessel.

I asked him why he held my papers. He replied he seized her because I had allowed my men to go ashore before reporting at the Custom House; that all he could tell me was, he said he would telegraph to Ottawa and find out what to do with me, and he did telegraph immediately. About 5 o'clock, p.m., the Collector received an answer and told me to deposit $200 and the vessel would be released. The Collector would not allow me to land this dead man's clothes until after I had paid the $200 fine. I gave the clothes to the shop-keeper to be given to Sampson's widow or friends. I came out of Arichat about 11 a.m. on the 4th of September, 1886, having bought there one bushel of potatoes, with the Collector's permit, and arrived (at) Provincetown, 14th September, 1886.

I sailed from Arichat with all my crew on board, and had not at any time intended to leave any of my crew at that port. They were hired men, shipped to be discharged on return at Provincetown, and on our arrival there were all paid off and discharged. Some of the crew that went ashore at Arichat returned aboard as early as 7 o'clock, and all were aboard about the time the vessel was seized. I gave them no money there and had none myself. I further say I did not enter Arichat with any intention of violating any law of the Dominion of Canada, nor for any business, but solely because of the stress of weather that had driven me there. It was mere kindness only that prompted me to offer to land Sampson's clothes there where his friends could get them. There was no profit to the vessel, crew or myself expected in doing, or attempted to be gained in entering the port of Arichat other than shelter from the stress of weather we had been under from Banquereau. If any revenue law of Canada was violated by my vessel, or by myself, the same was done through ignorance and inadvertence, and not with any intention to defraud the revenue or offend the law.

Personally appeared before me, Murdoch Kemp, at Provincetown, State of Massachusetts, U.S.A., this 27th day of September, 1886, who subscribed and made oath to the foregoing.

OTTAWA, 29th November, 1886.

Sir,—With reference to your telegraphic message of the 6th inst., asking to be furnished with a report in the case of the "Pearl Nelson" and "Everitt Steele," I have the honour to transmit herewith a copy of an approved Minute of the Privy Council of Canada, embodying a report of my Minister of Marine and Fisheries to which is appended a copy of the correspondence which has passed between the Commissioner of Customs for Canada and the United States' Consul General at Halifax relating to the case of the American schooner "Pearl Nelson."

[Enclosure No. 1.]

CERTIFIED COPY of a Report of a Committee of the Honourable the Privy Council for Canada, approved by His Excellency the Governor General in Council on the 18th November, 1886.

The Committee of the Privy Council are in receipt of a telegram from the Right Honourable the Secretary of State for the Colonies in the words "United States Government protest against proceedings of Canadian authorities in case of 'Pearl Nelson,' and 'Everit Steele,' said to have put into Arochant and Shelburne respectively, for purposes sanctioned by convention—particulars by post, send report soon as possible."

The Minister of Marine and Fisheries, to whom the telegram was referred, submits a copy of a letter addressed by the Commissioner of Customs for Canada to the Consul General of the United States at Halifax, and also a copy of Mr. Phelan's reply thereto.

The Minister also submits that it is clear from Captain Kempt's affidavit that he was guilty of an infraction of the Customs regulations in allowing men to land from his vessel before she had been reported, and the Minister of Customs having favourably considered Captain Kempt's representations as to his ignorance of the Customs regulations, requiring that vessels should be reported before landing either men or cargo therefrom, has remitted the fine of $200 which had been imposed in the case of the American schooner "Pearl Nelson."

The Minister further submits that it would appear from the report of the Collector of Customs that his remark that "he would seize the vessel" had reference solely to her violation of the Customs law, and that no evidence is given of any desire or intention of denying to the Captain of the "Pearl Nelson" any treaty privileges he was entitled to enjoy.

The Committee, conciliating in the above, respectfully recommend that Your Excellency be moved to transmit a copy of this minute, if approved, to the Right Honourable the Secretary of State for the Colonies.

All which is respectfully submitted for Your Excellency's approval.

OTTAWA, 22nd October, 1886.

Sir,—I have the honour to acknowledge the receipt of your letter of the 11th instant, seizes the American schooner "Pearl Nelson," for a refraction of the Customs laws, &c.

The Commissioner of Customs' report in connection with this matter, which has been approved by the Minister of Customs, reads as follows:-

"The undersigned having examined this case, has come to the conclusion that the captain of the vessel did violate the provisions of sections 25 and 160 of the Customs Act, 1883, by landing a number of his crew before going to the Custom House to report. That his plea of having come into port solely from 'stress of weather' is inconsistent with the circumstances, and is denied by the Collector of Customs, who reports that the night was one of the finest and most moderate experienced there this summer, and that his crew were landed early in the morning. That even if the 'stress of weather' plea was sustained by facts, it would not exempt him from the legal requirement of reporting his vessel before 'breaking bulk' or landing his crew, and it is evident that there was nothing to hinder his reporting as the crew appear to have had no difficulty in handling the vessel's boats. That it was very easy for the crew, or any of them, to have taken valuable contraband goods aboard on their persons, in the absence of any Customs Officer at the landing place. Inasmuch, however, as there is no charge of actual smuggling preferred against the vessel, the undersigned respectfully recommends that the deposit of $200 be refunded, deducting therefrom any expenses incurred."

Sir,—I have the honour to acknowledge the receipt of your communication of the 22nd ultimo, concerning the action of the Customs Department of Canada in the case of the American schooner "Pearl Nelson," and to say I was much pleased at the decision arrived at in that case. I have informed the Government of the United States that the fine, in the case referred to, was ordered to be refunded. I have also to say that the Department of State, in acknowledging the receipt of a despatch from me, setting forth that you had placed all the papers, in the cases of the American schooners "Crittenden" and "Holbrook," in my hands for perusal, said, "the attention of Mr. Parmelee, in referring the matter to you, is appreciated. It shows a proper spirit." I trust the Department of Customs will pass on the other cases as soon as possible.

CERTIFIED COPY of a Report of a Committee of the Honourable the Privy Council for Canada, approved by His Excellency the Governor General in Council on the 18th November, 1886.

The Committee of the Privy Council are in receipt of a telegram from the Right Honourable the Secretary of State for the Colonies, in the words: "United States' Government protest against proceedings of Canadian authorities in case of 'Pearl Nelson' and 'Everitt
Steele,' said to have put into Arichat and Shelburne, respectively, for purposes sanctioned by Convention. Particulars of post. Send report as soon as possible."

The Minister of Marine and Fisheries, to whom the telegram was referred, submits, that the schooner "Everitt Steele" appears from the report of the Collector of Customs at Shelburne, to have been at that port on the 25th of March last, and sailed without reporting.
On her return to Shelburne in September, she was detained by the Collector of Customs for an infraction of the Customs law.

The captain having assured the collector that he had been misled by the deputy harbour master, who informed him his vessel could remain in port twenty-four hours without entering, and that he had no intention of violating the Customs regulations, this statement was reported to the Minister of Customs at Ottawa, when the vessel was at once allowed to proceed to sea, and that no evidence is given of any desire or intention of denying to the captain of the "Everitt Steele" any Treaty privileges he was entitled to enjoy.

The Committee, concurred in the above, respectfully recommend that Your Excellency be moved to transmit a copy of this minute, if approved, to the Right Honourable the Secretary of State for the Colonies.

[Enclosure No. 1.]

CERTIFIED COPY of a Report of a Committee of the Honourable the Privy Council for Canada, approved by His Excellency the Governor General in Council, on the 24th November, 1886.

The Committee of the Privy Council having had their attention called, by a telegram dated 18th November, inst., from Her Majesty's Minister at Washington, to his former despatch of the 28th October, ultimo, enclosing a copy of a note from the Honourable Mr. Bayard, and enclosures, asking for authentic information respecting the Canadian laws regulating the sale and exportation of fresh herring from Grand Manan Island.

The Minister of Marine and Fisheries, to whom said despatch was referred for early report, states that any foreign vessel "not named or equipped nor in any way prepared for taking fish" has full liberty of commercial intercourse in Canadian ports upon the same conditions as are applicable to regularly registered foreign merchant vessels, nor is any restriction imposed upon any foreign vessel dealing in fish of any kind different from those imposed upon foreign merchant vessels dealing in other commercial commodities.

That the regulations under which foreign vessels may trade at Canadian ports are contained in the Customs law of Canada (a copy of which is herewith) and which Chap. 32. Revised Statutes. render it necessary, among other things, that upon arrival at any Canadian port a vessel must at once enter inward at the Customs House, and upon the completion of her loading clear outwards for her port of destination.

The Committee recommend that Your Excellency be moved to transmit a copy of this minute, together with a copy of the Customs laws as containing authentic information respecting Canadian laws regulating the sale and exportation of fresh herring, to Her Majesty's Minister at Washington, for the information of the Honourable Mr. Bayard, Secretary of State for the United States.

[Enclosure No. 1.]

CERTIFIED COPY of a Report of a Committee of the Honourable the Privy Council for Canada, approved by His Excellency the Governor General in Council on the 16th November, 1886.

The Committee of the Privy Council have had under consideration a despatch dated 12th October, 1886, from the Secretary of State for the Colonies, transmitting a copy of a letter from Mr. Bayard, United States' Secretary of State, to the British Minister at Washington, calling attention to an alleged denial of the rights guaranteed by the Convention of 1818, in the case of the American fishing schooner "A. R. Crittenden" by the Customs Officer at Steep Creek, in the Strait of Canso, N.S.

The Minister of Marine and Fisheries, to whom the despatch and enclosure were referred, submits a statement of the Customs Officer at Steep Creek, and observes that the Captain of the "Crittenden" violated the Customs laws by neglecting to enter his vessel as requested by the Customs Officer, and in landing and shipping a man, clearly exceeded any treaty provision he was entitled to avail himself of.

It would appear that the remark made by the Customs Officer "that he would seize the vessel," had reference solely to the Captain's violation of the Customs regulations, and the Minister submits cannot be construed into a denial of any treaty privilege the master was entitled to enjoy.

The Committee, concurring in the above, respectfully recommend that Your Excellency be moved to inform the Right Honourable the Secretary of State for the Colonies in the sense of the report of the Minister of Marine and Fisheries.

All which is respectfully submitted for Your Excellency's approval.

STEAP CREEK, 1st November, 1886.

Sir,—Yours of the 28th of October came to hand to-day, and in reply, can state to you that part of the crew of the schooner "Crittenden" came on shore at Steep Creek and landed their barrels and filled them with water. I went direct to the men who were filling the barrels and told them to come and enter before taking wood and water. They said they would not enter or make any report. I told them that I would seize the schooner "Crittenden" for violating the Customs Law. They said they would risk that, as the schooner was now out of the way, about three miles from my station down the Strait, and it was impossible for me to board the vessel. They also landed a man the same day with his effects, and on their return from Gloucester to the Bay St. Lawrence they shipped a man. Was looking out for the vessel, but could not catch her. I reported the case to the Collector of Customs at Port Hawkesbury, and on the schooner "Crittenden's" return from Bay St. Lawrence she was seized, and Collector Bourinot got the affidavits of the captain of the said schooner, and also of some of the crew, which he forwarded to the Department. I was in the office at the time when Collector Bourinot received a telegram from the Department to release the schooner "Crittenden," on the deposit of four hundred dollars.

DEPARTMENT OF STATE,
WASHINGTON, 1st December, 1886.

Sir,—As possessing an additional and very disagreeable bearing upon the general subject of the harsh treatment of American fishing vessels during the season by the local authorities of the Maritime Provinces of Her Majesty's Dominion of Canada, I have the honour to send you therewith a copy of a letter addressed to me under date of the 12th ultimo, by Captain Solomon Jacobs, master of the American fishing schooner "Mollie Adams," of Gloucester, Mass. You will see, I doubt not, the regret I feel at such churlish and inhospitable treatment of a vessel which had freely and with great loss and inconvenience rendered such essential service to the suffering and imperilled crew of a Nova Scotia vessel. But for his generous act, Captain Jacobs would have had no occasion to put into Malpeque, or, subsequently when short of provisions, into Port Medway. As his narrative shows, the local authorities of Malpeque treated him with coldness and rudeness, making no provision to receive the Nova Scotian crew he had saved from such immediate danger, even causing him to incur a pecuniary burden in completion of his humane rescue, and even treating the landing of the property so saved from the wreck of the Nova Scotian vessel on her own shores, as not lawful for an American fishing vessel "within the three-mile limit."

The treatment of Captain Jacobs at Port Medway is a fitting sequel to that received by him at Malpeque. Having undergone fourteen days' detention in the latter port, and having shared his purse and slender stock of provisions with the men he had rescued, he put to sea, when, his supplies falling short by reason of his charitable action, he asked leave to purchase at Port Medway half a barrel of flour, or enough provisions to take his vessel and crew home. With full knowledge of the cause of Captain Jacobs's dearth of provisions, even this the Collector at Port Medway absolutely refused and threatened Captain Jacobs with the seizure of his vessel "if he bought anything whatever." The urgent need of supplies in which Captain Jacobs stood is shown by the fact that although the run with favourable weather from Port Medway to his home port, Gloucester, Mass., only occupied three days, his crew were on half rations for two days and without food for one day of that time. It is painful to conjecture what might have been their distress had the "Mollie Adams" encountered storms or head winds.
I am confident that Her Majesty's Government, than which none has more generously fulfilled the obligations of the unwritten code of seafaring humanity, will hasten to rebuke the treatment of Captain Jacobs at the hands of the local authorities of Nova Scotia, by exhibiting gratitude for his act in saving 17 of their own people from death, and tendering him compensation for the delays and expenses he has undergone through the breaking up of his legitimate fishing venture. The closing part of Captain Jacobs's letter may serve to show the irresponsible and different treatment he was subjected to in the several ports he visited, where the only common feature seems to have been a surly hostility.

At Port Hood, for instance, Captain Jacobs being sick, his brother landed and reported in his stead, and, after paying the regular fee, was told that his report was a nullity, and that the vessel would be liable to penalty for unauthorized landing of her crew, unless her Captain reported in person, who although ill he was compelled to do, and the fee was thereupon levied a second time. This is a small matter measured by the amount of the fee, but it is surely discreditable, and has a tendency which cannot be too much deplored. In my late correspondence I have treated of the necessary and logical results of permitting so irritating and unfriendly a course of action, and I will not therefore now enlarge on this subject.

T. F. BAYARD.

[Enclosure No. 4.]

Mr. Solomon Jacobs to Mr. Bayard.

GLoucester, 12th November, 1886.

Sirs—I would most respectfully ask your attention to the following facts, as showing the spirit and manner of the application of law on the part of the officials of the Dominion of Canada.

On or about the 26th September, when off Malpeque, Prince Edward Island, I fell in with the British schooner "Neskilita," of Lockeport, Nova Scotia, which had run on Malpeque Bar in making the harbour. It was blowing very heavy, sea running high. The crew was taken off by my vessel about twelve o'clock at night. There were seventeen men in all. We took care of them and fed them for three days. The "Neskilita" became a total wreck. We saved some of the material.

The cutter "Critic," Captain McLaren, one of the Canadian cruisers, was lying in the harbour of Malpeque. The Captain boarded my vessel, and I reported to him the facts of the wreck and the condition of the men. They had saved a portion of their clothing. He offered to care for the wrecked crew, to feed them nor to give them any assistance whatever. Having some of the wrecked material on board I asked the Captain of the cutter for permission to land it. He referred me to the local collector. I went to the collector and referred him back to the Captain of the cutter. As the cutter had gone out the Captain of the "Neskilita" assumed the responsibility and took the things ashore. The Captain of the cutter told me that I could put the saved material on board a Nova Scotia vessel if I went outside of the three-mile limit to do it.

I endeavoured to get some of the people on shore to take the wrecked crew, but no one would do it unless I would be responsible for their board. Finally I gave the crew $60, enough to pay their passage home on the蒸 and also gave them provisions to last during their journey. Malpeque is a barred harbour and it is only in smooth water that it is safe to go out over the bar, and my vessel drawing 14 feet of water and there was only 14 feet of water on the bar, it was impossible for me to go out. By being detained in port in disposing of this wrecked crew, I lost over 10 days of valuable time before I could get out to sea and during that time the fleet took large quantities of mackerel. Having to feed so many on my vessel left me short of provisions and in a short time afterwards I put into Port Medway and stated the circumstances, and asked permission to buy half a barrel of flour or enough provisions to take my vessel and crew home. This was absolutely refused and the Collector threatened me that if I bought anything whatever he would seize my vessel. I was obliged to leave without obtaining and came home in three days on short rations, a distance of 300 miles. The wind and weather being favourable we had a good passage, but yet we were without provisions for one day before we arrived home. I wish to state emphatically that the officials differ in their construction of our rights. Fees are different in every port, and as there is no standard of right fixed by our own Government, the fishermen are at the mercy of a class of officials hostile to them and their business, and with but little knowledge of law or its application. For instance, at Souris, P.E.I., 15 cents is charged for reporting; at Port Mulgrave, N.S., 50 cents is charged. At Port Hood, I being sick, my brother went to the Custom House to report. The official charged him 25 cents and told him that unless the captain reported in person the report was invalid, that men from the vessel would not be allowed ashore unless the captain reported. In the afternoon of the same day I was able to go to the office and was charged 25 cents for my report, making 50 cents. In the matter of anchorage fees, &c., at Port Mulgrave, N.S., I paid $1.50; at Malpeque, $1.00; at Sydney, $1.17. At some ports we have to pay anchorage fees every time we go in, as at Halifax. At others twice for the season. Now I would most respectfully state that the official service throughout is actuated, apparently, from a principle of annoyance, wherever and whenever it can be so applied; that there is only harmony of action in this regard alone, and that local laws and regulations are enforced against us, without regard to any rights we may have under treaty.

That the effect of this enforcement is not to promote, but to interfere and to limit by unjust pains, fees and penalties the right of shelter, obtaining wood and water, and making of repairs, guaranteed by the Treaty of 1818; that, instead of the restriction contemplated, the local laws make a technical obligation that is without their province or power, and enforce penalties that should never have been admitted or allowed by our Government. And I would pray that in the case recited, and many others that can be shown, if required, we may be protected from local laws and their enforcement that abridge our rights and have never received the sanction of the two great contracting powers in the construction and agreement of the Treaty of 1818.

MR. BAYARD to SIR L. WEST.

DEPARTMENT OF STATE,
WASHINGTON, 11th November, 1886.

Sir,—I have the honour to enclose herewith copies of the statements with affidavits from Captain Meddo Rose, master of the schooner "Laura Sayward," of Gloucester, Mass., and of Captain Joseph Tupper, master of the schooner "Jennie Seaverns," also of Gloucester, forwarded to me by the Collector of the Port of Gloucester, under date of 5th inst.

The first impressively describes the inhospitable and inhuman conduct of the Collector of the Port of Shelburne, N.S., in refusing to allow Captain Rose to buy sufficient food for himself and his crew to take them home, besides unnecessarily retaining his papers and thus preventing him, with a wholly inadequate supply of provisions, from proceeding on his voyage.

The second complaint is of Captain Quigley, commanding the Canadian cruiser "Terror," in not only preventing Captain Tupper from landing to visit his relatives in Liverpool, N.S., but even forbidding his relatives from coming on board his vessel to see him, and likewise placing a guard on board of her to ensure that result.

While I need not comment further than I have done already in previous notes on the unjust and unwarrantable acts of the Dominion officials of late towards our fishermen, of which the instances now presented are but repetitions, I must notice the new phase of Captain Quigley's abuse of authority in actually making Captain Tupper a prisoner on board of his own vessel, and in preventing his relatives, whom he states he had not seen for many years, from meeting him.

This conduct, apart from all its legal and international aspects, is wholly unworthy of any one entrusted with the execution of a public duty, and inconsistent with the national reputation for humanity and courtesy of an officer in Her Majesty's service.

[Enclosure No. 4.]

I, Medeo Rose, Master of the schooner "Laura Sayward," of Gloucester, being duly sworn, do depose and say that on Saturday, 2nd October, being then on Western Bank on a fishing trip, and being short of provisions, we hove up our anchor and started for home. The wind was blowing almost a gale from the north-west and being almost dead ahead, we made slow progress on our voyage home. On Tuesday, 5th October, we made Shelburne, N.S., and arrived in that harbour about 8 p.m. on that day short of provisions, water, and oil to burn. On Wednesday I sailed for the inner harbour of Shelburne, arriving at the town about 4 p.m. On going ashore I found the Custom House closed, and hunted up the Collector and entered my vessel, and asked permission from him to buy 7 pounds sugar, 3 pounds coffee, 4 to 1 bushel of potatoes and 3 pounds of butter or lard or pork, and oil enough to last us home, and was refused. I stated to him my situation, short of provisions and a voyage of 250 miles before, and pleaded with him for this slight privilege, but it was of no avail. I then visited the American Consul and asked his assistance, and found him powerless to aid me in this matter. The Collector of Customs held my papers until the next morning although I asked for them as soon as I found I could not buy any provisions, say about 4 hours after I entered, but he refused to give them to me until the next morning. Immediately on receiving my papers on Thursday morning I started for home, arriving on Sunday. I think the treatment I received harsh and cruel, driving myself and crew to sea with a scant supply of provisions, we having but little flour and water, and liable to be buffeted about for days before reaching home.

[Enclosure No. 5.]

I, Joseph Tupper, Master of the schooner "Jennie Seavens," of Gloucester, being duly sworn, do depose and say that on Thursday, 28th October, while on my passage home from a fishing trip, the wind blowing almost a gale from S.E. and a heavy sea running, I was obliged to enter the harbour of Liverpool N.S. for shelter. Immediately on coming to anchor, was boarded by Captain Quigley of Canadian cruiser "Terror," who ordered me to go in shore at once and enter at the Customs House, to which I replied that such was my intention. He gave me permission to take two men in the boat with me, but they must remain in the boat and not step on shore. I asked Captain Quigley if I could, after entering, visit some of my relations who resided in Liverpool, and whom I had not seen for many years. This privilege was denied me. After entering, having returned to my vessel, some of my relatives came off to see me. When Captain Quigley saw their boat alongside of my vessel, he sent an officer and boat's crow who ordered them away, and at sundown he placed an armed guard on board of our vessel, who remained on board all night, and was taken off just before we sailed in the morning.

I complied with the Canadian laws and had no intention or desire to violate them in any way; but to be made a prisoner on board my own vessel, and treated like a suspicious character, grates harshly upon the feelings of an American seaman, and I protest against such treatment, and respectfully ask from my own Government, protection from such unjust, unfriendly and arbitrary treatment.

No. 163.

The Marquis of Lansdowne to Mr. Stanhope.

Ottawa, 20th December, 1886.

SIR,—I had the honour of receiving your despatch No. 244 of the 22nd November, in regard to the cases of the "Everitt Steele" and "Pearl Nelson" recently detained at Shelburne and Arichat, Nova Scotia, for non-compliance with the Customs Regulations of the Dominion.

2. The circumstances under which the conduct of these vessels attracted the attention of the Customs authorities were set out in the Privy Council Orders of the 1st and 18th November, certified copies of which were forwarded to you under cover of my Despatches Nos. 222 and 233 of the 29th of November.

3. The information contained in these documents was obtained in order to comply with the request for a report on these two cases which you had addressed to me by telegram on a previous date.

I have now carefully examined the fuller statements made by Mr. Bayard, both as to the facts and as to the considerations by which the conduct of the local officials should, in his opinion, have been governed. You will, I think, find on reference to the Privy Council Orders already before you, that the arguments advanced by Mr. Bayard have been sufficiently met by the observations of my Minister of Marine and Fisheries whose reports are embodied in those orders.
4. It is not disputed that the "Everett Steele" was in Shelburne harbour on the 25th March, and sailed thence without reporting. In consequence of this omission on the Master's part, his vessel was, on her return to Shelburne in September, detained by the Collector. The Master having explained that his presence in the harbour had been occasioned by stress of weather and that his failure to report was inadvertent, and this explanation having been telegraphed to the Minister at Ottawa, the vessel was at once allowed to proceed to sea; her release took place at noon on the day following that of her detention.

5. In the case of the "Pearl Nelson" it is not denied that nine of her crew were landed in Arichat harbour at a late hour on the evening of her arrival and before the Master had reported to the Custom House. It is obvious that if men were to be allowed to go on shore under such circumstances without notification to the authorities, great facilities would be offered for landing contraband goods, and there can be no question that the Master by permitting his men to land was guilty of a violation of sections 25 and 180 of the Customs Act.

There seems to be reason to doubt his statement that he was driven into Arichat by stress of weather, but be this as it may the fact of his having entered the harbour for a lawful purpose would not carry with it a right to evade the law to which all vessels frequenting Canadian ports are amenable. In this case as in that of the "Everett Steele" already referred to, the statement of the Master that his offence was due to inadvertence was accepted and the fine imposed at once remitted.

I observe that in his despatch relating to the first of these cases, Mr. Bayard insists with much earnestness upon the fact that certain "prerogatives" of access to the territorial waters of the Dominion were specially reserved under the Convention of 1818 to the fishermen of the United States, and that a vessel entering a Canadian harbour for any purpose coming within the terms of article I of that Convention has as much right to be in that harbour as she would have to be upon the high seas, and he proceeds to institute a comparison between the detention of the "Everett Steele" and the wrongful seizure of a vessel on the high seas upon the suspicion of being engaged in the slave trade.

Mr. Bayard further calls attention to the special consideration to which from the circumstances of their profession the fishermen of the United States are, in his opinion, entitled, and he dwells upon the extent of the injury which would result to them if they were debarred from the exercise of any of the rights assured to them by Treaty or Convention.

I observe also that in Sir Julian Pauncefote's letter enclosed in your despatch it is stated that the Secretary of State for Foreign Affairs wishes to urge upon the Dominion Government the great importance of issuing stringent instructions to its officials not to interfere with any of the privileges expressly reserved to United States' fishermen under Article I of the Convention of 1818.

I trust that the explanations which I have already been able to give in regard to the cases of these vessels, will have satisfied you that the facts disclosed do not show any necessity for the issuing of instructions other than those already circulated to the local officials entrusted with the execution of the Customs and Fishery Laws.

There is certainly no desire on the part of my Government (nor I believe does the conduct of the local officials justify the assumption that such a desire exists) to curtail in any respect the privileges enjoyed by United States' fishermen in Canadian waters. It cannot, on the other hand, be contended that because these privileges exist and are admitted by the Government of the Dominion, those who enjoy them are to be allowed immunity from the regulations to which all vessels resorting to Canadian waters are without exception subjected under the Customs Act of 1883 and the different statutes regulating the fisheries of the Dominion.

In both of the cases under consideration there was a clear and undoubted violation of the law and the local officials would have been culpable if they had omitted to notice it. That there was no animus on their part or on that of the Canadian Government, is, I think, clearly proved by the promptitude with which the circumstances were investigated and the readiness shown to overlook the offence and to remit the penalty incurred as soon as proof was forthcoming that the offence had been unintentionally committed. In support of this view I would draw your attention to the letter [See enclosures to my despatch No. 283 of the 29th of November. Enclosure No. 294 of Mr. Phelan the Consul General for the United States at Halifax 3 of No. 152. who has expressed his own satisfaction at the action of the authorities in the case of the ‘Pearl Nelson,’ and who also refers to a communication received by him from the Department of State in which it is stated that the conduct of the Assistant Commissioner of Customs in dealing with two other cases of a somewhat complexion ‘shows a proper spirit.’]

Sir L. West to Lord Lansdowne.

Washington, 22nd December, 1886.

My Lord,—In obedience to telegraphic instructions which I have received from the Earl of Iddesleigh, I have the honour to enclose to Your Excellency herewith, copy of a note from the Secretary of State to Mr. Bayard which has been given to me by Mr. Bayard. This note contains a proposal for the settlement of the fisheries question.

I have, &c., (Sd.) L. S. Sackville WEST.

[Enclosure No. 1.]

Mr. Bayard to Mr. Phelps.

Department of State,
Washington, 15th November, 1886.

Sir,—The season for taking mackerel has now closed, and I understand the Marine Police Force of the territorial waters in British North America has been withdrawn, so that no further occasion for the administration of a strained and vexatious construction of the Convention of 1818 between the United States and Great Britain, is likely for several months at least.

During this period of comparative serenity, I earnestly hope that such measures will be adopted by those charged with the administration of the respective Governments as will prevent the renewal of the proceedings witnessed during the past fishing season in the ports and harbours of Nova Scotia, and at other points in the Maritime Provinces of the Dominion, by which citizens of the United States engaged in open-sea fishing were subjected to much unjust and unkind treatment by the local authorities in those regions, and thereby not only suffered serious loss in their legitimate pursuit, but, by the fear of annoyance, which was conveyed to others likewise employed, the general business of open-sea fishing by citizens of the United States was importantly injured.

My instructions to you during the period of the above occurrences have time to time set forth their regrettable character, and they have also been brought promptly to the notice of the Representative of Her Majesty's Government at this capital.

These representations, candidly and fully made, have not produced those results of checking the unwarranted interference (frequently accompanied by rudeness and an unnecessary demonstration of force) with the rights of our fishermen guaranteed by express treaty stipulations, and secured to them—as I confidently believe—by the public commercial laws and regulations of the two countries, and which are demanded by the laws of hospitality to which all friendly civilized nations owe allegiance. Again I beg that you will invite Her Majesty's counsellors gravely to consider the necessity of preventing the repetition of conduct on the part of the Canadian officials which may endanger the peace of two kindred and friendly nations.

To this end, and to ensure to the inhabitants of the Dominion the efficient protection of the exclusive rights to their inshore fisheries, as provided by the Convention of 1818, as well as to prevent any abuse of the privileges reserved and guaranteed by that instrument forever to the citizens of the United States engaged in fishing, and responding to the suggestion made to you by the Earl of Iddesleigh in the month of September last that a modus vivendi should be agreed upon between the two countries to prevent encroachment by American fishermen upon the Canadian inshore fisheries, and equally to secure them from all molestation when exercising only their just and ancient rights—I now enclose the draft of a memorandum which you may propose to Lord Iddesleigh, and which, I trust, will be found to contain a satisfactory basis for the solution of existing difficulties and assist in securing an assured, just, honourable, and, therefore, mutually satisfactory settlement of the long vexed question of the North Atlantic fisheries.

I am encouraged in the expectation that the propositions embodied in the memorandum referred to will be acceptable to Her Majesty's Government, because, in the month of April, 1866, Mr. Seward, then Secretary of State, sent forward to Mr. Adams, at that time United States' Minister in London, the draft of a protocol which in substance coincides with the first article of the proposal now sent to you, as you will see by reference to Vol. I of the United States' Diplomatic Correspondence for 1866, page 93 of vol. I.

I find that, in a published instruction to Sir F. Bruce, then Her Majesty's Minister in the United States, under date of May 11, 1866, the Earl of Carnarvon, at that time Her Majesty's Secretary of State for Foreign Affairs, approved them, but declined to accept the final proposition of Mr. Seward's protocol, which is not contained in the memorandum now forwarded.

Your attention is drawn to the great value of these three propositions, as containing a well-defined and practical interpretation of Article 1 of the Convention of 1818, the enforcement of which co-operatively by the two Governments, it may reasonably be hoped, will efficiently remove those causes of irritation which variant constructions hitherto have been so unhappily fruitful.

In proposing the adoption of a width of ten miles at the mouth as a proper definition of the bays in which, except on certain specified coasts, the fishermen of the United States are not to take fish, I have followed the example furnished by France and Great Britain in their Convention signed at Paris on the 2nd of August, 1839. This definition was referred to and approved by Mr. Bates, the Umpire of the Commission under the Treaty of 1853, in the case of the United States' fishing schooner "Washington," and has since been notably approved and adopted in the convention signed at The Hague in 1882, and subsequently ratified in relation to fishing in the North Sea between Germany, Belgium, Denmark, France, Great Britain, and the Netherlands.

The present memorandum also contains provisions for the usual commercial facilities allowed everywhere for the promotion of legitimate trade, and nowhere more fully than in British ports and under the commercial policies of that nation. Such facilities cannot with any show of reason be denied to American fishing vessels when plying their vocations in deep-sea fishing grounds in the localities open to them equally with other nationalities. The Convention of 1818 inhibits the "taking, drying or curing fish" by American fishermen in certain waters and on certain coasts, and when these objects are effected, the inhibitory features are exhausted. Everything that may presumably guard against an infraction of these provisions will be recognised and obeyed by the Government of the United States, but should not be pressed beyond its natural force.

By its very terms and necessary intendment, the same treaty recognizes the continuance permanently of the accustomed rights of American fishermen, in those places not embraced in the renunciation of the treaty, to prosecute the business as freely as did their forefathers.

No construction of the Convention of 1818 that strikes at or impedes the open sea fishing by citizens of the United States, can be accepted, nor should a treaty of friendship be tortured into a means of such offence, nor should such an end be accomplished by indirection. Therefore, by causing the same port regulations and commercial rights to be applied to vessels engaged therein as are enforced relative to other trading craft, we propose to prevent a ban from being put upon the lawful and regular business of open sea fishing.

Arrangements now exist between the Governments of Great Britain and France, and Great Britain and Germany, for the submission in the first instance of all cases of seizure to the joint examination and decision of two discreet and able commanding officers of the navy of the respective countries, whose vessels are to be sent on duty to cruise in the waters to be guarded against encroachment. Copies of these agreements are herewith enclosed for reference. The additional feature of an Umpire in case of a difference in opinion, is borrowed from the terms of Article 1, of the Treaty of June 3, 1814, between the United States and Great Britain.

This same Treaty of 1814 contains in its first article provision for a joint Commission for marking the fishing limits, and is therefore a precedent for the present proposition.

The season of 1886 for inshore fishing on the Canadian coast has come to an end, and assuredly no lack of vigilance or promptitude in marking the limits can be ascribed to the vessels of the Marine Police of the Dominion. The record of their operations discloses but a single American vessel found violating the limitations of the Convention of 1818, by fishing within three marine miles of the coast. The numerous seizures made have been of vessels quietly at anchor in established ports of entry, under charges which, up to this day, have not been particularized sufficiently to allow of an intelligent defence. Not one has been condemned after trial and hearing, but many have been fined without hearing or judgment, for technical violations of alleged commercial regulations, although all commercial privileges have been simultaneously denied to them. In no instance has an accommodation been offered to Canadian authority, even when exercised with useless and irritating provocation.

It is trusted that the agreement now proposed may be readily accepted by Her Majesty's Ministry.

Should the Earl of Iddesleigh express a desire to possess the text of this dispatch, in view of its intimate relation to the subject-matter of the memorandum and as evidencing the sincere and cordial disposition which prompts this proposal, you will give His Lordship a copy.

I am, Sir, your obedient servant,

EDWARD J. PHILPS, Esq., &c., &c., &c.

[Enclosure No. 2]

Proposal for Settlement of all Questions in Dispute in Relation to the Fisheries on the Northwest Coasts of British North America.

Whereas, in the 1st Article of the Convention between the United States and Great Britain, concluded and signed in London on the 20th of October, 1818, it was agreed between the High Contracting Parties "that the inhabitants of the said United States shall have forever, in common with the subjects of His Britannic Majesty, the liberty to take fish of every kind on that part of the southern coast of Newfoundland, which extends from Cape Ray to the Rameau islands, on the western and northern coast of Newfoundland, from the said Cape Ray to the Quirpon Islands, on the shores of the Magdalen Islands, and also on the coasts, bays, harbours and creeks, from Mount Joy on the southern coast of Labrador, to and through the Straits of Belle Isle; and thence northwardly indefinitely along the coast, without prejudice, however, to any of the exclusive rights of the Hudson's Bay Company; and that the American fishermen shall also have liberty forever to dry and cure fish in any of the unsettled bays, harbours and creeks of the southern part of the coast of Newfoundland, here above described, and of the coast of Labrador, but so soon as the same, or any portion thereof, shall be settled, it shall not be lawful for the said fishermen to dry or cure fish at such portion so settled without previous agreement for such purpose with the inhabitants, proprietors or possessors of the ground;” and was declared that “the United States hereby renounce forever any liberty heretofore enjoyed or claimed by the inhabitants thereof to take, dry or cure fish on or within three marine miles of any of the coasts, bays, creeks or harbours of His Britannic Majesty’s dominions in America not included within the above-mentioned limits:

Provided, however, that the American fishermen shall be admitted to enter such bays or harbours for the purpose of shelter, and of repairing damages therein, of purchasing wood and obtaining water, and for no other purpose whatever. But they shall be under such restrictions as may be necessary to prevent their taking, drying or curing fish therein, or in any other manner whatever abusing the privileges hereby reserved to them;” and whereas differences have arisen in regard to the extent of the above-mentioned renunciation, the Government of the United States and Her Majesty the Queen of Great Britain, being equally desirous of avoiding further misunderstanding, agree to appoint a mixed commission for the following purposes, namely:

1. To agree upon and establish by a series of lines the limits which shall separate the exclusive from the common right of fishing on the coasts and in the adjacent waters of the British North American colonies, in conformity with the 1st Article of the Convention of 1818, except that the bays and harbours from which American fishermen are in the future to be excluded, save for the purposes for which entrance into bays and harbours is permitted by said article, are hereby agreed to be taken to be such bays and harbours as are ten or less than ten miles in width, and the distance of three marine miles from such bays and harbours shall be measured from a straight line drawn across the bay or harbour, in the part nearest the entrance, at the first point where the width does not exceed ten miles; the said lines to be regularly numbered, duly described, and also clearly marked on charts prepared in duplicate for the purpose.

2. To agree upon and establish such regulations as may be necessary and proper to secure to the fishermen of the United States the privilege of entering bays and harbours for the purpose of shelter and of repairing damages therein, of purchasing wood, and of obtaining water, and to agree upon and establish such restrictions as may be necessary to prevent the abuse of the privilege reserved by said Convention to the fishermen of the United States.

3. To agree upon and recommend the penalties to be adjudged, and such proceedings and jurisdiction as may be necessary to secure a speedy trial and judgment with as little expense as possible, for the violators of rights and the transgressors of the limits and restrictions which may be hereby adopted:

Provided, however, that the limits, restrictions and regulations which may be agreed upon by the said commission shall not be final, nor have any effect, until so jointly confirmed and declared by the United States and Her Majesty the Queen of Great Britain, either by treaty or by laws mutually acknowledged.

ARTICLE II.

Pending a definitive arrangement on the subject, Her Britannic Majesty’s Government agree to instruct the proper colonial and other British officers to abstain from seizing or molesting fishing vessels of the United States unless they are found within three marine miles of any of the coasts, bays, creeks, and harbours of Her Britannic Majesty’s dominions in America, there fishing, or to have been fishing, or preparing to fish within those limits, not included within the limits within which, under the Treaty of 1818, the fishermen of the United States continue to retain a common right of fishery with Her Britannic Majesty’s subjects.

ARTICLE III.

For the purpose of executing Article I of the Convention of 1818, the Government of the United States and the Government of Her Britannic Majesty hereby agree to send each to the Gulf of St. Lawrence a national vessel, and also one each to cruise during the fishing season on the southern coasts of Nova Scotia. Whenever a fishing vessel of the United States shall be seized for violating the provisions of the aforesaid Convention by fishing or preparing to fish within three marine miles of any of the coasts, bays, creeks, and harbours of Her Britannic Majesty’s dominions included within the limits within which fishing is by the terms of the said Convention renounced, such vessel shall forthwith be reported to the officer in command of one of the said national vessels, who, in conjunction with the officer in command of another of said vessels of the different nationality, shall hear and examine into the facts of the case. Should the said commanding officers be of opinion that the charge is not sustained, the vessel shall be released. But if they should be of opinion that the vessel should be subjected to a judicial examination, she shall forthwith be sent for trial... before the Vice-Admiralty Court at Halifax. If, however, the said commission officers should differ in opinion, they shall name some third person to act as umpire between them, and should they be unable to agree upon the name of such third person, they shall each name a person, and it shall be determined by lot which of the two persons so named shall be the umpire.

Article IV.

The fishing vessels in the United States shall have in the established ports of entry of Her Britannic Majesty's Dominions in America, the same commercial privileges as other vessels of the United States, including the purchase of bait and other supplies; and such privileges shall be exercised subject to the same rules and regulations, and payment of the same port charges, as are prescribed for other vessels of the United States.

Article V.

The Government of Her Britannic Majesty agrees to release all United States' fishing vessels now under seizure for failing to report at Custom Houses when seeking shelter, repairs or supplies, and to refund all fines exacted for such failure to report. And the High Contracting Parties agree to appoint a Joint Commission to ascertain the amount of damage caused to American fishermen, during the year 1816, by seizure and detention in violation of the Treaty of 1818, said Commission to make awards therefor to the parties injured.

Article VI.

The Government of the United States and the Government of Her Britannic Majesty agree to give concurrent notification and warning of Canadian Customs regulations, and the United States agrees to admonish its fishermen to comply with them, and co-operate in securing their enforcement.

24th December, 1886.

The United States' Government request Solicitors of "D. J. Adams" may be given for purposes of trial copies of reports by Scott or Customs Officers in connection with seizure. Her Majesty's Government propose to answer to following effect: Solicitors appear to be not entitled to documents desired, otherwise they would obtain all necessary papers by means of legal procedure. Under the circumstances it does not lie with Her Majesty's Government to interfere with course of justice. Do you concur or does your Government consider it desirable to offer observations before Her Majesty's Government answer.

No. 169.

The Governor General to Mr. Stanhope.

OTTAWA, 28th December, 1886.

Sir,—I have the honour to inform you that I have received from Sir L. West a despatch dated the 22nd inst., enclosing copies of a letter from Mr. Bayard to Mr. Phelps dated 15th November, 1886, and of a memorandum in which No. 165 and enclosures, contained the draft of a proposal by Mr. Bayard "for the settlement of all questions in dispute in relation to the fisheries on the north-eastern coasts of British North America." These papers, of which printed copies were sent to me, have, no doubt, been transmitted to you through the Foreign Office.

2. I have referred Mr. Bayard's letter and the memorandum to my advisers, and I shall as soon as possible lay before you the formal expression of their opinion upon the subject. As, however, many members of my Government are absent from their offices at this season of the year and as some time must necessarily elapse before Mr. Bayard's proposal can be reviewed at length, it is as well that I should without further loss of time make you aware of some of the objections to which it is open, and which will, I have no doubt whatever, be made to it.

3. I would, before going further, observe that I have read with satisfaction Mr. Bayard's expression of his hope that advantage will be taken of the period of "comparative inactivity" which is likely to prevail during the next few months, in order to arrive at an understanding which might put an end to any doubts which now exist with regard to the rights and privileges of United States' fishermen in Canadian waters.

4. I should however be slow to admit that the proceedings taken by the Canadian authorities during the past fishing season deserve to be characterized in the terms applied to them by Mr. Bayard. The reports which I have from time to time had the honour of sending to you have shown that the acts of interference which Mr. Bayard describes as involving the unjust and unfriendly treatment of citizens of the United States were rendered necessary in consequence of the violation by them of the laws to which all vessels resorting to Canadian waters are without exception amenable.

5. My Government does not yield to that of the United States in its desire to reduce within the narrow limits the occasions for interference with the fishermen of the latter power and should it prove to be the case that there is no prospect of the establishment of closer and mutually advantageous relations between the two countries either in respect of the fish trade and fishing or of commercial intercourse generally, it will certainly be desirable that steps should be taken to determine beyond dispute the precise limits which divide the waters in which Canadian fishermen have the exclusive right of fishing from those in which that right is common to fishermen of all nations. A proposal for the appointment of a mixed Commission to which this duty should be subject to the concurrence of the Governments of the powers interested, be entrusted, as Mr. Bayard points out, made in the year 1866, by the American Government and formed the subject of negotiations which were eventually superseded by those which led to the Treaty of 1871, and to the appointment of the Halifax Commission, which however did not deal with the question of the limits of the territorial waters of Canada. If Mr. Bayard had simply reverted to the Adams-Clarendon memorandum of 1866, omitting the concluding paragraph to which objection was taken at the time by Lord Clarendon and which as Mr. Bayard at page two of his letter points out is not contained in the memorandum which he now submits, I should have regarded more hopefully than I do at this moment the prospect of an understanding being arrived at before another fishing season commences.

6. The first article however of the Draft Proposal now submitted by Mr. Bayard, while in other respects following closely the Adams-Clarendon memorandum, differs from that memorandum, not only in the omission of the final paragraph of the latter, but also in that it adds (see Mr. Bayard’s Draft, Article I, Subsection I) the important stipulation that the Bays and Harbours from which American Fishermen are in the future to be excluded save for the purposes for which entrance into the Bays and Harbours is permitted by said Act are hereby agreed to be taken to be such Bays and Harbours only as are ten or less than ten miles in width.

7. This reservation would involve the surrender of the exclusive right of fishing in Bays which have hitherto been regarded as beyond all question within the territorial waters of Canada, such, for instance, as the right of fishing in the inner waters of the Bay of Chaleurs at points 40 or 50 miles from its mouth, which, roughly speaking, may be said to be less than 20 miles wide at its opening.

8. I observe that Mr. Bayard in that part of his letter which refers to this suggestion has cited conventions entered into by France and Great Britain in 1839 and subsequently by other European powers in support of his contention that there should be no exclusive rights of fishing in Bays measuring more than ten miles at their opening. It is, I think, obvious that local arrangements of this kind must be made with reference to the geographical peculiarities of the coasts which they affect, and to the local conditions under which the fishing industry is pursued in different parts of the world, and that it does not by any means follow that because the ten-mile limit is applicable upon portions of the coast of the continent of Europe, it is therefore applicable under the peculiar circumstances, geographical and political, which are present in the case of the North American Continent. A reference to the action of the United States’ Government, and the admissions made by their statesmen in regard to Bays on the American coasts will, I think, strengthen this view of the case. The award in regard to the Bay of Fundy, upon which Mr. Bayard also relies in this part of his argument, was, I believe, justified mainly upon the ground that one of the headlands which formed this bay was in the territory of the United States, and that it could not therefore be regarded as a Canadian bay.

9. The ad interim arrangement embodied in Art II, of the memorandum prejudices in favor of the United States one of the most important of the points which have been in dispute by deciding adversely to Canada the construction which is to be placed upon Imperial and Canadian Statutes, the proper interpretation of which is at this moment the subject of litigation before the Canadian courts. It is to be observed that this Article might, in the event of the failure of the two Governments to arrive at a definite arrangement, a contingency which, considering the relations of the United States’ Senate and the President, cannot be dismissed from our contemplation, remain in the operation for an indefinite time, greatly to the disadvantage of the fishermen of this country.

10. The procedure suggested in Art III, for the investigation on the spot of all cases of trespass by United States’ fishing vessels, appears to be open to criticism as capable of being used for the purpose of frustrating the ends of justice. I would submit that no case has yet been made out for depriving of their jurisdiction particularly in those cases where the offence must ex hypothesi have been committed within the territorial waters of the Dominion, the properly constituted and trustworthy tribunals of this country, and substituting for them an irregularly composed court of first instance, such as that which would come into existence if this Article were to be adopted.

11. Article IV prejudices in favor of the United States the important question which has arisen as to the commercial privileges to which United States’ fishing vessels are entitled while in Canadian waters. My Government will, I have no doubt, insist upon the necessity of maintaining the distinction made by the Convention of 1818 between fishing vessels endeavouring to use Canadian Bays and Harbours as a basis of operation from which to prosecute their industry in competition with Canadian fishermen, and trading vessels resorting to such bays and harbours in the ordinary course of business.

12. The history of the negotiations which preceded the Convention of 1818 makes it perfectly clear that the purchase of bait was not one of the purposes for which it was intended that United States' fishing vessels should have a right of entering Canadian waters. It is, I observe, proposed by Mr. Bayard in the article under consideration, that this point also should be decided in anticipation against the Dominion without further discussion.

13. Under Article V it is assumed that the seizures and detentions which have taken place during the past season in consequence of non-compliance by United States' fishermen with the Customs Laws of Canada have in all cases involved the violation of the Treaty of 1818 by the Canadian authorities, and we are accordingly invited before submitting our case to examination by the proposed mixed commission, to release all United States' fishing vessels now under seizure for a breach of our Customs laws, and to refund all fines exacted for such illegality. We are, in other words, before going into court, to plead guilty to all the counts contained in this part of the indictment against us.

14. Indeed, if Mr. Bayard's proposal be considered as a whole it amounts to this—that the Government of the Dominion is to submit its conduct in the past and its rights in the future to the arbitration of a Commission, without any assurance whatever that the recommendations of that Commission are likely to be accepted by Congress and that before the enquiry commences it is to place upon record the admission that it has been in the wrong upon all the most important points in the controversy. Such an admission would involve the public renunciation of substantial and valuable rights and privileges for all time, without any sort of equivalent or compensation. Mr. Bayard can, I venture to think, scarcely expect that my Government should agree to so one-sided a proposal or should make without any return, concessions so damaging to the interests of this country and so injurious to its self respect. I trust that Her Majesty's Government will, to the utmost of its ability, discourage that of the United States from pressing these proposals in their present shape, and will avoid any action which might induce the belief that the offer embodied in them is one which deserved a favourable reception at the hands of the Government of the Dominion.

I have, &c.,

No. 170.

Mr. Stanhope to Lord Lansdowne.

DOWNING STREET, 30th December, 1856.

MY LORD,—I have the honour to transmit to you herewith, to be laid before your Government, a copy, received through the Foreign Office, of a note from the United States' Minister at this Court, enclosing an outline for an ad interim arrangement between the British and United States' Governments, on the subject of the North American Fisheries, accompanied by a despatch from Mr. Bayard containing some observations thereon.

On the receipt of these papers, Her Majesty's Minister at Washington was desired, by telegram to obtain copies of Mr. Bayard's despatch to Mr. Phelps of the 15th of November and of the proposals for an arrangement, and he was desired, if the United States' Government had no objection to transmit these copies direct to you.

In my telegram of the 27th December, I requested you to obtain at the earliest possible moment from your Government their views on Mr. Bayard's proposals and to report them to Her Majesty's Government.

I need now only add that Her Majesty's Government await with much interest the result of this reference to your Ministers.

I have, &c.,

EDWARD STANHOPE.

AMERICAN FISHERIES.

Reply of the Secretary of the Treasury.

TREASURY DEPARTMENT, 10th January, 1887.

Sir,—I have the honour to receive the resolution of the House of the 14th ultimo, making inquiry in regard to the "interpretation now given by the Treasury Department to the tariff law of eighteen hundred and eighty-three, which in one section declares that "fish, fresh for immediate consumption," shall be free of tax on arrival at our sea ports or lake ports, and in another section declares that "foreign caught fish, imported fresh," shall be taxed at the rate of fifty cents for each hundred pounds," and also requesting me "to transmit to the House copies of all official correspondence, opinions and decisions bearing on the subject, together with a statement of the duties collected each year, since eighteen hundred and sixty-five, on the several descriptions of fish caught on the lakes, or the Canadian tributaries thereof, and also on the several descriptions caught in the North Atlantic, or on the shores of the islands thereof."

FROZEN FISH.

A satisfactory reply to these inquiries will make necessary a preliminary statement, and an exhibition of certain details connected therewith.

By the tariff law of 1846, there was levied 20 per cent. _ad valorem_, on the foreign value of:

"Fish, foreign, whether fresh, smoked, salted, dried, or pickled, not otherwise provided for."

The same schedule, and language, were preserved in the tariff law of 1857, but the rate was reduced to 15 per cent.

The tariff law of 2nd March, 1861, levied in the tenth section the following rates:

"On mackerel, two dollars per barrel; on herring, pickled or salted, one dollar per barrel; on pickled salmon, three dollars per barrel; on all other fish, pickled, in barrels, one dollar and fifty cents per barrel; on all other foreign-caught fish, imported otherwise than in barrels or half-barrels, or whether fresh, smoked or dried, salted or pickled, not otherwise provided for, fifty cents per one hundred pounds."

In its twenty-third section that law declared that "fish, fresh caught, for daily consumption," shall be exempt from duty.

Then began a perplexity which has embarrassed the Department up to the present day. Some one at the port of entry must, under that clause, decide whether or not the fish, entered as free thereunder, is "fresh caught," and is "for daily consumption." Did the qualification "for daily consumption" refer to the "fish," or to the catching, and the purpose of the catching? Who can correctly pass judgment on the motive of the fisherman, or of the importer?

On 16th June, 1866, this Department decided (see Appendix A) that the phrase included all fish imported for consumption, while fresh, and did not include fish imported fresh, but to be afterwards dried, or pickled, or cured for future use. "Daily consumption," said this Department, twenty years ago, "means consumption within a short time." That view seems correct, but, nevertheless, the law was intrinsically incapable of exact execution, inasmuch as it might be difficult for a Customs officer to foresee, or foreknow, the intentions or purposes referred to.
I believe that the fish clause quoted above from the law of 2nd March, 1861, and which levied a tax on fish, stood till 1870, but the free clause was made in 1870 to read:

"Fish fresh, for immediate consumption."

The substitution of "immediate" for "daily" did not remove the perplexity.

The Tariff Commission did not report on the subject.

The tariff law of 1883 taxes fish at our seaports, our lake ports, and on the frontier, by these words in the schedule for "Provisions:"

"Mackerel, one cent per pound,

"Herrings, pickled or salted, one-half of one cent per pound.

"Salmon, pickled, one cent per pound; other fish, pickled, in barrels, one cent per pound.

"Foreign-caught fish, imported otherwise than in barrels or half-barrels, whether fresh, smoked, dried, salted, or pickled, not specially enumerated or provided for in this Act, fifty cents per hundred pounds."

A subsequent section declared that the following articles, when imported, shall be exempt from duty:

"Fish, fresh, for immediate consumption.

"Fish for bait.

"Oil, spermaceti, whale and other fish oils of American fisheries, and all other articles produced of such fisheries;

"Shrimps or other shell-fish.

"Fish bladders or fish bladders."

The kinds of fish just described having been "specially enumerated, or provided for" in 1883, were thereby taken out of the clause levying a tax on foreign-caught fresh fish.

What has happened in the execution of the free-fish clause, during the last quarter of a century, whether the clause required "daily" or "immediate" consumption, is exhibited in the subjoined Appendix A. It is an unsatisfactory record of an effort to discover and execute an intendment of the law-makers which was so ambiguously expressed as to lead to doubt and dispute. In 1877, and after the law of 1870, the difficulties were increased, partly by reason of new contrivances for the artificial freezing of fish.

At first it was doubted by collectors whether or not a fish caught in winter, thrown on the ice and frozen stiff while lying there, and imported in that condition, could be a "fresh fish," as if either a fresh fish cannot be frozen, or a frozen fish cannot be fresh. It was also insisted that a fish caught in summer, and frozen by an artificial method could not be deemed fresh, even though as fresh as one frozen by the natural coldness of winter air in a northern climate. Then it was said that the produce of American fisheries could not be carried into Canada, there artificially frozen, and afterwards be exempt from tax when entered at our ports. It was argued by Customs officers that the quantity entered could be made a safe test of "immediate consumption," as if Customs officers could correctly ascertain and decide on the "immediate" buying and consuming powers of the people. There were Customs officers who urged the Department to make the distance of the probable place of sale from the place of entry a test of "immediate consumption," as if transportation from Portland in Maine to a market at Boston could be a legal test, and "immediate" referred to place rather than time. One collector thought twenty tons of fish on one entry at a port on the lakes, could not be for "immediate consumption" by subsequent shipment and sale in the great markets of Chicago, Philadelphia, and New York. It could not be affirmed that the fish thus frozen, whether naturally or artificially, was either "smoked, or dried, or salted, or pickled." If freezing deprived the fish of freshness, it could not well be deatable as foreign-caught fish, "fresh." What sort of fish was it? Was it old, stale, and decayed fish that buyers and consumers sought, bought, and would eat? The contention has gone on for well-nigh a quarter of a century, nor has Congress intervened to tax frozen fish by other and explicit words! In June last the interpretation of the law was referred to the Solicitor of this Department. His opinion, subjoined in Appendix A, does not relieve the enactment from difficulties in uniform application at each port such as the Constitution commands. If a collector shall, in order to secure such uniformity at every port, await the decision of this Department after an exhibition of the facts surrounding each entry, the fish might become anything but "fresh."

This fish clause of the tariff law affords a pertinent illustration of the need there is of revising our taxing legislation. The draughtsman of a great many of its sections, apparently unable to set down clearly his purpose, and his own idea of the method of executing it, has thrown upon appraising or collecting officers the work of ascertaining the intentions of importers, or the uses to which merchandise can be, or may be, thereafter put, which those officers are unable to perform in any reasonable time, or in any satisfactory way. To appraising and collecting work in practical administration there is a limit, which our present law too frequently ignores, and Customs officers are unjustly criticised, or even blamed for not doing such work properly.

I have dwelt upon this incident in our tariff legislation because it makes clear, even to the superficial observer, how man's inventions, and improved methods of rapid communication by steam, not only crowd down prices, and extend the saleable area of one article after another, year by year, and month by month, but even modify the necessary interpretation to be given to the classifications in our taxing laws. One hundred and thirty years ago, when the Treaty of Peace was signed, which apportioned the British Empire in America and its rights of fishing between the British Government and the thirteen independent American States, railroads and steam engines were practically unknown, and the use of ice as now applied in the fishing industry was also unknown. Even half a century ago the purchase and enjoyment of fresh fish as food was confined to places near the spot where the fish were caught. Thus it has come to pass that ice and railways have changed, even since 1870, the most obvious definition and the strictly literal application of the phrase in our tariff law, "fish, fresh, for immediate consumption." Such causes of change are constantly occurring as to other articles, by reason of modifications in methods of production, new combinations of component materials, new nomenclature, and new commercial classifications, which enforce the need of frequent revisions of our tariff laws, when the law, instead of taxing simply a few articles, requires the executive to levy and collect multifarious duties on so many hundreds and even thousands of articles.

The United States' Commissioner of Fish and Fisheries says in his report for 1881:

"In the earlier years of the American fisheries, and in the greater abundance of inshore fisheries, with a comparatively slight demand in consequence of the small population of the country, and the difficulties of transporting the fish, it was quite possible to obtain, within easy reach of our coast, fish enough to meet all the requirements. Now, with a population of fifty millions of people, the great decline of the inshore fisheries, and the ability not only to transport fresh fish to any distance inland without deterioration, but also with the growing demand for salted, dried, and canned fish, it is of the utmost importance that every facility be furnished the fishermen in the prosecution of their business.

"The work of increasing the supply of valuable fishes in the waters of the United States, whether by artificial propagation or by transplantation, although very successful, may be considered as yet in its infancy. It must be remembered that the agencies which have tended to diminish the abundance of the fish have been at work for many years, and are increasing in an enormous ratio. This, taken in connection with the greater multiplication of the population of the United States, makes the work an extremely difficult one. If the general conditions remained the same as they were fifty years ago, it would be a very simple thing to restore the former equilibrium.

"At that time, it must be remembered, the methods of preservation and of wholesale transfer, by means of ice, were not known, while the means of quick transportation were very limited. Hence, a small number of fish supplied fully the demand, with the exception, of course, of species that were salted down, like the cod, the mackerel, and the herrings (including the shad). At that time a comparatively small quantity supplied the demand for fresh fish, and it was easy to more than meet the demand. Now, however, the conditions are entirely changed.

In Appendix A will be found "the official correspondence, opinions and decisions," on the subject of frozen fish, the record of which will disclose to your honourable body the vast amount of labour which even one ambiguous phrase in a tariff law throws upon your Treasury Department and its Customs officers. Our existing "drag-net war tariff law contains not one only, but hundreds of such phrases, and these are the least of its discreditable, scandalous, and easily remediable imperfections.

THE PRODUCTS OF AMERICAN FISHERIES EXEMPT FROM DUTY.

The clause, already quoted from the law of 1858, which exempted from seaport taxation all fish-oils of American fisheries, and "all other articles the produce of such fisheries," has a large bearing on the inquiry made of me by the House. That exemption stands in the law of 1858, as it stood in the Revised Statutes, excepting the immaterial addition in the former of the word "oils" after "fish." The exactness is in the law of 2d March, 1861, which law secured the freedom of such articles from tariff taxes down to the Revised Statutes. The tariff laws of 1837, and 1846, contain the clause of 1851. The law of 1861 declares that "whale and other fish oils of American fisheries," and all other articles the produce of said fisheries shall be exempt from duty. Before 1841 the clause does not appear in the statutes, and yet a manual issued in New York by Deputy Collector Lyon in 1828, and another in 1832, put down as free: "Fisheries of the United States and their territories,—all products."
I also find substantially the same language in two compilations of the tariff laws—one by Jever Moses in 1830, and one by E. D. Ogden in 1840 and still another compilation, in 1828, by "James Campbell, entry clerk, custom house, New York," in which he enumerates "fish of the fisheries of the United States or its Territories, free." Mr. Ogden was for many years chief entry clerk at the port of New York, and a compiler of the revenue laws. In his edition for 1840 he cites as authority for the phrase the Acts of 14th July, 1832, 1840, and 1841.
The explanation is probably this: The final clause of the first section of Act of 10th August, 1790, which duties on a plan unlike that now used. It taxes at five per cent. ad valorem certain doors of merchandise, and then rescues from taxation certain specified commodities, "and, widely, all articles of the growth, the produce, or manufactures of the United States." The enacted clauses next to the last in the first section of the law of 27th April, 1810, impose duties on spermaceti oil of foreign fishing, and on whale and other fish oil of foreign fishing.
The language in that law, as to the products named, is precisely the same as that used in the present tariff, with the single substitution in the latter "of American fisheries" for the words "of foreign fishing" in the former. My conclusion is that only the products of foreign fishing having been provided for as dutiable, the products of American fisheries were by a dear implication exempted from duty as the products of the United States. That they were the products of the United States is, in essence, the result of the question by the fact that bounties were paid to vessels engaged in American fisheries.

In 1836, it was decided by Mr Justice Story that when whales have been caught, and oil has been therefrom produced, by the crew of an American vessel, the oil is not the product of "foreign fishing" and dutiable, even although owned by aliens when entered at our ports. He decided that the inquiry whether or not the oil was of "foreign fishing" depended upon the nationality of the vessel, the fish being caught and the oil extracted, and not upon subsequent events.

In a series of comparatively recent decisions by this Department, copies of the text of which will be found in Appendix B, Fisheries have been defined as "American" within the meaning of our revenue laws, although the taking of the fish be on the high seas, or within a foreign jurisdiction. That should in part be so for other reasons than were assigned in those decision inasmuch as customs duties are, in general, only imposed on articles when imported from a port, or place, within the exclusive dominion of a foreign State, which could not be said of fish, or their products, arriving from the ocean where the fish were caught.

The phrase "fishing of the United States," in the first tariff law enacted by the first Congress which sat under the Constitution, and the test of American fishing has, from that time to this uniformly been the nationality of the vessel, regardless of the place where the fish were taken. Even the Treaty of Washington, which admitted free of duty into each country fish of all kinds being the produce of the fisheries of either country, excepting fish of the inland lakes, and of the rivers falling into them, left fish caught therein by American vessels entitled to free entry in our ports as formerly. Our Supreme Court declared in 1876, the subject to the paramount right of navigation (the power to regulate which is in the Federal government) each State owns the bed of the tidewaters within its jurisdiction, and may appropriate them to be used exclusively by its citizens as a common for cultivating and taking fish if navigation be not impeded; but the Treaty of 1854, nevertheless, to British subjects, in common with American citizens, the liberty to fish on our coasts north of the 39th parallel of north latitude, and the Treaty of 1871 gave the liberty north of the 39th parallel. Those treaties having fallen, and the fishing rights of Massachusetts on her coasts having returned to her, she may permit British vessels to fish on her coasts, but then it could not be said that the fish, if entered at our ports, had been imported from a foreign port. It apart from such an improbable incident to complicate the proposition, it may be safely stated that all fishing-grounds, whether on the high seas, or on the Canadian coasts secured to us by treaty stipulations, are "American Fisheries" if the fish are caught by vessels regularly documented by the Treasury Department. In that sense and to that end, the ocean and certain Canadian coasts are (under the Treaties of 1783 and 1818) our "fishing-grounds.'

WHAT VESSELS ARE AMERICAN VESSELS?

In this relation, which concerns the freedom from taxation at our ports of fish products taken in the sea, or on Canadian coasts, and also concerns our pending serious differences with the British Government, it is important to realize what constitutes an American vessel.
This capable of enlarging the area from which free fish can be entered at our ports. Congress, notably by the enactment of 5th July, 1843, has committed to the head of this Department the supervision of the commercial marine, and merchant seamen of the United States, and of the decision of all questions relating to the issue of registers, enrolments, and licenses to vessels, and to the preservation of those documents. Whether or not a private vessel, designed to be American, is American, and entitled to carry and display that flag, depends solely on the character of the ship's papers that it carries by the permission of Congress, given under the attestation of this Department.—The only question is this: Has the vessel conformed to the laws, not of a foreign country, but of the United States? In the decision that question her papers must be prima facie evidence against all the world. These conditions are elementary, but they are important now as defining what are "American fisheries," whose products are in our ports exempt from Customs taxes.

The section of a law which authorizes vessels licensed for carrying on fishery, to "touch and trade at any foreign port" is not a modern contrivance for modern exigency as Canadian local officials intimate, but has been on our statute-book since 1793. As literal reproduced in section 4364 of the Revised Statutes, it gives this Department the average to any vessel, so licensed for carrying on the fisheries of the United States, to enter British or other foreign ports, as a commercial vessel, and to there enjoy the rights and privileges accorded to vessels of the United States sailing "foreign" under a register, and engaged in the fisheries. The permission thus given to fishing vessels to "touch and trade has been understood by this Department for nearly a hundred years as conferring upon the vessel a right to land, and to receive on board a cargo of merchandise, in the same manner as if she were not engaged in the fisheries. On the return of the vessel to the United States she is required to make regular entry, and to be in all respects subject to the regulations prescribed for vessels arriving from foreign ports.

MEDIEVAL RESTRICTIONS ON FREE NAVIGATION.

The stipulations of the Treaty of 1815 only applied in our favour to British territories in Europe. If they were applicable now to British territories in America the present difference in British North America should not exist, for the first article of that convention declared that "the inhabitants of the two countries, respectively, shall have liberty, freely and securely, to come with their ships and cargoes to all such places, ports, and rivers, in the territories aforesaid, to which other foreigners are permitted to come, to enter into the same and to remain in any of the said territories, respectively." The second article stipulates that, as to "the intercourse" between the United States and British possessions in North America, "each party shall remain in the complete possession of its rights."

In 1827, when the Treaty of 1815 was extended for an indefinite time, the United States united in vain with England for a more liberal agreement, or a more liberal interpretation of that of 1815, but could obtain neither.

Such liberty of access by American vessels to British colonial ports on this continent was the subject of fruitless negotiation by each of the first six Presidents. The endeavor was connued during forty years, and was only successful in the hands of General Jackson, as President, Mr. Van Buren as Secretary of State, and Mr. McLane as Minister to London, and then by concerted legislation relating at first only to the British West Indies. It having been arranged that there would be legislation at London opening to us the British colonial ports to the south of us on this continent, Congress, on 29th May, 1830, authorized President-Jackson to proclaim our ports open "indefinitely for a fixed term," to British vessels from the islands provinces, or colonies of Great Britain, on or near the North American continent, and north south, or east of the United States.

Soon thereafter, and on 5th October, 1830, President Jackson did issue the Proclamation, and on 26th June, 1834, Congress again reduced tonnage dues on Canadian vessels of all sorts entering our ports. By such concerted and reciprocal legislation, the medieval barriers against colonial possessions in America by which the mother Country had so long endeavoured for her own benefit to hinder and restrict the trade of the colonies, and to levy differential duties in favour of colonial produce, have been broken down. The Privy Council, and the Governor-General of the Dominion of Canada, while conceding that Canadian ports are now open to American trading vessels, attempt to apply that medieval and discarded restrictive system to American fishermen on the high seas.

In 1843, after many years of effort by the United States, England again relaxed the rigours of the restrictions of her ancient laws of transportation, as applied to her colonies, and the two countries entered upon a new period of prosperity flowing from the unhindered carriage of merchandise in bond by land and water. That legislation covering the British North American provinces began, on our part, on 3rd March, 1845. In 1845 came the comprehensive system of ware-housing, the general features of which are now in force, devised and perfected, during the administration of President Polk, by my distinguished predecessor, Mr. Robert J. Walker.
In 1849, 1850, 1854, and subsequently, that system of warehousing, and transportation in bond by railway and steamboat, has been amended and improved so that to-day we of the United States and they of the Dominion of Canada are reaping the advantages of an international organization by which merchandise, whether dutiable or free, and if dutiable without payment of duties on Canadian provinces, or at their coast, is subject to the same rates of duty as if shipped from a point in the United States.

The American tariff of 1846 and 1850 was a protection for American industries, and was a measure of protection to the British fishery. It was intended to gratify both the landed and the industrial interests of the United States. The low rates of protection which have been adequate to meet the competition of the British fishery, have, on the whole, been an advantage in the true sense of the term, to both the States and the Dominion. But the change in the method of competition between the two countries has not been kept pace with the change in the tariff. The British market for fish has been erected by great establishments in Canada, which are entirely independent of the labor of the fishermen; and yet the American tariff has protected the fishermen of the United States, who have been in the competition of an industry which was founded on the labor of the people, and not on the establishment of mechanical enterprises.
of Congress, given as the vessel came from the British proper and ports, 3,780,000, from 1831 to 1833 only $6,257,151; from 1832 to 1845 it rose to $6,315,780 but, under liberal transportation arrangements, it rose from 1846 to 1853, to no less an annual average than $14,250,760. Leaving in our favor, during that period of eight years, a balance of trade of over 40 millions of dollars.

It was in 1845 that England, changing her colonial policy, empowered the Canadian provinces to make a tariff on imports to suit themselves. During the next year those provinces removed the barrier against American products which existed, in the form of differential rates in favor of British products, and admitted commodities from our side of the line on the same terms as commodities were admitted coming from British ports. In 1849, England, having by several treaties with Washington provided for reciprocal arrangements, presented further propositions for a further reciprocal relaxation of commercial restrictions which impeded trade across the boundary line. The administration of President Fillmore endeavored to promote the object for which my predecessor in this Department, Mr. Robert J. Walker, strove, in 1846, in his correspondence with the British Minister.

This good result of only a partial experiment of reciprocal country naturally led to negotiations for a more comprehensive international arrangement, and such a one was concluded in 1854 by negotiations conducted at Washington, on our side during the administration of President Pierce by a wise and illustrious statesman and citizen of New York, Mr. Marcy, who was then Secretary of State. That reciprocity treaty was in force till 1859, a period covering the whole war. Under its influence, the aggregate interchanges of commodities between ourselves and the inhabitants of all the British provinces, numbering not as many as those of the State of New York, rose from an annual average of a little over 14 millions of dollars, in the previous eight years, to over 33 millions in gold in 1855, to nearly 50 millions in 1856, and to 84 millions in the last year of its existence. During the thirteen years of the British treaty, according to their official returns, purchased from us articles valued at over 394 millions of dollars in gold, and we bought from them 197 millions, thus making an international trade of nearly 590 millions of dollars on a gold valuation. I can but think that if that treaty of 1854 had remained in force till this day, the two peoples,—divided by a boundary line which can only with difficulty be discerned from the Arctic ocean to the Pacific, from the Pacific to Lake Superior, and from Lake Ontario to the Atlantic,—would now be one people, at least for all purposes of production, trade and business.

During the past summer, while American vessels, regularly documented, have been excluded from the hospitality and privileges of trading in Canadian ports, Canadian fishing-vessels have been permitted freely to enter and use American ports along the New England coast, have been protected by this Department in such entry and use, and have not been required to pay any freight, fees, charges, taxes, or dues than have been imposed upon the vessels of other governments similarly situated. The hospitality elsewhere, and generally extended in British ports to American commercial vessels has not been less, in quality or quantity, as I am informed, than the hospitality extended to British vessels in American ports; but there is this marked difference, that, while this Department protects Canadian fishermen in the use of American ports, the Dominion of Canada brutally excludes American fishermen from Canadian ports. This dependence of port hospitality, as between this Government and the British Government, in respect to vessels of either, is emphasized by the seventeenth section of the law of 19th June, 1856, empowering the President to suspend commercial privileges to the vessels of any country denying the same to United States vessels. That section is in harmony with a section in the British navigation law which authorizes the Queen, whenever British vessels are subject in any foreign country to prohibitions or restrictions, to impose by Order in Council such prohibitions, or restrictions upon vessels of such foreign country, either as to voyages in which they may engage, or as to the articles which they may import into or export from any British possession in any part of the world, so as to place the ships of such country on as nearly as possible the same footing in British ports as that on which British ships are placed in ports of such country.

REVENUE LAWS AND REGULATIONS.

The Head of this Department, having the responsibility of enforcing the collection of duties upon such a vast number of imported articles, under circumstances of so long a sea-coast and frontier line to be guarded against the devices of smugglers, should not be inclined to under estimate the solicitude of the local officers of the Dominion of Canada to protect its own revenue from similar invasion. The laws for the collection of duties on imports in force in the United States and in the Dominion of Canada, respectively, will be found, on comparison, to be on many points similar in their objects and methods. They should naturally be similar, for both had, in the beginning, the same common origin. In the United States, Congress has divided the territory of each State by metes and bounds, usually by towns, cities, or counties, into collection districts, for the purpose of collecting duties on imports, and in each collection district has established a port of entry and ports of delivery. In that manner all our sea-coast frontier is sub-divided for revenue purposes. The object of our law is to place every vessel arriving from a foreign port in the custody of a Customs officer immediately upon her arrival, in order that no merchandise may be unladen therefrom without the knowledge of the Government. The Canadian law is much the same as our own in that regard, and in comparison with our own does not seem to me to be unnecessarily severe in its general provisions. Our own law provides, for example (see 2774, Rev. Stat.) that:

"Within twenty four hours after the arrival of any vessel, from any foreign port, at any port of the United States established by law, at which an officer of the Customs resides, or within any harbor, inlet, or creek thereof, if the hours of the business of the office of the chief officer of Customs will permit, or as soon thereafter as such hours will permit, the master shall report to such officer, and make report to the chief officer of the arrival of the vessel; and he shall within forty-eight hours after such arrival make a further report in writing to the collector of the district, which report shall be in the form, and shall contain all the particulars required to be inserted in and verified like the manifest. Every Master who shall neglect or omit to make either of such reports or declaration, or to verify any such declaration as required, or shall not fully comply with the true intent and meaning of this section, shall, for each offence be liable to a penalty of one thousand dollars."

Condemnation does not, in the opinion of this Department, justify rest upon the Dominion of Canada because she has upon her statute-books and enforces a law similar to the foregoing, but because she refuses to permit American deep sea fishing vessels, navigating and using the ocean, to enter her ports for the ordinary purposes of trade and commerce, even though they have never attempted to fish within the territorial limits of Canada, and intend obedience to every requirement of the Customs laws, and of every other law of the port which such vessels seek to enter. American fishing vessels duly authenticated by this Department, and having a permit "to touch and trade," should be permitted to visit Canadian ports, and buy supplies, and enjoy ordinary commercial privileges, unless such a right is withheld in our ports from Canadian vessels. That right is denied by the Privy Council and the Governor General of the Canadian Dominion, upon the ground that it would be in effect a pro total abrogation of the Treaty of 1818. That contention is an error, in the opinion of this Department, because the Treaty of 1818 has no application to the subject matter. If the right claimed by this Department for American vessels authenticated by this Department were conceded by Canada, it would only apply to a few ports established by law for the entry of foreign vessels, and would merely enable United States' fishing vessels to pursue their regular business after entry into or departure from such ports, under the same rules and regulations as are applied to the commercial vessels of other nations. We ask that American fishing vessels shall enjoy hospitality in such Canadian ports as are set apart for the entry of foreign vessels, for the unloading and shipment of merchandise, and generally for foreign commerce.

This Department has had occasion in the past, and may be compelled in the future, to seize and prosecute to forfeiture foreign as well as domestic vessels violating in our own ports, the Customs law, but I believe there never has been in the past, and I hope there never will be in the future, such passionata spite displayed by the officers of this Government, as has during the last summer been exhibited in the Dominion of Canada toward well meaning American fishermen. Congress has forbidden the Head of this Department to prosecute even for evasion of tariff law unless satisfied of "an actual intention to defraud."

TONNAGE OF VESSELS ENGAGED IN AMERICAN FISHERIES, AND THE NATIONALITIES OF THE FISHERMEN.

During the periods of the inquiry made of me by the House, the tonnage of American fishing-vessels of over twenty tons burden, other than whalers, will be seen in Appendix D.

That tonnage reached its maximum 203,459 in 1862, and during the subsequent seven years diminished by more than 70 per cent. The lowest number of tons was touched in the middle of the period between the expiration of the Reciprocity Treaty of 1854 and the conclusion of the Treaty of Washington of 1871. The falling off is perhaps to be attributed in great measure to the repeal in 1856 of the laws allowing bounties to the vessels engaged in the fisheries. By the law of 1813 there was paid by the collector of the district where such vessels belonged, to the owner thereof, if the vessel had been employed at sea, in fishing for the term of four months, and for each ton burden, a specified sum, not to exceed $372 on any one vessel for one season, of which bounty three-eights accrued to the owner and the other five-eights to the several fishermen. In 1817 it was enacted that the bounty shall be paid only to vessels whereof the officers, and at least three-fourths of the crew, shall be citizens of the United States, or persons not the subject of any foreign prince or state. In 1819, soon after the conclusion of the Treaty of 1818, the bounties were increased, but not to exceed $360 for each vessel. In 1864 it was enacted that the bounty shall not thereafter be paid to any vessel until satisfactory proof shall have been furnished to the collector of Customs that the import duty imposed by law upon foreign salt has been paid on all foreign salt used in curing the fish on which the claim to the allowance to the bounty is based, and the law was repealed on 28th June, 1864, (U. S. Stat. at Large, vol. 13, p. 201,) which required two-thirds of those on board to be American citizens. On 28th July, 1866, all laws and parts of laws allowing fishing-bounties to vessels thereafter licensed to engage in the fisheries was also repealed, but under the condition that duties shall be remitted on all foreign salt used by such vessels in curing fish. It seems quite probable that anticipation of the enactment repealing bounties induced, in great part, the great falling off in tonnage between 1862 and 1869.

The best estimate that can be made by this Department of the relation of aliens to citizens engaged in American fisheries, in the North Atlantic, other than whalers, is that during the last year (1886) of the 14,240 employed, seventy-eight per cent were American citizens.

PRESENT CONDITION OF AMERICAN FISHERIES, AND THE SUM OF DUTIES COLLECTED ON FOREIGN FISH.

On May 28, 1886, and in furtherance of a suggestion made by our Fish Commissioner, this Department issued a circular letter of instruction to Collectors, a copy of which will be found in Appendix E. The replies received have been transmitted to that Commission, and therefore valuable facts, respecting our fisheries, have been obtained, some of which the Commissioner has kindly grouped and placed at my disposition. They are respectfully submitted to the House in Appendix E. In Appendix C will be found such an exhibition of the duties collected on fish as the records of this Department, for reasons set forth in the Appendix, make available for immediate presentation to the House.

Respectfully yours,

(Sd.) DANIEL MANNING,
Secretary of the Treasury.

Minister at Washington to the Governor General.

WASHINGTON, 19th January, 1887.

[No. 4.]

My Lord,—I have the honour to enclose to Your Excellency herewith copies of a Bill which has been introduced into the House of Representatives, in consequence, it is said, of the denial of the part of Your Excellency’s Government of the right to land and transport American fish in bond over Canadian railroads to the United States.

I have, &c.,

Mr. Belmont introduced the following Bill:

A Bill "To protect American vessels against unwarrantable and unlawful discriminations in the ports of British North America."

"Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled, That hereafter whenever the President shall be satisfied that vessels of the United States are denied in ports of the British Provinces in North America bordering on the Atlantic Ocean, or in the waters adjacent to said Provinces, rights to which such vessels are entitled by treaty or by the law of nations, he may, by proclamation, prohibit vessels bearing the British flag and coming from such ports from entering the ports of the United States, or from exercising such privileges therein as he may in his proclamation define; and if, on and after the date at which such proclamation takes effect, the master or other person in charge of any such vessel shall do, in the ports, harbours or waters of the United States, for or on account of such vessel, any act forbidden by such proclamation aforesaid, such vessel, and its rigging, tackle, furniture and boats, and all the goods on board, shall be liable to seizure and forfeiture to the United States; and any person or persons preventing or attempting to prevent, or aiding any other person in preventing or attempting to prevent, any officer of the United States from enforcing this Act, shall forfeit and pay to the United States one thousand dollars, and shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and, upon conviction thereof, shall be liable to imprisonment for a term not exceeding two years.

Sec. 2. That the President may also, by such proclamation, forbid the entrance into the United States of all merchandise coming by land from the Provinces of British North America, and may also forbid the entrance into the United States of the cars, locomotives or other rolling stock of any railway company chartered under the laws of said Provinces; and upon proof that the privileges secured by article twenty-nine of the Treaty concluded between the United States and Great Britain on the eighth day of May, eighteen hundred and seventy-one, are denied as to goods, wares and merchandise arriving at the ports of British North America, the President may also, by proclamation, forbid the exercise of the like privileges as to goods, wares and merchandise arriving in any of the ports of the United States; and any person violating or attempting to violate the provisions of any proclamation issued under this section shall forfeit and pay to the United States the sum of one thousand dollars, and shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and, upon conviction thereof, shall be liable to imprisonment for a term not exceeding two years.

Sec. 3. That whenever, after the issuance of a proclamation under this Act, the President is satisfied that the denial of rights and privileges on which this proclamation was based no longer exists, he may withdraw the proclamation, or so much thereof as he may deem proper, and reissue the same thereafter when in his judgment the same shall be necessary.

No. 174.

Sir L. West to Lord Lansdowne.

[No. 5.]

WASHINGTON, January 21st, 1887.

My Lord,—I have the honour to enclose herewith copies of the Bill and Report thereon for the appointment of a Commission to investigate losses and injuries inflicted on United States' citizens engaged in the North American fisheries.

I have, &c.,

(Sd.) L. S. SACKVILLE WEST.

THE MARQUIS OF LANSDOWNE, G.C.M.G., &c., &c., &c.
For the appointment of a commission to investigate concerning losses and injuries inflicted since December thirty-first, eighteen hundred and eighty-five, on United States' citizens engaged in the North American fisheries.

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled, That the President be, and is hereby, authorised to appoint a commissioner to proceed to such places in the United States or elsewhere as may be designated by the Secretary of State, to take testimony, under oath or affirmation, in relation to the losses and injuries inflicted since the thirty-first of December, eighteen hundred and eighty-five, by British authorities, imperial or colonial, upon citizens of the United States engaged in the fisheries on the north-east coast of British North America. Said commissioner shall everywhere have, in respect to the administration of oaths or affirmations and the taking of testimony, the same powers as a commissioner of a circuit court, and shall be paid the same fees as are prescribed for similar services of a commissioner of a circuit court, together with travelling expenses.

Report

The Committee on Foreign Affairs, to which were referred the President's Message, of 8th December, 1886 (Ex. Doc. No. 19), and the reply of the Secretary of the Treasury, on 10th January, 1887 (Ex. Doc. No. 78), to the resolution of the House adopted on 14th December, 1886, and House Bill 10241, submits the following report:—

Your Committee has not only given to these communications the very careful consideration which they deserve, but, during the last Session of the House, made diligent inquiry into the whole subject of American Fisheries. They were attended in the committee-room by, among others, William Henry Trescot, Esq., and Charles Levi Woodbury, Esq., of Boston. Mr. Woodbury represented all, or a large majority of, New England owners of fishing vessels, and both of the gentlemen favoured your Committee with valuable opinions on different phases of the important subject under consideration.
Your Committee is of opinion that the rightful area of our "American Fisheries" has been reduced, and the quantity of fish—fresh, dried, cured, or salted—landed in the United States free of duty has been diminished, by the conduct of the local officers in Canada. That conduct has been not only in violation of Treaty stipulations and of international comity, but during the fishing season just passed has been inhuman, as the Message of the President clearly establishes.

The Treaty of 1783.

The Treaty of Peace defined, in 1783, the area of American Fisheries which might, in that portion of the world, be prosecuted by American vessels. Its third article declares:

"Article III.

"It is agreed that the people of the United States shall continue to enjoy unmolested the right—
"(1) To take fish of every kind on the Grand Bank and all other banks of Newfoundland;
"(2) Also in the Gulf of Saint Lawrence;
"(3) And at all other places in the sea, where the inhabitants of both countries used at any time heretofore to fish. And also that the inhabitants of the United States shall have liberty—
"(1) To take fish of every kind on such part of the coast of Newfoundland as British fishermen shall use (but not to dry or cure the same on that island);
"(2) And also on the coasts, bays, and creeks of all other of His Britannic Majesty's Dominions in America;
"(3) And that the American fishermen shall have liberty to dry and cure fish in any of the unsettled bays, harbours and creeks of Nova Scotia, Magdalen Islands and Labrador, so long as the same shall remain unsettled; but so soon as the same, or either of them, shall be settled, it shall not be lawful for the said fishermen to dry or cure fish at such settlement without a previous agreement for that purpose with the inhabitants, proprietors or possessors of the ground."

When that Treaty of Peace was signed, the British Navigation Act of Charles II, and other laws, prevented trade in foreign vessels with the Anglo-American Colonies. The cornerstone of that policy was a monopoly of colonial trade for British vessels. The American Colonies were founded in subservience to British commerce. A double monopoly was established by England—a monopoly of their whole import, which is all to be from England; a monopoly of their whole export, which is to be sent nowhere but to Great Britain. The colonies were to send all their products raw to England, and take everything from England in the last stage of manufacture. The Treaty of Peace did not stipulate for a change of that policy as between the United States and Canada, although the American Congress did, in April, 1776, sweep away, as far as it could, that monopoly system from the ports it controlled, abolish British Custom Houses and put none in their stead, proclaim absolute free trade in the place of luxry restrictions, invite products from any place to come in friendly vessels, and authorize American products to be exported without tax.

After the thirteen States had acquired their independence, American vessels were not only excluded from the ports of the British Colonies, but Canada, as a reward for its loyalty, received the exclusive privilege of supplying the British West Indies with timber and provisions, to the great injury of the latter, whose nearest ports were the American Gulf ports and South American ports.

It will be observed that this article, in continuing, confirming and establishing the thirteen States and their inhabitants in the taking of fish on the banks, in the Gulf and in the sea, uses the word "right," but uses the word "liberty" in confirming to American fishermen the taking of fish on the coasts, bays and creeks of every part of the British Dominions in America. The word "right" is thus applied to fishing in the open sea, which by public law is common to all nations, and was intended to affirm that Great Britain did not claim to hold by Treaty engagements, or in any other manner, an exclusive right of fishing therein. The word "liberty" is thus applied to taking fish, to drying and curing fish, on what was, anterior to the Treaty, within the jurisdiction, or territorial waters of Great Britain, but an exclusive right of taking fish therein was not hers. "Liberty," as thus used, implies a freedom from restraint or interference in fishing along the British coasts.

Canada having been, by the aid of men of the New England Colonies, conquered for the English in 1759, the conquest having been confirmed in 1763 by the Treaty of Paris, and the sovereignty of Newfoundland having been conceded to Great Britain by the peace of Utrecht in 1713, the American Colonists, who bravely endured sacrifices in war to accomplish those results, shared therein, as British subjects down to 1733, when, by Treaty, England stipulated that the citizens of the "free, sovereign, and independent" States of America shall continue to share, and that citizens, with British subjects in such coast fishing. Lord North having, in 1775, proposed to the House of Commons to exclude the fishermen of New England from the Banks of Newfoundland, and to restrain them from a toil in which they excelled the joint right to the fisheries became a vital part of the great American struggle. "God and nature," said Johnston, "that fishing to New England and not to Old." Americans, Britons and British Canadians became, by the Treaty, partners in the fisheries. It created a "service of public law" in favour of American fishermen. "All British coasts, bays and creeks" in America were thereby, as Secretaries Manning so aptly says, made a part of our "American Fisheries," to which our tariff laws were thereafter enacted, referred and attached, and so made the products thereof exempt from duty on entry at our ports.

TREATY OF GHENT.

Thus stood American rights and liberties of fishing on the high seas, and within the limits of British Dominions in North America, down to the War of 1812, and to the Treaty of peace negotiated at Ghent, which closed that war. Till then it was nowhere denied that American fishermen could fish on the high seas and on those coasts wherever British fishermen could fish. But during the negotiations at Ghent, in 1814, the British negotiators declared that their Government did not intend to grant to the United States a right to fishing within the limits of the British fisheries. In answer to this declaration the American negotiators said they were not authorised to bring into discussion any of the rights or liberties which the United States have heretofore enjoyed in relation thereto. England contended that the word "right" in the Treaty of 1783 was used as applicable to the United States were a right of a recognized independence, and the word "liberty" to what they were to only as concessions strictly dependent on the existence of the Treaty and full force, which concession, as England asserted, in the declaration of war by the United States, and would not be revived except for an equivalent.

In the alarming condition of affairs, at home and abroad, in the autumn of 1814, our Government did finally authorize our negotiators at Ghent to agree to the status quo ante preserved. (See introductory notes by Hon. J.C. Bancroft Davies to "Treaties and Conventions," published by the Department of State in 1873, p. 1024.) The Treaty was signed on 24th December, 1814. How different might have been its terms if there had been procrastination till the news came of General Jackson's brilliant victory at New Orleans only fifteen days afterwards, or till the escape of Napoleon from Elba only two months later.

THE TREATY OF 1818.

Within a short time after the close of the year 1814, England announced her purpose to exclude American fishermen from the "liberty" of fishing within one marine league of her shores in North America, and of drying and curing fish on the unsettled parts of those territories.

The announcement led up to the Treaty of 1818, whereby the "liberty" conceded in 1783 to belong to American Fishermen was confined within narrower limits, and the area of American fisheries was greatly reduced as well as the quantity of American caught fish arriving exempt from taxation at our ports. The Treaty of 1818, and the misunderstandings arising under it, led up to the Marcy-Elgin Reciprocity Treaty of 1854, terminated in 1866, which covered by a new stipulation, a part of the stipulations contained in the Treaty of 1818. Your Committee do now express an opinion whether or not the termination of the Reciprocity Treaty of 1854, revived the superseded and Unusual stipulation of the Convention of 1818, contained in its renunciation sentences, which are the last sentences of the first article, for which stipulation in the Treaty of 1818, a new positive stipulation was substituted and inserted in the Treaty of 1854, which last-named Treaty might, in accordance with its terms, have been in force indefinitely.

The first article of the Treaty of 1818, which has been the cause of such unnumbered international differences and disputes, is in these words:—

"Whereas differences have arisen respecting the liberty claimed by the United States, for the inhabitants thereof, to take dry and cure fish on certain coasts, bays, harbours, and creeks of His Britannic Majesty's dominions in America, it is agreed between the high contracting parties that the inhabitants of the said United States shall have, forever, in common with the subjects of His Britannic Majesty, the liberty to take fish of every kind.
1. On that part of the southern coast of Newfoundland, which extends from Cape Ray to the Ramea Islands, on the western and northern coasts of Newfoundland, from the said Cape Ray to the Quirpon Islands;
2. On the shores of the Magdalen Islands;
3. And also on the coasts, bays, harbours and creeks from Mount Jolly, on the southern coast of Labrador, to and through the Straits of Belle Isle, and thence northwardly indefinitely along the coast, without prejudice, however, to any of the exclusive rights of the Hudson Bay Company.

And that the American fishermen shall also have liberty forever to dry and cure fish in any of the unsettled bays, harbours and creeks of the southern part of the coast of Newfoundland, hereabove described, and of the coast of Labrador; but so, so, as the same, or any portion thereof, shall be settled, it shall not be lawful for the said fishermen to dry or cure fish at such portion so settled without previous agreement for such purpose with the inhabitants, proprietors, or possessors of the ground.

And the United States hereby renounce forever any liberty heretofore enjoyed or claimed by the inhabitants thereof, to take, dry or cure fish on, or within three marine miles of any of the coasts, bays, creeks or harbours of His Britannic Majesty's dominions in America not included within the above-mentioned limits.

Provided, however, that the American Fishermen shall be permitted to enter such bays or harbours (1) for the purpose of shelter and (2) of repairing damages therein; or (3) purchasing wood and (4) of obtaining water, and for no other purpose whatever. But they shall be under such restrictions as may be necessary to prevent their taking, drying or curing fish therein, or in any other manner whatsoever, abusing the privileges thereby reserved to them.

That article does not allude to, or attempt to interfere with, our rights in the open sea, on the banks, or in the gulf, which were confirmed by the concession of the Independence of the thirteen States. It refers only to the liberty claimed and recognized by the Treaty of 1783, to fish in certain coasts, bays, harbours and creeks. It begins by a recital that differences have arisen respecting the "liberty" claimed by American fishermen in those places. It neither mentions nor alludes to any differences about fishing on the high seas. It stipulates that American fishermen may fish on certain specified coasts, bays, harbours, creeks, and ships, and may dry and cure fish in certain unsettled bays, harbours and creeks, and especially dry and cure on the coasts of Newfoundland, which last the Treaty of 1783 did not extend. It also states any "remonstrances", as the same, or any three miles of any other coasts, bays, creeks, or harbours than those specified in the article, but the sentence of renunciation contains a stipulation that the American fishermen may enter "such bays or harbours" for four specified purposes, "and for no other purpose whatever," under such restrictions as may be necessary to prevent fishing, drying, or curing "therein."

Unless English words were in 1818 used in that article in an unusual sense, there is not a sentence or word therein that has reference to anything else than taking, drying, or curing fish, by American fishermen, on or within certain coasts, bays, creeks, or harbours therein described. No word or phrase mentioned alludes or refers to deep-sea fishing, or ordinary commercial privileges. The restrictions refer only to fishing, or drying, or curing, ordinary commercial privileges. The restrictions refer only to fishing, or drying, or curing "in such bays or harbours."

It is to be assumed that when this Treaty of 1818 was signed, the British statutes of Charles II, in restraint of navigation, the rudiments of which are to be seen in 1560, and were aimed at Dutch trade with British sugar colonies, were on the English side, rigorously enforced, so that no merchandise could be lawfully imported into Canadian ports excepting in English bottoms. The Treaty of 1818 was concluded on 20th October, of that year, but ratifications were not exchanged till 30th January, 1819. Certainly on our side there was then in force legislative restriction on navigation almost as severe as was the English enactment after the restoration of Charles II. America had not then emerged from the era of the embargo, Berlin and Milan decrees, and the influences of the War of 1812. On 18th April, 1818, the President approved a law closing our ports after 30th September, 1818, against British vessels coming from a colony which, by the ordinary laws, is closed against American vessels. Touching at a port open to American vessels could not modify the restriction. Vessels and cargoes entering, or attempting to enter, in violation of the law, were forfeitable. And any English vessel that could lawfully enter our ports was compelled to give a bond, if laden outward with American products, not to land them in a British colony or territory from which American vessels were excluded. The pre-emption is that, quite independently of fishing rights and liberties, no American vessel was for long before and after 1818 permitted by English law to touch and trade in Canadian ports. How that system of exclusion was gradually broken down, not by treaty, but by concerted legislation, the Secretary of State and the Secretary of the Treasury have clearly exhibited in the communications referred to your Committee.

Not till 1812 were American wheat and lumber permitted to go directly from American ports to the British West Indies and be entered there. In 1834 Canada was allowed to import American wheat and, then send it through the Saint Lawrence to the English market as

By such and any other trade, the said imports of Newfoundland and any of the same, or any other goods, wares, or merchandise are reserved to be taken, or carried to dry or cured by the said fishermen in the open sea.

That such vessels, and all others of the same or any other goods, wares, or merchandise are reserved to be taken, or carried to dry or cured by the said fishermen in the open sea, shall be fishery not to exceed the number of boats or vessels therein contained in the same, or any other goods, wares, or merchandise are reserved to be taken, or carried to dry or cured by the said fishermen in the open sea, shall be fishery not to exceed the number of boats or vessels therein contained in the same, or any other goods, wares, or merchandise are reserved to be taken, or carried to dry or cured by the said fishermen in the open sea.

The law in Article I, as quoted, is not inconsistent with the rights of the British for the reasons given in the Committee's report, and is not an interference with the rights of either nation.

Regarding the rights of fishermen to dry fish on the coast of Newfoundland, the law in Article I, as quoted, is not inconsistent with the rights of the British for the reasons given in the Committee's report, and is not an interference with the rights of either nation.
ments, or like postal treaties, there was nothing in the facts of the War of 1812 to prevent them from recommending their operations automatically with the peace. Nothing in the relations of the two Governments, was inconsistent with their survival. Mr. Dana, in his note on Wheaton (page 333), has stated the rule thus:

"If a war arises from a cause independent of the Treaty, the survival of any clause in the Treaty must depend upon its nature and the circumstances under which it was made."

The question of amendment or survival of the Treaty of 1783, as to certain specified parts of the British coast in America, was, however, by the Treaty of 1818, made of no practical consequences (so long as that Treaty endured) by the renunciation signed by the United States.

THE CANADIAN CONTENTION.

The legal effect of the first Article of the Treaty of 1818 may be sketched in outline in this wise:

All the British coast, shores, bays, harbours, and creeks in America were, by that Article, separated into two portions, which were bounded, defined and indentified. The two may be marked respectively as A. and B. In the sixth volume of "Papers Relating to the Treaty of Washington," published by the Department of State in 1874, is a map of New Brunswick, Nova Scotia, Newfoundland and Prince Edward Island, coloured in a way to plainly exhibit these two portions. In all that portion marked A it was agreed that the inhabitants of the United States shall have forever, in common with British subjects, the liberty to take fish of every kind; but as to the portion marked B, the United States renounced forever any liberty theretofore enjoyed or claimed to take, dry, or cure any fish.
It was stipulated, nevertheless, that "the American fishermen shall be permitted to enter" the portion marked B for the purpose of shelter, repairing damages, purchasing wood, obtaining water, and "for no other purpose whatever."

The entire Article referred to inshore fishing. No right and no liberty whatever, that might concern deep-sea fishermen, did the United States, by the Treaty of 1818, renounce.

This obvious intent and purpose of the Article is confirmed by the last words of the section, which declares: "But they (the American fishermen) shall be under such restrictions as may be necessary to prevent their taking, drying, or curing fish therein" (in portion B) "or in any other manner abusing the privileges hereby reserved to them." The "restrictions to be imposed upon the American fishermen, while in portion B, are expressly limited, not to such as concern navigation or revenue, but to such as were specifically renounced, namely, to such as "may be necessary to prevent their taking, drying, or curing fish therein, or in any other manner whatever abusing the privileges hereby reserved to them" in order to take, dry, or cure fish therein.

Was it not clearly the intention of the negotiators of this Treaty that the character of these restrictions should be agreed upon by the parties to the Treaty? Is it reasonable to assume that the American negotiators intended that the Canadian Provinces, or even the British Government, should have the exclusive power to prescribe "restrictions" which might entirely destroy the value of any unrenounced right and liberty theretofore claimed and enjoyed, or of any conceded "privileges" thereby reserved to American fishermen in portion B?

These preliminary explanations will assist to measure the force and bearing upon American deep-sea fishermen of the interpretation put upon the Treaty by the Canadian Dominion during the last summer.

The following extracts are taken from the message of the President to Congress of the 8th ultimo.

WHAT CANADA HAS SAID.

On 5th June, 1886, the Canadian Minister of Marine and Fisheries declared:

"It appears the 'Jennie and Julia' is a vessel of about 14 tons register, that she was to all intents and purposes a fishing vessel, and, at the time of her entry into the Port of Digby had fishing gear and apparatus on board, and that the collector fully satisfied himself of these facts According to the master's declaration, she was there to purchase fresh herring only, and to get them direct from the weir fishermen. 'The collector, upon his conviction that this vessel, and, as such, debarked by the Treaty of 1818 from entering Canadian waters for the purposes of trade, therefore, in the exercise of his plain duty, warned the master of the 1818 is explicit in its terms, and by it United States' fishing vessels are allowed to enter Canadian ports for shelter, repairs, wood and water, and 'for no other purpose whatever.'

On
On 7th June, 1886, the Canadian Governor General advised the Minister of Foreign Affairs at London:

"No attempt has been made either by the authorities intrusted with the enforcement of the existing law or by the Parliament of the Dominion to interfere with vessels engaged in bona fide commercial transactions upon the coasts of the Dominion. The two vessels which have been seized are both of them beyond all question fishing vessels, and not traders, and therefore liable to the finding of the courts, to any penalties imposed by law for the enforcement of the Convention of 1818 on parties violating the terms of that Convention." On 14th June, 1886, a Committee of the Privy Council for Canada put forth the following opinions and conclusions, which were approved by the Governor General:

"It is not, however, the case that the Convention of 1818 affected only the inshore fisheries of the British Provinces; it was framed with the object of affording a complete and exclusive definition of the rights and liberties which the fishermen of the United States were thenceforward to enjoy in following their vocation, so far as those rights could be affected by facilities for access to the shores of waters or the British Provinces. It is, therefore, no undue expansion of the scope of that Convention to interpret analytically those of its provisions by which such access is denied, except to vessels requiring it for the purposes specifically described.

"Such an undue expansion would, upon the other hand, certainly take place, if, under cover of its provisions or of any agreement relating to general commercial intercourse which may have since been made, permission were accorded to United States' fishermen to resort to or even the harbours of the Dominion, not for the sake of seeking safety for their vessels, or avoiding risk to human life, but in order to use these harbours as a general base of operations from which to prosecute and organize with greater advantage to themselves the industry in which they are engaged.

"It was in order to guard against such an abuse of the provisions of the Treaty that amongst them was included the stipulation that not only should the inshore fisheries be reserved to British fishermen, but that the United States, should renounce the right of their fishermen to enter the bays or harbours, except for the four specified purposes, which do not include the purchase of bait or other supplies, whether intended for the deep-sea fisheries or not.

"The undersigned, therefore, cannot concur in Mr. Bayard's contention that 'to prevent the purchase of bait, or any other supply needed for deep-sea fishing, would be to expand the convention to objects wholly beyond the purview, scope, and intent of the Treaty, and to give to it an effect never contemplated.'

"Mr. Bayard suggests that the possession by a fishing vessel of a permit to 'touch and trade' should give to her a right to enter Canadian ports for other purposes than the named in the Treaty, in other words, should give her perfect immunity from its provisions. This would amount to a practical repeal of the Treaty, because it would enable a United States' Collector of Customs, by issuing a license originally only intended for purposes of domestic customs regulation, to give exemption from the Treaty to every United States' fishing vessel. The observation that similar vessels under the British flag have the right to enter the ports of the United States for the purchase of supplies loses its force when it is remembered that the Convention of 1818 contained no restriction on British vessels and no renunciation of any privileges in regard to them."

On August 14, 1886, the Minister of Marine and Fisheries said:
There seems no doubt, therefore, that the "Novelty" was in character and in purpose a fishing vessel, and as such comes under the provisions of the Treaty of 1818, which allows United States' fishing vessels to enter Canadian ports for the purpose of shelter and repairing damages therein, and of purchasing wool and of obtaining water, and for no other purpose whatever.

The object of the captain was to obtain supplies for the prosecution of his fishing, and to tranship his cargoes of fish at a Canadian port, both of which are contrary to the letter and spirit of the Convention of 1818.

On October 30, 1886, a Committee of the Canadian Privy Council contended, and the Administrator of the Government in Council upheld the contention:

"That the Convention of 1818, while it grants to United States' fishermen the right of fishing in common with British subjects on the shores of the Magdalen Islands, does not confer upon them privileges of trading or of shipping men, and it was against possible acts of the latter kind, and not against fishing inshore, or seeking the rights of hospitality guaranteed under the Treaty, that Captain Vachem (McEachern) was warned by the Collector."

On November 24, 1886, a Committee of the Canadian Privy Council declared, and the Governor General approved the declaration:

"The Minister of Marine and Fisheries, to whom said despatch was referred for early report, states that any foreign vessel, 'not manned nor equipped, nor in any way prepared for taking fish, has full liberty of commercial intercourse in Canadian ports upon the same conditions as are applicable to regularly registered foreign merchant vessels; nor is any restrictions imposed upon any foreign vessels dealing in fish of any kind different from those imposed upon foreign merchant vessels dealing in other commercial commodities.

"That the regulations under which foreign vessels may trade at Canadian ports are contained in the Customs Laws of Canada (a copy of which is herewith), and which render it necessary, among other things, that upon arrival at any Canadian port a vessel must at once enter toward the Custom House, and upon the completion of her lading, clear outwards for her port of destination.'"

American fishermen are not outcasts.

The foregoing contention, set up not merely by the Canadian Privy Council, but by the Governor General of the Dominion of Canada, sweeps into the meshes of Canadian legislation to enforce the first Article of the Treaty of 1818, by every deep-sea fisherman, in his relation to Canadian ports, no matter on what sea or ocean, Atlantic or Pacific, he may have intended to pursue, or may intend to pursue, his industry. That contention places all American deep-sea fishermen entitled to wear the flag of the Union at the mast-head of their boats or vessels, be they small or big, under much the same ban in respect to the hospitality of Canadian ports as they would be if pirates, or slave-traders, or filibusters, or other enemies of the human race. She was a fishing vessel," says, on June 5, 1886, the Canadian Minister of Marine and Fisheries, "and therefore debarred by the Treaty of 1818 from entering Canada for the purposes of trade."

"The two vessels which have been seized are, both of them, beyond all question fishing vessels and not traders," says the Governor General of the Dominion of Canada to Lord Granville on June 7, 1886. "And therefore liable, subject to the finding of the courts, to any penalties imposed by law for the enforcement of the Convention of 1818."

"We cannot concur in Mr. Bayard's contention," said the Canadian Privy Council on June 14, 1886, that "to prevent the purchasing of bait or any other supply needed for deep sea fishing, would be to expand the Convention to objects wholly beyond the purview, scope, and intent of the Treaty, and give to it an effect never contemplated."

"American deep-sea fishermen cannot," said the Canadian Minister of Marine and Fisheries, on October 14, 1886, "obtain supplies for the prosecution of fishing, or the transhipping amounts of fish at a Canadian port," because both "are contrary to the letter and spirit of the Convention of 1818."

"The Convention of 1818," said a Committee of the Canadian Privy Council, on October 30, 1886, "does not confer upon United States fishermen 'privileges of trading or of shipping men' in Canadian ports."

And, finally, a Committee of the Canadian Privy Council declared, in effect, on November 24, 1886, that an American vessel, manned, equipped and prepared for taking fish, has not the liberty of commercial intercourse in Canadian ports, such as are applicable to other regularly registered foreign merchant vessels.

Such an interpretation of the present legal effect of the first article of the Treaty of 1818, is, in the opinion of your Committee, so preposterous, in view of concerted laws of comity and good neighbourhood enacted by the two countries, that, had it not been formally put forth by the Dominion of Canada, would not deserve serious consideration by intelligent persons. If all the stipulations of 1818 restraining American fishermen are now in full force (which may well be doubted), your Committee concedes that American fishermen have no more liberty to take fish or to dry or to cure fish in what has been described as portion B, than a British fisherman has to take fish in the inner harbour of New York, and to dry or cure fish in the City Hall Park of that city. But the liberty of an American fisherman to take, dry, and cure fish in portions A, in common with British subjects, is as complete and absolute as is the right of citizens of New York to fish in the waters of the Hudson River. The Treaty of 1818 furnishes no more excuse for the exclusion of a deep-sea fisherman from the port of Halifax, or any other open port of the Dominion of Canada, than for the exclusion by the Secretary of the Treasury of a deep-sea fisherman from entering the port of New York according to the forms of law, and for the ordinary purposes of trade and commerce. The exclusion, if made, must be justified, if at all, for other reasons than any yet given by Canada.

Keeping in mind the words of the third article of the Treaty of Peace in 1818, which not only acknowledged the right of the united American Colonies to fish in the open sea as freely as fish of every kind on coasts, bays, and creeks of all of His Britannic Majesty's dominions in America, it will be discerned that the Treaty of 1818 makes it clear that the right of fishing for a limited period on the shores and coasts of the thirteen recognized States. British fishermen cannot fish on the coasts of Massachusetts, but American fishermen can fish on certain shores and coasts of the Dominion of Canada and of Newfoundland. Apart from fishing and the incidents of fishing, it is conceded that the British Government has exclusive control, as against the United States, of the customary and usual rights of navigation in the jurisdictional waters of the United States. The use of waters in respect of navigation is easily distinguishable from the fruit of waters in respect of fishing. The United States have, so far as the British North American Colonies, and all the world, are concerned, the right of navigating and fishing on the high seas, and in addition the right of fishing in certain British territorial and jurisdictional waters. That right of fishing, either inshore or offshore, should carry with it the natural and necessary navigation of persons and vessels incident to the right.

It may be observed that, apart from the right of American fisherman to take fish of all kinds within certain clearly defined British waters, American deep-sea fisherman have no greater rights, by treaty or public law, in British ports, than British fishermen have in American ports, for it is conceded in the treaty of 1818 that the right of fishing in the territorial waters of the United States is as absolute as in the territorial waters of Canada. But the contention of the Privy Council of Canada is that if a vessel bearing the registry, or a vessel, or vessel under the control of the Treasury Department (which alone makes her an American vessel) be licensed, equipped and under contract to many other vessels, the same as an American vessel on the open sea, she may come under the ban of the Treaty of 1818, and is thereby be the Canadian ports closed to her as to an open sea. An American or a Canadian fishing vessel on the high seas, and lawfully wearing the flag of its country, should be permitted by its own Government to touch and trade, entitled to the same rights of navigation and the same treatment in a foreign port as any trading vessel.

Canadian Immunity.

If the Privy Council and the Governor General of the Canadian Dominion excluded all American vessels from all rights of touching or trading in Canadian ports, excepting to obtain shelter, repairs, wood or water, the contention would be logical and more tolerable, but to every American vessel other than a fishing vessel, be the fisherman big or little—a schooner, a sloop, a ship, or a steamer of large tonnage—Canadian ports seem to be wide open.

---

Footnote:

The Treaty of 1818 creates the most perfect tie of comity and friendship, as would put forth by the act of any other persons. If the treaty of 1818 (which may be considered as more liberty than a British however, she be an American fishing vessel on the high seas, she cannot go into a Canadian bay even to bury those of her dead who, in life, may have been British subjects with a domicile in Canada and a residence on the land near the bay, and may have expressed a wish not to be committed to the sea, but to be lain at rest by their kindred on the spot which gave them birth.

The Treaty of 1818 gave rights of fishing independent of general commercial rights, although it may be said that, so to shelter, repair, wood and water, the Treaty did give to fishermen certain commercial rights, or rather a few rights of humanity. The Treaty did not restrain the granting or the exercising of commercial rights. The right, if it be a right, of an American to lay anything in Canada has not and of fish in England, and America of limits. Your Committee are not aware of any Canadian or Newfoundland law which, having been approved by the British Crown, forbids a British subject to there sell ice, or bat, or anything else, to an American, or to trade with him. If there be such a law, then non-intercourse has to that extent been proclaimed against our countrymen.

CANADIAN VIOLATIONS OF TREATIES.

The contention of your Committee is that the Treaty of 1818 covers differences and disputes about the liberty of American fishermen to take, dry and cure fish on certain British North American coasts, bays, harbours and creeks. The Privy Council of Canada, at the sitting of page 39 (Ex. Doc. No. 19, Forty-ninth Congress, second session), concudes the correctness of this contention. They say:

"The sole purpose of the convention of 1818 was to establish and define the rights of citizens of the two countries in relation to the fisheries on the British North American coast."

The Treaty is limited to coast fishing, drying or curing. On certain defined portions of the coast "American fishermen" may fish, but elsewhere on the coast they may not fish, and yet those coast "American fishermen" may, nevertheless, and for certain purposes, enter the bays and harbours in which they cannot fish, under restrictions—to prevent them from doing what? "Taking, drying or curing fish therein?"

Your Committee contend that the term "American fishermen" as used in the Treaty of 1818, means the "American fishermen" of and under that Treaty. The rule ascribed to lay anything in Canada has not and of fish in England, and America of limits and defines the term. They have a Treaty right to enter "such bays and harbours" and to remain there, subject, and subject only, to such restrictions "as may be necessary to prevent their taking, drying or curing fish therein. The restrictions can only apply to the prevention of such fishing in those bays or harbours. Whatever concerns or is preparation for fishing elsewhere is not thereby to be prevented. It is true that, by the Treaty of 1818, we have stipulated that our fishermen "shall be under such restrictions as may be necessary to prevent their taking, drying or curing fish therein," but the Treaty says nothing of "preparing to fish" somewhere else. A fair presentation of the opinions of the Vice-Admiralty Court of Canada, in regard to the meaning of the Canadian phrase "preparing to fish"—which is a stranger to the Treaty of 1818—can be seen in Dr. Wharton's "International Law Digest," Vol. III, § 304.

If it be said that our view of the treaty is strict, severe, and rigid as against Canadian statutes and officials, your Committee answer that when Canada proposes and endeavours to use a treaty to arrest and bind American fishermen, seize and confiscate American vessels for the benefit of Canadian seizers, the Government of the United States is entitled to stand on such an interpretation. But even if the Treaty of 1818 covers (which it does not) every American fisherman entering a Canadian harbour, on whatever sea or ocean he may cast a line or draw a seine, the Canadian statutes do not preserve and enforce the treaty. They destroy it, so far as the privileges are concerned that are given to American fishermen by the treaty.

First of all in order of time and authority is the imperial legislation at London in 1819 to enforce the treaty of the previous year. After forbidding every one, excepting British subjects and American citizens (who could do so within defined limits), to fish, dry, or cure fish anywhere within three miles of British coasts in America, that law of 1819 punishes by forfeiture any offending vessel, and all the articles on board. Then comes this:

"That if any person or persons, upon requisition made by the Governor of Newfoundland, or the person exercising the office of governor, or by any governor or person exercising the office of governor, in any other parts of His Majesty's dominions in America, aforesaid, or by any officer or officers acting under such governor or person exercising the office of governor, in the execution of any orders or instructions from His Majesty in Council, shall refuse to depart from such bays or harbours; or if any person or persons shall refuse or neglect to conform to any regulations or directions which shall be made or given for the execution of any of the purposes of this Act, every such person so refusing or otherwise opposing against this Act shall forfeit the sum of £200, to be recovered, &c."

It will be seen that not forfeiture, but a fine to be recovered by a suit, is inflicted for refusing or neglecting to depart on notice. The statutes of Canada are not, as the Canadian Imperial statute.

The Prince Edward Island's enactment of 1844 gives the key-note of Canadian enactments. It declares:

"Whereas by the convention (made between his late Majesty King George the Third and the United States of America, signed at London, on the twentieth day of October, in the year of our Lord one thousand eight hundred and eighty-one and eighteen) and the statute (made and passed in the Parliament of Great Britain in the fifty-ninth year of the reign of his late Majesty George the Third,) all foreign ships, vessels or boats, or any ship, vessel or boat, other than such as shall be navigated according to the laws of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland, found fishing, or to have been fishing, or preparing to fish, within certain distances of any coast, bays, creeks or harbours in any of the United States, not included within the limits specified in the first article of the said convention, are liable to seizure, whereas the United States did, by the said convention, renounce for ever any liberty enjoyed by the inhabitants thereof to take, dry or cure fish on or within the above mentioned limit: Provided, however, that the American fishermen be admitted to enter such bays or harbours for the purpose of shelter and of repairing damages therein of purchasing wood, and of obtaining water, and for no other purposes whatever; but under such restrictions as might be necessary to prevent their taking, drying or curing fish therein, or in any other manner whatever injuring the privileges thereby reserved to them; and whereas no rules or regulations have been made for such purposes, and the interests of the inhabitants of this island are materially injured; and whereas the said Act does not designate the persons who are to make such seizure as aforesaid, and it frequently happens that persons found within the limits of the said convention aforesaid, on being taken possession of, profess to have come within said limits for the purpose of shelter and repairing damages therein, or to purchase wood and obtain water, by which the law is evaded, and the vessels and cargoes escape confiscation, although the cargoes on contrary to the said convention and statute."

The Canadian enactment of 1868 came next, the second and third sections of which say:

"2. Any commissioned officer of Her Majesty's navy serving on board any vessel of Her Majesty's navy cruising and being in the waters of Canada or for the purpose of affording protection to Her Majesty's subjects engaged in the fisheries, or any commissioned officer of Her Majesty's navy, fishery officer, or stipendiary magistrate and employed in the service of Her Majesty's navy, or engaged in the fisheries, or any officer of the Customs of the United States of America, or of the customs of the Canadian colonies, or of the customs of any foreign country, may go on board any ship, vessel or boat within any of the coasts, bays, creeks, or harbors in Canada, and stay on board so long as he may remain within such places or distance.

3. If such ship, vessel, or boat be bound elsewhere, and shall continue within such harbours or so hovering for twenty-four hours after the master shall have been required to depart, any such one of such persons as are above mentioned may bring such ship, vessel or boat into port and search her cargo, and may also examine the master upon his touching the cargo and voyage; and if the master or person in command shall not truthfully answer the questions put to him in such examination, he shall forfeit $40, and if such ship or vessel be foreign, or not navigated according to the laws of the United Kingdom or of Canada, and have been found fishing, or preparing for fishing, or to have been fishing (in British waters) within three marine miles of any of the coast, bays, creeks or harbors of Canada, and not included within the above mentioned limits, a license, or after the expiration of the period named in the last license granted to such ship, vessel or boat under the first section of this Act, such ship, vessel or boat, and the tackle, rigging, apparel, furniture, stores, and cargo thereof shall be forfeited."

The treaty stipulates that the fishermen shall be under "necessary restrictions" to prevent the doing of the things forbidden by the treaty, but what may be "necessary to prevent the prohibited fishing is a political and diplomatic question for the two signatory Governments to decide. The treaty permits American fishermen to enter and remain for fishing."

I. "Shelter" which includes a refuge from fogs, winds, storms, and whatever may imperil.
2. "Repairing damages," which includes every damage to fishing boat or fishing gear.
3. "Purchasing wood."
4. "Obtaining water."

Conceding that Canada can place an officer on every arriving fisherman as soon as found, the treaty does not even then authorize a twenty-four hour limit with the result of forfeiture. Nor does the treaty authorize forfeiture for "preparing to fish."

The Customs circular issued at Ottawa on 7th May, 1886, and called "Warning," recited the first article of the Treaty of 1818, together with the two sections of the law of 1868 just quoted, and adds:

"Having reference to the above, you are requested to furnish any foreign vessels, boats, or fishermen found within three marine miles of the shore, within your district, with a printed copy of the warning enclosed herewith.

"If any fishing vessel or boat of the United States is found fishing, or to have been fishing, or preparing to fish, or having within the three-mile limit, does not depart within twenty-four hours after receiving such warning, you will please place an officer on board of such vessel, and at once telegraph the facts to the Fisheries Department at Ottawa, and await instructions.

"J. JOHNSON,
"Commissioner of Customs."

To the COLLECTOR OF CUSTOMS at

Thus, twenty-four hours after finding the American fisherman is made the limit.

Not satisfied with the severity of this legislation of 1866, the Canadian Dominion, in 1870, and while preliminary negotiations for the joint high commission and the Treaty of Washington were in progress, amended it so as to enable seizures of our vessels to be made on sight, and without any warning or any notice to depart. The following is a text of the enactment of 1870:

"(33 Victoria, chap. 15.)

"An Act to amend the Act respecting fishing by foreign vessels. Assented to 12th May, 1870.

"Whereas it is expedient, for the more effectual protection of the inshore fisheries of Canada against intrusion by foreigners, to amend the Act entitled "An Act respecting fishing by foreign vessels," passed in the thirty-first year of Her Majesty's reign: Therefore Her Majesty, by and with the advice and consent of the Senate and House of Commons of Canada, enacts as follows:

"1. The third section of the above-cited Act shall be, and is hereby repealed, and the following section is enacted in its stead:

"3. Any one of such officers or persons as are above-mentioned may bring any ship, vessel, or boat being within any harbour in Canada, or harboring in (British waters) within three marine miles of any of the coasts, bays, creeks, or harbours in Canada, into port and search her cargo, and may also examine the master upon oath touching the cargo and voyage; and if the master or person in command shall not truly answer the questions put to him in such examination shall be forfeit $400; and if such ship, vessel, or boat be foreign or not navigated according to the laws of the United Kingdom or of Canada, and have been found fishing or preparing to fish, or to have been fishing (in British waters) within three marine miles of any of the coasts, bays, creeks, or harbours of Canada, not included within the above-mentioned limits, without a license or after the expiration of the period named in the last license granted to such ship, vessel, or boat, under the first section of this Act, such ship, vessel, or boat, and the tackle, rigging, apparel, furniture, stores and cargo thereof shall be forfeited.

"2. This Act shall not be construed as one with the said Act 'respecting fishing by foreign vessels.'"

But this is not all. Canadian officials endeavoured, during the last summer, in the fury of their malevolence, to forfeit American vessels for acts which, if committed, their own laws had not inflicted punishment. In the libel of information against the "Ella M. Doughty" is this article, among other allegations of fishing, preparing to fish, being found having fished, and fishing, drying, and curing in the bay and harbour of St. Anne's:

"Between the 10th and 17th days of May, 1886, the said Warren A. Doughty, the master of the vessel "Ella M. Doughty," and the officers and crew of the said ship, vessel "Ella M. Doughty," did, in and with the said ship or vessel "Ella M. Doughty," enter into the bay and harbour of St. Anne's, aforesaid, within three marine miles of the shore of said bay and harbour of St. Anne's, and within three miles of the coasts, bays, creeks, and harbours of those portions of the dominions in America of his said late Majesty King George the Third, being now the dominions in America of Her Majesty Queen Victoria, not included in the limits specified and defined in the said first article of the said convention and set out and recited in the first paragraph hereof, for the purpose of procuring, that is to say, herring, wherewith to fish, and for the preservation on board said vessel of herring to be used, and such, of fresh fish to be fished for, taken, and caught by and upon the said vessel and by the master, officers, and crew thereof, and did procure such herring wherewith to fish, and such ice for the purposes aforesaid, and did so enter for other purposes than for the purposes of shelter or repairing damages, or of purchasing wood, or of obtaining water, contrary to the provisions of the said convention and of the said several Acts, and the said vessel "Ella M. Doughty" and her cargo were therefore seized within three marine miles of the coast or shore of the said bay and harbor of St. Anne's by Donald McAnley and Tauchin G. Campbell, officers of the Customs of Canada, as being liable to forfeiture for the breach or violation of the said convention and of the said several Acts.

Your Committee has been unable to find a Canadian statute which, at the date of the alleged offence, punished those acts, by forfeiture of the offending vessel. None is averred. The article quoted from the "Ella M. Doughty" libel does not set forth where the fishing was to be done, for which herring and ice were bought, whether on the ocean, or elsewhere, preparing to fish in British waters," which must be, of course, under the treaty, the prohibited and not permitted British waters.

The court stood Canadian legislation at the beginning of the summer fishing season which has recently expired to an end. There was no Canadian or other law, at the end of four years, from the date of the treaty, defining or putting the vessel and the cargo on board of her, on the prohibited coast, in British waters; and the Canadian officials wished to forfeit the vessel and cargoes of American deep-sea fishermen exercising the liberty "to touch and trade," and send fish by railway, or vessel, to our own markets. What could be done? Nothing less than a new law could avail them, and it was enacted in these words:

"(40 Victoria, chap. 114.)

"An Act further to amend the Act respecting fishing by foreign vessels."

"(Reserved by the Governor General on Wednesday, 2nd June, 1886, for the signification of the Queen's pleasure thereon. Royal assent given by Her Majesty in Council, on the 26th day of November, 1886. Proclamation thereof made on the 24th day of December, 1886.)

"Whereas it is expedient for the more effectual protection of the inshore fisheries of Canada against intrusion by foreigners, to further amend the Act intituled 'An Act respecting fishing by foreign vessels,' passed in the thirty-first year of Her Majesty's reign, and chaptered 61,

"Therefore Her Majesty, by and with the advice and consent of the Senate and House of Commons of Canada, enacts as follows:

"The section substituted by the first section of the Act thirty-third Victoria, chapter 151, intituled 'An Act to amend the Act respecting fishing by foreign vessels,' for the third section of the enactment before recited Act, is hereby repealed, and the following section substituted in lieu thereof:

"3. Any one of the officers or persons hereinbefore mentioned may bring any ship, vessel, or boat, being within any harbour of Canada, or having been fishing in the British waters within three marine miles of any of the coast, bays, creeks, or harbours of Canada, into port and search her cargo, and may also examine the master upon oath touching the cargo and voyage; and if the master or person in command does not truly answer the questions put to him in such examination, he shall incur a penalty of $400.00; and if such ship, vessel, or boat is foreign, or not navigated according to the laws of the United Kingdom or of Canada, and (a) has been found fishing, or preparing to fish, or to have been fishing in the British waters within three marine miles of any of the coast, bays, creeks, or harbours of Canada, not included within the above mentioned limits, without a license, or after the expiration of the term named in the last license granted to such ship, vessel, or boat under the first section of this Act, or (b) has entered such waters for any purpose not permitted by treaty or convention, or by any law of the United Kingdom or of Canada for the time being in force, such ship, vessel, or boat, and the tackle, rigging, apparel, furniture, stores, and cargo thereof shall be forfeited.

"(2) The Acts mentioned in the schedule hereto are hereby repealed.

"2. This Act shall be construed as one with the said "Act respecting fishing by foreign vessels," and the amendments thereto.

Act of the Legislature of the Province of New Brunswick.

16 Vic. (1851), c. 69. | An Act relating to the coast fisheries and for the prevention of illicit trade. | The whole. |

By comparing the foregoing with the law of 1870 the object will, in the italicized portion of the former, be clearly discovered, which is to deter deep-sea American fishermen from entering Canadian ports which are as open to all trading vessels as American ports are to Canadian vessels of every sort.

Forfeiture is to be inflicted for an entry for any purpose, excepting shelter, repairs, wood, or water. Even to get coal for a fishing vessel propelled by steam is condemned. What the purpose may be for which seizure is to be made may or may not be disclosed by the seizor. The statute does not require it. The libel, or complaint, filed in court may not disclose it. The averment may be merely a general one that the vessel entered for a purpose forbidden by treaty or statute. The owner must file a claim and answer, or his property will be condemned by default. He must, among strangers, give security for costs, or his claim will be dismissed. Worse than that, the statute of 1865 declares that, if the owner questions the legality of the seizure, the burden of proof shall be on him. How can he meet a general averment and prove a negative of what is not definitely averred, and of every conceivable purpose of entry? None but the captain may be able to testify to the motive, and what will happen if he, after the seizure, shall die or be absent? The owner will be helpless to contend with the greed of informers or seizers, for the law of 1871 distributes the possible plunder thus:

"6. All goods, vessels, and boats, and the tackle, rigging, apparel, furniture, stores, and cargo condemned as forfeited under this Act, shall be sold by public auction, by direction of the officer having the custody thereof, under the provisions of the next preceding section of this Act, and under regulations to be from time to time made by the Governor in Council; and the proceeds of every sale shall be subject to the control of the Minister of Marine and Fisheries, who shall first pay therefrom all necessary costs and expenses of custody and sale, and the Governor in Council may from time to time apportion three-fourths or less of the net remainder among the officers and crew of Queen's ship or Canadian Government vessel, from on board of which the seizure was made, as he may think right, reserving for the Government and paying over to the Receiver-General at least one-fourth of such net remainder to form part of the Consolidated Revenue of Canada."

CONCLUSIONS.

The Treaties of 1783 and 1818 were made with the British Crown. With that Crown alone can restrictions, regulations, penalties, and measures be concerted by the United States to enforce and guard their stipulations. With the Dominion of Canada the Government at Washington is not called, or required, or to be expected, either to deliberate or debate, any more than is the British Crown, with a separate member of our Union. It is not to be supposed that a local colonial court will, on the trial of a suit for forfeiture begun under an Imperial or a Colonial Statute, hear or decide an issue with the Treaty of 1818, or rules of international law, or those statutes. Nor will those courts award damages for seizures in violation of the treaty, if made on "probable cause" by the seizors to believe that the statutes had been violated. Nor can the United States appeal to colonial courts for redress against the possible conduct of those courts under influences of local passion or prejudice.
It plainly appears to your committee from the foregoing considerations that, by the treaty of peace in 1783, American citizens became partners with British subjects in all the coast fisheries in North America remaining to Great Britain; that the Treaty of Ghent, which closed the war of 1812, not having referred to the stipulations of the treaty of peace in any way affecting the fisheries of Great Britain thereafter urged and obtained in 1818 a dismantling of American liberty to take fish on certain well-defined portions of the British coast in North America; that in 1819 there was enacted by Parliament, sitting in London, a law in execution of that treaty which punished by forfeiture of vessel and cargo a preparation to fish, and only by a fine a refusal or neglect to depart on a warning or notice so to do; that in 1844 the Island of Prince Edward enacted a law in punishment of what it assumed to be a violation of the treaty of 1818, which went far beyond the imperial statute of 1819; that in 1868 the Canadian Senate and House of Commons prescribed additional proceedings and penalties not warranted by the treaty, which were in 1870 made more severe and unwarranted and that in 1886, nearly half a century after signing the treaty, an offence, entirely new in legislation, was denounced in most general terms and punished by confiscation of everything seized.

THE BRITISH CROWN PROCLAIMS NON-INTERCOURSE.

A very serious feature of this last-named legislation is that it has been approved by the British Crown, and it proclaims non-intercourse in Canada with American fishing vessels for general purposes of trade. So that alarming feature your committee has given careful consideration, and is unanimously of opinion that if, and so long as, non-intercourse with American fishing vessels shall be thus maintained in the ports or bays of the Dominion of Canada or Newfoundland, a non-intercourse should be immediately begun and maintained in our own ports against Canadian vessels. Those vessels, whether trading or fishing, have, within the meaning of the seventeenth section of the law of Congress of 19th June, 1886, "been placed on the same footing" in our ports as our own vessels clearing or entering "foreign." Canadian vessels are British vessels. The British Crown has denied to American fishing vessels commercial privileges accorded to other national vessels in Canadian ports. The motive and purpose of such denial have been openly and plainly avowed by Canada to be, first, the punishment of such vessels because the United States levies a duty on Canadian fish not "fresh for immediate consumption," such as the Government levies on all such fish not the product of American fisheries and imported from any foreign place whatever; and, secondly, to coerce the United States to exempt such Canadian fish from all Customs duties, and to enter into other new reciprocal Customs relations with the Canadian Dominion and Newfoundland. It is a policy of threat and coercion, which, in the opinion of your committee, should be instantly and summarily dealt with. The circumstances will warrant and require, in the opinion of your committee, not only non-intercourse with Canadian vessels bringing Canadian or Newfoundland fish to our ports, but an exclusion of such fish from entry at our ports, whether brought by railway cars or by any other vehicle or means. It is difficult to believe that Canada having within the last twenty years so severely burdened herself with taxation by the construction of railways and bridges to bring about easy communication with Detroit, Chicago, Saint Paul, and the whole West of our country, as well as with New York and Boston, will now deliberately and offensively enter upon and pursue a policy toward our fishermen which, if persisted in, can but lead either in a suspension of commercial intercourse, by land and sea, between her and ourselves, or in consequences even more grave.

A LAW TO MAKE A PERPETUAL RECORD OF THE FACTS.

And, furthermore, in regard to seizures of American vessels made in the summer which has just passed, inasmuch as a true record of the facts under which the seizures were made may be lost, by death of the victims, or by wanderings of a class so migratory as seamen, or by other casualties, and insomuch as Congress may see fit to compensate American fishermen for the injuries wantonly inflicted on them by the rude hand of tyrannical Canadian officials, there having been no adequate American force at hand for their protection, your committee advise the enactment of the following:

"Bill for the appointment of a commission to investigate concerning losses and injuries, inflicted since December thirty-first, eighteen hundred and eighty-five, on United States citizens engaged in the North American fisheries."

"Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled, That the President be, and is hereby authorized to appoint a commissioner to proceed to such places in the United States or elsewhere as many be designated by the Secretary of State, to take testimony, under oath or affirmation, in relation to..."
to the losses and injuries inflicted since the thirty-first of December, eighteen hundred and eighty-five, by British authorities, imperial or colonial, upon citizens of the United States engaged in the fisheries on the north-east coast of British North America. Said commissioner shall everywhere have, in respect to the administration of oaths or affirmations and the taking of testimony, the same powers as a commissioner of a circuit court, and shall be paid the same fees as are prescribed for similar services of a commissioner of a circuit court, together with travelling expenses."

FOREIGN OFFICE, 11th January, 1887.

Sir,—With reference to your letter of the 29th ultimo, I am directed by the Secretary of State for Foreign Affairs to transmit to you, to be laid before Mr. Secretary Stanhope, a copy of a note which has been addressed to the United States' Minister at this Court, in reply to his note of the 2nd ultimo, requesting that the owners of the "David J. Adams" be furnished with copies of the original reports stating the charges on which that vessel was seized by the Canadian authorities.

I am, &c.,

The UNDER SECRETARY OF STATE

Colonial Office.

[Enclosure No. 2]

The Earl of Iddesleigh to Mr Phelps.

FOREIGN OFFICE, 11th January, 1887.

Sir,—Her Majesty Government have had under their consideration the request contained in your note of the 2nd ultimo, to the effect that the owners of the "David J. Adams" may be furnished with copies of the original reports stating the charges on which that vessel was seized by the Canadian authorities; and I have now the honour to state to you that if the owners of this vessel are legally entitled to be furnished with those reports they can obtain them by the process of the courts; and there seems no ground for the interference of Her Majesty Government with the ordinary course of justice.

As regards the means of obtaining information for the purposes of the defence, I would point out that in the report of the Canadian Minister of Marine and Fisheries, of which a copy was communicated to you on the 23rd July last, it is stated that from a date immediately after the seizure "there was not the slightest difficulty in the United States' Consul General and those interested in the vessel obtaining the fullest information," and that apart from the general knowledge of the offences which it was claimed the master had committed, and which was furnished at the time of the seizure, the most technical and precise details were readily obtainable at the registry of the court, and from the solicitors for the Crown.

With respect to the statement in your note that a clause in the Canadian Act of 22nd May, 1888, to the effect that "in case a dispute arises as to whether any seizure has or has not been legally made, or as to whether the person seizing was, or was not authorized to seize under this Act, the burden of proving the illegality of seizure shall be on the owner or claimant" is in violation of the principles of natural justice, as well as of those of common law. I have to observe that the statute referred to is Cap. 61 of 1888 which provides for the issue of licenses to foreign fishing vessels, and for the forfeiture of such vessels fishing without a license, and that the provisions of article 10, to which you take exception are commonly found in laws against smuggling, and are based on the rule of law that a man who pleads that he holds a license or other similar document shall be put to the proof of his plea, and required to produce the document.

I beg leave to add that the provisions of that statute, so far as they relate to the issue of licenses, have been inoperative since the year 1870.

Lord Lansdowne to Colonial Office.

OTTAWA, 21st January, 1887.

Sir,—With reference to Mr. Stanhope's despatch No. 244, of the 22nd November last, transmitting copies of two letters from the Foreign Office enclosing notes from the Secretary of State of the United States, respecting the alleged proceedings of the Canadian authorities in the cases of the United States' fishing vessels "Pearl Nelson" and "Everett Steele," I have the honour to forward herewith a copy of an approved Report of a Committee of the Privy Council embodying a report of my Minister of Marine and Fisheries on the subject.

16b—144
You will observe, from the accompanying Minute of Council, that in reply to a telegram from the Secretary of State for the Colonies, dated the 6th November last, copies of Orders in Council, approved on the 18th of the same month, containing full statements of facts regarding the detention of the above-named vessels, were enclosed in my despatches Nos. 232 and 283 of the 29th November last.

[Enclosure No. 1.]

Certified Copy of a Report of a Committee of the Honorable the Privy Council, approved by His Excellency the Governor General in Council, on the 15th January, 1857.

The Committee of the Privy Council have had under consideration a dispatch dated 22nd November, 1886, from the Right Honourable the Secretary of State for the Colonies, enclosing letters from Mr. Secretary Bayard, bearing date 19th October, and referring to the cases of the schooners "Everitt Steele" and "Pearl Nelson."

The Minister of Marine and Fisheries, to whom the dispatch and enclosures were referred, reports that in reply to a telegram from the Secretary of State for the Colonies, an Order in Council, passed on the 18th November last, containing a full statement of facts regarding the detention of the above-named vessels, was transmitted to Mr. Stanhope. It will not, therefore, be necessary to repeat this statement in the present report.

The Minister observes, in the first place, that the two fishing schooners, the "Everitt Steele" and "Pearl Nelson" were not detained for any alleged contravention of the Treaty of 1818, or the Fishery Laws of Canada, but solely for the violation of the Custom's Law. By this law all vessels of whatever character are required to report to the Collector of Customs immediately upon entering port, and are not to break bulk or land crew or cargo before this is done.

The Minister states that the Captain of the "Everitt Steele" had, on a previous voyage, entered the Port of Shelburne on the 25th March, 1886, and after remaining for eight hours had put to sea again without reporting to the Customs. For this previous offence, he was, upon entering Shelburne Harbour on the 10th September last, detained, and the facts were reported to the Minister of Customs at Ottawa. With these facts was coupled the Captain's statement that on the occasion of the previous offence he had been misled by the Deputy Harbour Master, from whom he understood that he would not be obliged to report unless he remained in harbour for 24 hours.

The Minister accepted the statement in excuse as satisfactory, and the "Everitt Steele" was allowed to proceed on her voyage.

The Customs Law had been violated. The Captain of the "Everitt Steele" had admitted the violation, and for this the usual penalty could have been legally enforced. It was, however, not enforced, and no detention of the vessel occurred beyond the time necessary to report the facts to headquarters and obtain the decision of the Minister.

The Minister submits that he cannot discern in this transaction any attempt to interfere with the privileges of United States' fishing vessels in Canadian waters or any sufficient cause for the protest of Mr. Bayard.

The Minister states that, in the case of the "Pearl Nelson," no question was raised as to her being a fishing vessel, or her enjoyment of any privileges guaranteed by the Treaty of 1818. Her Captain was charged with a violation of the Custom's Law and of that alone, by having, on the day before reporting to the Collector of Customs at Arichat, landed ten of his crew.

This he admitted upon oath. When the facts were reported to the Minister of Customs he ordered that the vessel might proceed upon depositing $500.00 pending a fuller examination. This was done, and the fuller examination resulted in establishing the violation of the law and in finding that the penalty was legally enforceable. The Minister, however, in consideration of the alleged ignorance of the captain as to what constituted an infraction of the law, ordered the deposit to be returned.

In this case there was a clear violation of Canadian law, there was no lengthened detention of the vessel, the deposit was ultimately remitted and the United States' Consul General at Halifax, expressed himself by letter to the Minister as highly pleased at the result.
The Minister observes that in this case he is at a loss to discover any well-founded grievance or any attempted denial of or interference with any privileges guaranteed to United States' fishermen by the Treaty of 1818.

The Minister further observes that the whole argument and protest of Mr. Bayard appears to proceed upon the assumption that these two vessels were subjected to unwarrantable interference, in that they were called upon to submit to the requirements of Canadian Customs law, and that this interference was prompted by a desire to curtail or deny the privileges of resort to Canadian harbours for the purposes allowed by the Treaty of 1818. It is needless to say that this assumption is entirely incorrect.

Canada has a very large extent of sea coast with numerous ports into which foreign vessels are constantly entering for purposes of trade. It becomes necessary in the interests of legitimate commerce that stringent regulations should be made by compulsory conformity to which, illicit traffic should be prevented.

These Customs' regulations all vessels of all countries are obliged to obey, and these do obey without in any way considering it a hardship. United States fishing vessels come directly from a foreign and not distant country, and it is not in the interests of legitimate commerce that they should be allowed access to our ports without the same strict supervision as is exercised over all other foreign vessels. Otherwise there would be no guarantee against illicit traffic of large dimensions to the injury of honest trade and the serious diminution of the Canadian revenue. United States' fishing vessels are cheerfully accorded the right to enter Canadian Ports for the purposes of obtaining shelter, repairs, and procuring wood and water, but in exercising this right, they are not and cannot be independent of the Customs' laws.

They have the right to enter for the purposes set forth, but there is only one legal way in which to enter and that is by conformity to the Customs' regulations.

When Mr. Bayard asserts that Captain Forbes had as much right to be in Shelburne Harbour seeking shelter and water "as he would have had on the high seas carrying on under the shelter of the flag of the United States legitimate commerce," he is undoubtedly right, but when he declares as he in reality does, that to compel Captain Forbes in Shelburne Harbour to conform to Canadian Customs' regulations, or to punish him for their violation, is a more unwarrantable stretch of power than "that of a seizure on the high seas of a ship unjustly suspected of being a slaver," he makes a statement which carries with it its own refutation. Customs' regulations are made by each country for the protection of its own trade and commerce, and are enforced entirely within its own territorial jurisdiction; while the seizure of a vessel upon the high seas, except under extraordinary and abnormal circumstances, is an unjustifiable interference with the free right of navigation common to all nations.

As to Mr. Bayard's observation that by treatment such as that experienced by the "Everitt Steele" the door of shelter is shut to American fishermen as a class, the Minister expresses his belief that Mr. Bayard cannot have considered the scope of such an assertion or the inferences which might reasonably be drawn from it. If a United States' fishing vessel enters a Canadian port for shelter, repairs or for wood and water her Captain need have no difficulty in reporting her as having entered for one of these purposes and the "Everitt Steele" would have suffered no detention had her Captain on the 25th March simply reported her vessel to the collector. As it was, the vessel was detained for no longer time than was necessary to obtain the decision of the Minister of Customs, and the penalty for which it was liable was not enforced. Surely Mr. Bayard does not wish to be understood as claiming for United States' fishing vessels total immunity from all Customs regulations or as intimating that if they cannot exercise their privileges unlawfully they will not exercise them at all.

Mr. Bayard complains that the "Pearl Nelson," although seeking to exercise no commercial privileges, was compelled to pay commercial fees such as are applicable to trading vessels. In reply the Minister observes that the fees spoken of are not "Commercial fees;" they are harbour masters' dues which all vessels making use of legally constituted harbours are by law compelled to pay, and entirely irrespective of any trading that may be done by the vessel.

The Minister observes that no single case has yet been brought to his notice in which any United States' fishing vessel has in any way been interfered with for exercising any rights guaranteed under the Treaty of 1818, to enter Canadian ports for shelter, repairs, wood or water; that the Canadian Government would not countenance or permit any such interference, and that in all cases of this class when trouble has arisen, it has been due to the violation of Canadian Customs law, which demands the simple legal entry of the vessel as soon as it comes into port.
The Committee, concurring in the above Report, recommend that Your Excellency be moved to transmit a copy thereof to the Right Honourable the Secretary of State for the Colonies. All which is respectfully submitted for Your Excellency's approval.

Clerk, Privy Council.

No. 178.
Governor General to Secretary of State for the Colonies.

OTTAWA, 1st February, 1887.

Sir,—With reference to Mr. Stanhope's despatch of the 30th December last, transmitting a copy of a note from the United States' Minister in London, enclosing an outline for an ad interim arrangement between the British and United States' Governments on the subject of the North American Fisheries, together with a copy of a despatch from Mr. Bayard, containing some observations thereon. I have the honour to forward herewith a copy of an approved report of a Committee of the Privy Council of Canada containing the views of my Government on the subject.

I have, &c.,

(Sd.) LANSDOWNE.

The Right Honourable
THE SECRETARY OF STATE,
FOR THE COLONIES.

[Enclosure No. 1.]

[P.C. No. 540, G.]

CERTIFIED COPY OF A REPORT OF A COMMITTEE OF THE HONOURABLE THE PRIVY COUNCIL, APPROVED BY HIS EXCELLENCY THE GOVERNOR GENERAL IN COUNCIL ON THE 1ST FEBRUARY, 1887.

The Committee of the Privy Council have had under consideration a despatch dated 30th December, 1886, from the Right Honourable the Secretary of State for the Colonies, forwarding, for the information of the Canadian Government, a note received through the Foreign Office from the United States' Minister in London, enclosing a draft of a memorandum for an arrangement between the British and United States' Governments on the subject of the North American fisheries, entitled a "proposal for the settlement of the question in dispute in relation to the fisheries on the north-eastern coast of British North America," accompanied by a despatch dated Washington, 15th November, 1886, from Mr. Bayard, United States' Secretary of State, containing some observations thereon. Mr. Secretary Stanhope requests Your Excellency to obtain, at the earliest possible moment, from Your Excellency's advisers their views on Mr. Bayard's proposals and to report them to Her Majesty's Government.

The Minister of Marine and Fisheries, to whom the despatch and enclosures have been referred, reports that Mr. Bayard suggests that as the season for taking mackerel has now closed, "a period of comparative serenity may be expected, of which advantage should be taken in order to adopt measures which will tend to make more harmonious the relations between Canada and the United States as regards the fisheries on the coasts of Canada."

The Minister observes that while any indication of a disposition on the part of the United States' Government to make arrangements which might tend to put the affairs of the two countries on a basis more free from controversy and misunderstanding than at present exists, must be hailed with satisfaction by the Government of Canada, it is to be regretted that the language in which Mr. Bayard refers to what has taken place during the past year indicates a disposition on his part to attribute to unfriendly motives the proceedings of the Canadian Government and a tendency to misapprehend the character and scope of the measures which have been taken by it in order to enforce the terms of the Treaty of 1818, and to ensure respect for the municipal laws of the Dominion.

The Minister submits therefore that he cannot avoid protesting against such expressions in Mr. Bayard's letter as those in which he alludes to the proceedings of the last few months as "the administration of a strained and vexatious construction of the Convention of 1818," as "injust and unfriendly treatment by the local authorities," as "unwarranted interferences with the rights of the United States' fishermen guaranteed by express treaty stipulations and secured to them by the commercial laws and regulations of the two countries, and which are demanded by the laws of hospitality to which all friendly civilized nations owe allegiance," and as "conduct on the part of the Canadian officials which may endanger the peace of two kindred friendly nations."

The Minister has to observe again what has frequently been stated in the negotiations on this subject that nothing has been done on the part of the Canadian authorities since the termination of the Treaty of Washington in any such spirit as that which Mr. Bayard condemns, and that all that has been done with a view to the protection of the Canadian fishermen has been simply for the purpose of guarding the rights guaranteed to the people of Canada by the Convention of 1818, and to enforce the Statutes of Great Britain and of Canada in relation to the fisheries.

It has been more than once pointed out, in reports already submitted by the Minister of the Marine and Fisheries, that such statutes are clear within the powers of the respective Parliaments by which they were passed, and are in conformity with the Treaty of 1818, specially in view of that passage of the treaty which provides that the American fishermen shall be under such restrictions as shall be necessary to prevent them from abusing the privileges they have thereby reserved to themselves.

The Minister has further to call the attention of Your Excellency to the fact that there is no foundation whatever for the following statement in the concluding part of Mr. Bayard's letter:

"The numerous seizures made have been of vessels quietly at anchor in established ports of entry, under charges which up to this day have not been sufficiently allowed of intelligent defense. Not one has been condemned after trial and hearing, but many have been fined without hearing or judicial investigation of alleged commercial regulations, although all commercial privileges have been simultaneously denied to them."

The Minister observes in relation to this paragraph that the seizures of which Mr. Bayard complains have been made under circumstances which have from time to time been fully reported to Your Excellency and communicated to Her Majesty's Government, and upon grounds which have been distinctly and unequivocally stated in every case, that, although the nature of the charges has been invariably specified and duly announced, those charges have not in any case been answered; that ample opportunity has in every case been afforded for a defence to be submitted to the executive authorities, but that no defence has been offered, beyond the mere denial of the rights of the Government and the courts of the various Provinces; that the seizure and condemnation of the vessels have been open to the parties said to have been aggrieved, but that not one of them has resorted to these courts for redress. To this it must be added, that the illegal acts which are characterized by Mr. Bayard as "technical violations of alleged commercial regulations," involved breaches, in most of the cases, not denied by the persons who committed them, of established commercial regulations which, far from being specially directed or enforced against citizens of the United States, are obligatory upon all vessels (including those of Canada herself) which resort to the harbours of the British North American coast.

With regard to the proposal for a settlement which accompanies Mr. Bayard's letter, the Minister submits the following observations:

Art. 1. The Minister observes that, in referring to this Article Mr. Bayard states that he is "encouraged by the expectation that the provisions embodied in the memorandum will be acceptable to Her Majesty's Government, because, in the month of April, 1866, Mr. Seward, then Secretary of State, sent forward to Mr. Adams, at that time United States' Minister in London, the draft of a Protocol, which, in substance, coincides with the first Article of the proposal," now submitted. In regard to this statement, it is to be remarked that Article 1 of the memorandum, although, no doubt, to some extent resembles the Protocol, submitted in 1866, by Mr. Adams to Lord Clarendon, contains several most important departures from the terms of that Protocol. These departures consist not only in such comparatively unimportant alterations as the substitution in line i of the word "establish" for the word "define," without any apparent necessity for the change, and in other minor alterations in the text, but also in such grave changes as that which is involved in the interpolation in Section 1 of the important passage in which it is stipulated: "That the laws and harbours from which American vessels are in future to be excluded save for the purposes for which entrance into bays and harbours is permitted by said Article, are hereby agreed to be taken to be such bays and harbours as are ten or less than ten miles in width, and the distance of three marine miles from such bays and harbours shall be measured from a straight line drawn across the bay or harbour in the part nearest the entrance at the first point when the width does not exceed ten miles."

This provision would involve a surrender of fishing rights which have always been regarded as the exclusive property of Canada, and would make common fishing grounds of territorial waters which by the law of nations have been invariably regarded both in Great Britain and the United States as belonging to the adjacent country. In the case, for instance, of the Baie des Chaleurs, a peculiarly well marked and almost landlocked indentation of the Canadian coast, the ten mile line would be drawn from points in the heart of Canadian territory, and almost seventy miles distant from the natural entrance or mouth of the bay. This would be done in spite of the fact that, both by Imperial legislation and by judicial interpretation, this bay has been declared to form a part of the Territory of Canada. See Imperial Stat., 14 and 15 Vic., Cap. 63, and Mowat v. McPhee, 5 Sup. Court of Canada Reports, p. 68.

The Convention with France in 1859 and similar conventions with other European powers, although cited by Mr. Bayard as sufficient precedents for the adoption of a ten-mile limit, do not, the Minister submits, carry his reasoning.

Those conventions were doubtless framed with a view to the geographical peculiarities of the coasts to which they related. They had for their object the definition of boundary lines, which, owing to the configuration of the coast, perhaps could not readily be settled by reference to the law of nations and involve other conditions which are inapplicable to the territorial waters of Canada.

Mr. Bayard contends that the rule which he asks to have set up was adopted by the Umpire of the Commission appointed under the Treaty of 1854, in the case of the United States' fishing schooner "Washington," that it was by him applied to the Bay of Fundy and that it is for this reason applicable to other Canadian bays.

The Minister submits, however, that the rule laid down by Mr. Bates with regard to the Bay of Fundy should not be treated as establishing the respective rights of Canada and the United States as to bays and harbours not included in the terms of the reference, and in relation to which there was no agreement to abide by the decision of the Umpire and no decision by him.

It may reasonably be contended that as one of the headlands of the Bay of Fundy is in the territory of the United States any rules of international law applicable to that bay are not therefore equally applicable to other bays, the headlands of which are both within the territory of the same power.

As to the second paragraph of the first article the Minister suggests that before such an article is acceded to, and even if the objections before stated should be removed, the article should be so amended as to incorporate the exact language of the Convention of 1818, in which case several alterations should be made. Thus the words "and for no other purpose whatever" should be inserted after the mention of the purposes for which vessels may enter Canadian waters, and after the words "as may be necessary to prevent" should be inserted "their taking drying or curing fish therein, or in any other manner abusing the privileges reserved &c."

To make the language conform correctly to the Convention of 1818, several other verbal alterations which need not be enumerated here, would be necessary in order to prevent imaginary distinctions being drawn hereafter between the Convention of 1818 and any agreement of later date which may be arrived at.

The Minister moreover suggests that inasmuch as Mr. Bayard has from time to time denied the force and authority of the Customs, Harbour Shipping and Police laws of Canada, it may be well in order to remove the possibility of misunderstanding on the part of his Government, to insert a proviso expressly recognizing the validity of such enactments.

The proviso in Article I, in which it is stipulated that any arrangement which may be arrived at by the Commission shall not go into effect until it has been confirmed by Great Britain, and the United States should provide for confirmation by the Parliament of Canada.

2. The Minister submits that Article 11 of the proposed arrangement, is, in his opinion, entirely inadmissible. It would suspend the operations of the Statutes of Great Britain and Canada, and of the Provinces now constituting Canada, not only as to the various offences connected with fishing, but as to Customs, harbours and shipping, and would give to the fishing vessels of the United States privileges in Canadian ports, which are not enjoyed by vessels of any other class, or of any other nation; such vessels would for example, be free from the duty of reporting at the Customs on entering a Canadian harbour, and no safeguard could be adopted to prevent infraction of the Custom laws by any vessel asserting the character of a fishing vessel of the United States.
Always been look forward to in the proposal, to be accepted, that should no "definite arrangement" such as is applied for being such a definite arrangement, might remain in operation for an indefinite period, and that the Article would be taken for all time to come as indicating the true interpretation of the Convention of 1818, although the interpretation placed upon that Convention by the Article is as a matter of fact diametrically opposed to the construction which has herefore been insisted upon by successive Canadian Governments.

The Minister further considers it his duty to point out that the Article is beyond the powers of the Imperial Government, which cannot thus suspend or repeal Canadian laws.

As to Article III the Minister submits that it is entirely inadmissible. It proposes that Her Majesty's Courts in Canada shall, without any show of reason, deprive of their jurisdiction, and would reflect that jurisdiction in a tribunal not bound by legal principles, but clothed with supreme authority to decide on most important rights of the Canadian people.

It would be a disagreeable novelty to the people of Her Majesty's Canadian Dominions to find that any of their subjects, the rights of their country as a whole, were to be submitted to the vindication of two naval officers, one of them belonging to a foreign country, who, if they should disagree agree and be unable to choose, an umpire must refer the final decision of the great interests which might be at stake, to some person chosen by lot.

If a vessel charged with infringement of our fishing rights should, by this extraordinary tribunal, be thought worthy of being subjected to a "Judicial examination" she would be sent to the Vice-Admiralty Court at Halifax, but there would be no redress, no appeal and no reference to any tribunal if the naval officers should think proper to release her.

4. Article IV is also open to grave objection. It proposes to give the United States fishing vessels the same commercial privileges as those to which other vessels of the United States are entitled, although such privileges are expressly renounced by the Treaty of 1818, on behalf of fishing vessels, which were thereafter to be denied the right of access to Canadian waters except for shelter, repairs and the purchase of water, and was already been pointed out, in previous reports on this subject, that an attempt was made, during the negotiations which preceded the Convention of 1818, to obtain from the fishermen of the United States the right of obtaining bait in Canadian waters, and that this attempt was successfully resisted. Your Excellency will observe that, in spite of this fact, it is proposed, under the privileges of purchasing other supplies, in the harbours of the Dominion.

5. To this novel and unjustified interpretation of the Convention Mr. Bayard proposes to give retrospective effect by the next article of the proposal, in which it is assumed, without discussion, that the United States fishing vessels have been seized since the expiration of the Treaty of Washington have been illegally seized, leaving as the only question still open for consideration, the amount of the damages for which the Canadian authorities are liable.

The Minister submits that the serious consideration of such a proposal would imply a disregard of justice as well as of the interests of Canada, and he is unwilling to believe that it will be entertained, either by Your Excellency's advisers, or by the Imperial Government.

From the above enumeration of some of the principal objections to which the proposals contained in Mr. Bayard's memorandum are open, it will be evident to Your Excellency that those proposals as a whole will not be acceptable to the Government of Canada. The conditions in which Mr. Bayard has sought to attach to the appointment of a mixed commission involve in every case the assumption that upon the most important points in the controversy which has been raised the interests of the eastern coast of British North America has been in the wrong and the United States in the right. The reports which have already been submitted to Your Excellency and communicated to Her Majesty's Government upon this subject have been sufficient to show that the position which has been taken up by the Canadian Government is one perfectly justifiable, with reference to the rights expressly reserved to British subjects by treaty, and that the legislation, by which it has been, is being sought to enforce those rights, is entirely in accordance with treaty stipulations, and is in the common interest of the Colonial Legislatures.

It is not to be expected that after having earnestly insisted upon the necessity of a strict maintenance of these treaty rights, and upon the respect due to the fishing vessels, while in Canadian waters, to the municipal legislation by which all vessels resorting to those waters are governed, in the absence of any decision of a legal tribunal, to show that there has been any violation of the law in those cases in which it has been put in operation, the Canadian Government will suddenly and without the justification supplied by any new facts or arguments withdraw from a position taken up deliberately, and by doing so, in effect, plead guilt to the whole of the charges of oppression, inhumanity, and bad faith which, in language wholly unwarranted by the circumstances of the case, have been made against him by the public men of the United States.

Such a surrender on the part of Canada would involve the abandonment of a valuable portion of the national inheritance of the Canadian people, who would certainly visit with just reprobation those who were guilty of so serious a neglect of the trust committed to their charge.

The Minister, while, however, objecting thus strongly to the proposal as it now stands, considers that the fact of such a proposal having been made may be regarded as affording an opportunity which has, up to the present time, not been offered for an amicable comparison of the views entertained by Your Excellency's Government and that of the United States, and he desires to point out that Mr. Bayard's proposal, though quite inadmissible, in so far as the conditions attached to it are concerned, appears to be, in itself, one which deserves respectful examination by Your Excellency's advisers. The main principle of that proposal is that a mixed Commission should be appointed for the purpose of determining the limits of those territorial waters which, subject to the stipulations of the Treaty of 1818, the exclusive right of fishing belongs to Great Britain.

The Minister cordially agrees with Mr. Bayard in believing that a determination of those limits would, whatever might be the future commercial relations between Canada and the United States, either in respect to the fishing industry, or in regard to the interchange of other commodities, be extremely desirable, and he believes that Your Excellency's Government will be found ready to co-operate with that of the United States in effecting such a settlement.

Holding this view the Minister is of opinion that Mr. Bayard was justified in reverting to the precedent afforded by the negotiations which took place upon this subject between Great Britain and the United States prior to the execution of the Reciprocity Treaty of 1854, and he concurs with him in believing that the memorandum communicated by Mr. Adams in 1866 to the Earl of Clarendon affords a valuable indication of the lines upon which a negotiation directed to the same points might now be allowed to proceed.

The Minister has already referred to some of the criticisms which were taken at the time by Lord Clarendon to the terms of the memorandum. Mr. Bayard has himself pointed out that its concluding paragraph, to which Lord Clarendon emphatically objected, is not contained in the memorandum now forwarded by him. Mr. Bayard, appears, however, while taking credit for this omission, to have lost sight of the fact that the remaining articles of the draft memorandum contain stipulations not less open to objection and calculated to affect even more disadvantageously the permanent interests of the Dominion in the fisheries adjacent to its coasts.

The Minister submits that in his opinion, there can be no objection on the part of the Canadian Government to the appointment of a mixed commission, whose duty it would be to consider and report on the matters referred to in the first three articles of the memorandum communicated to the Earl of Clarendon by Mr. Adams, in 1866.

Should a commission instructed to deal with these subjects be appointed at an early date, the Minister is not without hope that the result of its investigations might be reported to the Governments affected without much loss of time. Pending the determination of the questions which it would discuss, it will, in the opinion of the Minister, be indispensable that United States fishing vessels entering Canadian bays and harbours should govern themselves not only according to the terms of the Convention of 1818, but by the regulations to which they in common with other vessels are subject while within such waters.

The Minister has, however, no doubt that every effort will be made to enforce these regulations in such a manner as to cause the smallest amount of inconvenience to fishing vessels entering Canadian ports under stress of weather or for any other legitimate purpose, and he believes that any representation upon this subject will receive the attentive consideration of Your Excellency's Government.

The Minister in conclusion would remind Your Excellency that Your Government has always been willing to remove any obstacles to the most friendly relations between the people of Canada and the United States.

Your Government has not only been disposed from the first to arrive as such an arrangement as that indicated in the report, with regard to the fisheries, but likewise to enter into such other arrangements as might extend the commercial relations existing between the two countries.

The Committee concur in the foregoing and they submit the same for Your Excellency's approval.

Sir,—I have the honor to enclose the copy of an affidavit of the captain and two members of the crew of the schooner "Sarah H. Prior," of Boston, stating the refusal of the Captain of the Canadian Revenue cutter "Critic," to permit the restoration to the former vessel, in the port of Malpeque, P.E.I., of her large seine, which she had lost at sea, and which had been found by the Captain of a Canadian vessel who offered to return the seine to the "Prior," but was prevented from doing so by the Captain of the "Critic." This act of prevention, the reason for which is not disclosed, practically disabled the "Prior," and she was compelled to return home without having completed her voyage, and in debt.

I have the honor to ask that Her Majesty's Government cause investigation of this cause to be made.

(Affidavit.)

On this 28th day of December, A.D. 1886, personally appeared before me Captain Thos. McLaughlin, Master, and George F. Little and Charles Finnegan, two of the crew of the schooner "Sarah H. Prior," of Boston, and being duly sworn, signed and made oath to the following statement of facts:

On 10th September, 1886, the schooner "Sarah H. Prior," while running for Malpeque, P.E.I., and about seven miles from that port, lost her large seine. Four days afterwards the schooner "John Ingalls," of Halifax, N.S., Captain Wolfe, came into Malpeque and had the seine on board which she had picked up at sea. Captain Wolfe offered to deliver the seine to Captain McLaughlin in consideration of $25, which offer was accepted, and paid him the money. The Canadian Revenue Cutter "Critic," Captain McLaren, was laying at Malpeque at the time, and Captain McLaughlin went to see him so as to ascertain if there would be any trouble in delivering the seine. Captain McLaren would not allow the Captain of the "John Ingalls" to give up the seine, so the latter returned the $25 to Captain McLaughlin. The schooner "Sarah H. Prior" had two seines, one large and one small. It was the large one which she lost and the schooner "John Ingalls" picked up. She had to leave Malpeque without it and consequently came home with a broken voyage and in debt.

Your despatch of 1st February has been considered carefully by Her Majesty's Government, who will communicate with that of the United States in general concurrence with the views laid down by your Ministers respecting the proposal for a mixed Commission made by Mr. Bayard. I will address you further, however, regarding one or two points.

Her Majesty's Government, while endeavouring to procure this ad interim arrangement, feel it right to intimate to you that they are disposed to think, after much consideration of the entire subject, that the best and simplest settlement of the present difficulties might be arrived at if both parties would agree so as to permit the discussion of the more extended commercial arrangements—to revive, for a term at least, if not permanently, the condition of things which existed under the Treaty of Washington, fish and fish productions being again reciprocally admitted duty free, and the fishery being once more reciprocally thrown open.

They are, however, of opinion that it would be the clear interest of the Dominion that no suggestion of a pecuniary indemnification should be made in proffering this arrangement.

Extract from the New York "Evening Post" of 27th January, 1887.

THE ANTI-CANADIAN BILL

The unanimity with which the Senate Fishery Bill was passed and the indifference with which it has been received by the country betoken anything rather than war. There is perhaps some party politics behind the curtain. The Democrats must not allow the Republicans to pose as the sole defenders of the country's honour against foreign aggression. Without reference to the merits of the Bill, they must forestall any imputation of want of patriotism. This can be easily managed because the execution of it is in the hands of a Democratic Administration. The Bill provides that the President may suspend commercial intercourse with Canada, more or less, whenever our fishing rights, under the Treaty of 1818, have been wantonly infringed. This is a grant of power to the President of a very extraordinary kind, no less, in fact, than the power to ruin thousands of American merchants. No such power would have been granted by the Republicans without a political end in view. This end obviously is to catch the President and his party on one or the other horn of a dilemma. If he does not exercise the power conferred upon him, it will be said that he has some short of a patriotic duty. If he does exercise it, more or less suffering will ensue on our own side of the border, and for this he will be held responsible.

The responsibility for suspending trade relations ought never to be surrendered by the legislative power. At the time when Napoleon Bonaparte was issuing his Berlin and Milan decrees, and the British Ministry their Orders in Council, the Congress of the United States passed the Embargo and Non-Intercourse Acts, decreeing in fixed terms the suspension of commerce with the offending Powers, and giving the President power merely to relax the operations of the Acts when one or the other of the offenders should desist from the injustice complained of. The Embargo and Non-Intercourse Acts were total failures in practice. Yet Congress preserved its dignity and its prerogatives by keeping within its own hands the power to close the ports of the United States, giving to the President the discretion merely to open them in certain specified contingencies. In the present case the power of closing and opening is surrendered to the President in a spirit of gush which is open to strong suspicion. When Senator Frye utters such fulsome praise of the President as is found in the recent Senate debate, it is well to enquire what it signifies. In our judgment it means that Mr. Frye wants him to make a liberal use of the dangerous power conferred upon him. It may do his Administration some harm. It can do him no good unless the provocation offered by the Canadians is more extreme than anything yet offered, for, if a justifiable case for non-intercourse exists now, it is the bounden duty of Congress to declare and enforce it, and not leave it to the discretion of the Executive. The bill itself is an expression of doubt whether any such case now exists. The report which accompanies the Bill is still more so.

Since the settlement of the Alabama dispute there has been nothing to feed the old animosities against Great Britain springing out of the two wars with the Mother Country except the Irish grievance, and this has been; much mollified by the creation of a strong Irish party in England under the lead of Mr. Gladstone. Accordingly there is no echo to the ranting speech of Senator Ingalls. It has no true ring because it strikes no chord in the hearts of the people. Mr. Ingalls is playing upon a cracked instrument. The effects produced upon the hearers are those of flatulence and discord. The Canadians themselves are not highly interested in the performance. They appear to regard it as a breach of good matters rather than as a token of danger. Non-intercourse with the United States is no more to them than it is to us. If New England can stand it, they can. There will be a certain amount of loss on both sides and no corresponding gain. For this reason we apprehend that the President will require a very clear and indisputable case before he exercises the power conferred upon him, and such a case there is little likelihood the Dominion authorities will give him.

Sir,—I am directed by the Secretary of State for Foreign Affairs to transmit to you the article from the New York press on the fisheries question lately debated in the Senate.

Sir L. West to Marquis of Salisbury.

My Lord,—I have the honour to enclose to Your Lordship herewith further articles from the New York press on the fisheries question lately debated in the Senate.

[Enclosure No. 6.]

Extract from the "New York Evening Post" of 26th January, 1887.

Senator Ingalls has succeeded in getting himself noticed by the English press as well as by the "deestick" at home, and on the whole has not done much harm. The Canadians are apparently very little terrified by him. Inhabiting a country very near to the scene of Senatorial strife, and accustomed to such rumpuses on both sides of the border, they are as unconcerned by them as we are. How little is to be apprehended may be inferred from the fact that although the London press was more or less agitated on Tuesday by Mr. Ingall's stormy deliverance, the American press preserved the profoundest calm throughout.

[Enclosure No. 7.]

Retaliation in Earnest.

The duty of the House respecting the Fisheries outrages is plain and imperative. Its own Committees on Foreign Affairs has reported a Retaliation Act of wider scope than the Senate Bill. There is no real necessity for the passage of so extreme a measure. Mr. George Steele, the indefatigable president of the American Fishing Union, has publicly stated that the Senate Bill covers the ground completely, and that the Belmonts Bill goes too far, in prohibiting commercial intercourse with Canada altogether. We are disposed to abide by his judgment, and to consider the Senate measure as the more expedient of the two schemes. Retaliation, so far as may be practicable, should be strictly in kind: Canadian fishermen and their produce should be dealt with in the same spirit in which American fishermen and their produce are dealt with in Canadian ports; and the extreme policy of non-intercourse should be held in reserve for another year. If the House will accept the Senate Bill as a substitute for its own measure, and send it to the President with the unbroken support of both parties, the responsibility for protecting the rights of American fishermen will be clearly defined.

The United States' Senate deserves the thanks of every patriotic American. The decisive vote by which the Administration's timorous arbitration proposals were condemned at the last Session has been followed this week by the passage of the Fisheries Retaliation Bill by a vote practically unanimous. Party distinctions were dropped. The Senate rose to a high level of patriotism in defence of National honor. The series of unneighbourly, brutal and illegal outrages upon American commerce in Dominion waters has been resented with becoming vigour and dignity. The Senate, with only one dissenting vote—and that vote cast under a fantastic interpretation of the measure—has armed the President with full, adequate and just powers of retaliation. At his discretion United States' ports can be closed against Canadian vessels, fresh or salt fish or any of the products of the Dominion can be seized in American territory, ships and goods can be forfeited, and persons implicated in the violation of this law can be fined and imprisoned. This policy will be heartily supported by public opinion in the United States.

Senator Ingalls' incisive questions, in regard to the real purpose of the Senate Bill, were well-timed, and served to bring out invigorating exhibitions of American feeling. It was unnecessary, however, to ask whether the Bill was intended as a pacific or as a hostile measure. On its face it is a measure of retaliation, pure and simple. If the warning be unheeded by the Dominion Government, it may become necessary, another year, to have recourse to more extreme retaliatory legislation. Such measures are defensive in character. It is a serious mistake to consider them in the light of war measures. The real war measures are the wanton outrages which have involved the necessity for retaliation; and the effect of a vigourous defensive policy on the American side will be markedly pacific, since it will tend to prevent the recurrence of hostile acts. That this will be the result of the passage of the Senate Bill by the House we have very little doubt. Already the Canadian Government is showing works meet for repentance. Three days after the introduction of retaliatory measures in Congress, Consul General Puel in an address to the Canadian authorities advised them to hold the restored fine on the schooner "Marion Grimes," the flag of which was hauled down by order of the swaggering commander of the "Terror." Another schooner was released on Monday. Illegal seizures and brutal outrages will cease when the Ottawa officials perceive that the British Minister is no longer the confidential adviser of Secretary Bayard, that the Administration has renounced its flabby policy of inaction, and that the American people are determined not to have the National honour compromised.

Extract from the "New York World" of 27th January, 1887.

A LESSON FOR CANADA.

The Canadians have never displayed wisdom in their action on the fishery question. Dependent in a measure on the trade of the United States for their prosperity, they have constantly pursued a policy of bluster against her powerful neighbour instead of a policy of conciliation. Their object has been to force a misnamed "reciprocity," with the advantages largely on their side, instead of such a fair and equitable Commercial Treaty between the two countries as would advance the interests of both and create those friendly feelings which would be the best guarantee of an honest observance of the obligations on both sides. Some time ago the Canadian Parliament enacted a law which authorized the seizure of American vessels in violation of what we consider our rights under the Treaty of 1818. The Governor General of the Dominion felt so much doubt about the propriety and expediency of the Act that he withheld his signature and referred it to the Home Government. Before the new law was made complete by the Royal approval, American vessels were seized under its provisions without a show of legality. Subsequently the Act received the Queen's approval.

This is certainly provocation enough to prompt some decisive movement on the part of the Government of the United States, either through the President or Congress. The Administration has done nothing but "protest," while in the face of its expostulations the objectionable law received the Royal assent. Congress now acts through the law which authorizes the President to retaliate for Canadian injustice to our fishing vessels by closing American ports to Canada's trade.

There is nothing of bullying and bluster about this course. It is a measure entirely justifiable and one which Canada can control. If American vessels are fairly dealt with and Treaty obligations are faithfully observed the law will be inoperative. If American rights are violated, retaliation is just and proper and entirely within the practice of nations.

Nobody wants war with Great Britain, nor will there be any war. The rant of politicians in search of cheap popularity amounts to nothing. But Canada must be taught that if she desires to remain on good terms with her neighbour she must act with courtesy and fairness. If she neglects the lesson it will be at the cost of the interests of her own people.

Sir H. Holland to the Marquis of Lansdowne.

Downing Street, 1st March, 1887.

My Lord,—I have the honour to transmit to you, for any observations which your Ministers may wish to offer upon the subject, a copy of a despatch received through the Foreign Office from Her Majesty's Minister at Washington with a paper containing certain questions respecting the fisheries put by the Secretary of the Treasury to Professor Baird, of the Fish Commission, as well as the answers returned thereto.

Sir L. West to the Marquis of Salisbury.

Washington, 5th February, 1887.

My Lord,—I have the honour to enclose to Your Lordship herewith a paper containing certain questions respecting the fisheries put by the Secretary of the Treasury to Professor Baird, of the Fish Commission, as well as the answers returned thereto.

I have, &c.,

(L. S. WEST.

[Enclosure No. 2]

Questions put to Professor Baird by the Secretary of the Treasury on the fisheries, and answers returned thereto:

1. What are the descriptions of fish which the American fishermen desire to take either in the jurisdictional waters of British North America, or in the open sea, or upon bays near the British colonial possessions? Answer. Mackeral is the only species of any importance.
which the American fishermen desire to take within the three-mile limit; but at present the advantage to be derived from any privilege of fishing within the three-mile limit is comparatively insignificant.

2. In the method of fishing in the open sea, of what importance is the right to enter in a commercial way British colonial ports in the neighbourhood? Answer. Only to purchase either salt barrels or ice. The privilege, however, of landing cargoes of fish at provincial ports for shipment to the United States is of considerable importance to vessels engaged in the mackerel fishery, and with it should be coupled the privilege of refitting.

Some of the Gloucester owners of vessels are opposed to going to and from provincial ports on account of the loss of time thereby incurred, but as a considerable percentage of the men employed have families in the Province, they urge upon the owners the necessity of obtaining bait in these localities.

3. The same question in regard to the fishing on the permitted coasts and the commercial entry in the prohibited bays and harbours, but not for fishing? Answer. There is at present comparatively little fishing by American vessels on that portion of the coast to which free access is given by the Treaty of 1818, but vessels fishing in that vicinity should have the same privileges in other ports as are accorded to other vessels, as it would seem unwise to discriminate, and it would, perhaps, owing to the few settlements of any importance on the permitted coast be more convenient for the vessels to enter ports in the prohibited districts to purchase the necessary articles than to go out of their way in an opposite direction where there might be any uncertainty of securing them.

4. What is your estimate of the total tonnage of American vessels and the number of fishermen therein engaged in the Canadian and North Atlantic fisheries in 1886, and the total value of their catch? Answer. 1,956 vessels, aggregating 115,130 tons, with crew numbering 17,906 men. The fleet is estimated to have been divided as follows:

215 in the shell fish and lobster fishery.
177 in the capture of whales and seals.
34 in the menhaden fishing.

5. What change has, in your view, come to American fisheries since the last full year of the Washington Treaty, in regard to the quantity, character, and general features of that industry? Answer. During the year mackerel has been peculiarly scarce. The limited catch cannot, however, in any way be accounted for by the restrictions placed on American vessels within the three-mile limit.

6. What are the new features in the diminished necessity for the purchase of bait in British and American ports? Answer. The employment of the gill net, obtained from Norway for catching cod fish which renders bait no longer necessary.

7. Have you ascertained new facts of public interest in regard to the decreasing importance to American fishermen in the inshore Canadian fisheries? Answer. The decreased importance is due to:

1. The increased size of American vessels, which did away with the necessity of fishing close to land where harbours could be made in case of storms and of landing to dry their fish.
2. The substitution of the purse seine for hand lines in the capture of mackerel, which has necessitated fishing in deeper water, and at a greater distance from shore.

3. From the change in the location of the mackerel, which has for the last few years enabled American vessels to obtain full cargoes in the vicinity of the American coasts, instead of going to the Gulf of St. Lawrence, where they formerly met with better success, but where of late years, prior to the present season they have found fishing unsatisfactory.

No. 187.

Lord Lansdowne to Sir Henry Holland.

[No. 67.] OTTAWA, 9th March, 1887.

Sir,—In consequence of the repeated complaints which have been addressed to Her Majesty’s Government, by that of the United States, of the manner in which the Canadian authorities have acted in enforcing against American fishing vessels the provisions of the Convention of 1818 and the Acts of Parliament passed for the purpose... of giving effect to that Treaty, I have thought it my duty to invite the special attention of my advisers to the action of the Dominion fisheries police during the last fishing season, and to ask them to consider, upon a general review of the events of that season, and of the different cases in which vessels had been either denied privileges or had been seized or detained within Canadian waters for alleged infractions of the law, or otherwise interfered with by the officials of the Dominion; whether any amendment was called for in the instructions which had been issued by the Fisheries Department to the officers in its employment, or in the procedure which has been resorted to in dealing with infractions of the Fishery or Customs laws.

2. With regard to the spirit in which the Government of the Dominion desires to act in regard to these questions, I am glad to refer you again to the printed instructions issued on the 16th March, 1880, to all fishery officers in command of Government steamers and vessels engaged in the protection of the inshore fisheries of Canada. These instructions, after carefully defining the circumstances under which foreign fishing vessels may be detained, No. 33. enjoin upon the officers to whom the instructions are addressed, the duty of performing the services in which they are engaged, with forbearance and discrimination.

It is especially pointed out that "foreign fishing craft may be driven into Canadian waters by violent or contrary winds, by strong tides or through misadventure or some other cause independent of the will of the master and crew."

In such cases the fishery officer is desired to take these circumstances into his consideration and to "satisfy himself with regard thereto before taking the extreme step of seizing or detaining any vessels." In another passage special reference is made to the general conciliatory spirit in which it is desirable that you should carry these instructions, and the wish of Her Majesty's Government that the rights of exclusion should not be strained."

3. The information given to me by my Ministers affords no reason for believing that during the past season there has been any appreciable departure from the intentions of the framers of the instructions which I have quoted.

4. In almost every case in which complaints of the kind to which I have referred have been forwarded to me by your predecessors, I have been able to supply them with full information which has, I venture to think, been sufficient to show that as a rule, the complaints were founded upon ex parte and misleading statements and the action of the Canadian authorities entirely warranted by treaty and law. It is, indeed, I think, a matter for congratulation—considering the fact that my Government had to deal on the one hand with a body of fishermen accustomed to resort without molestation to Canadian waters and likely to resent any interference with the freedom of access which such fishermen had heretofore enjoyed, and on the other with a newly constituted police force of which the members were necessarily without experience in the novel and delicate duties entrusted to them, that no serious mistakes should have so far been committed.

5. I am, however, able to assure you that should there be any particular case to which Her Majesty's Government may desire to see the instructions already issued amended so as to prevent the possibility of hardships to vessels bond fide resorting to Canadian waters for any of the purposes permitted by the Convention of 1818, my Government will take into its favourable consideration the suggestions which you may be disposed to make with this object.

6. In this connection, however, I may point out that in the despatches which have been addressed to Her Majesty's Government by Mr. Bayard, as well as in the reports presented to Congress, with a view to justify legislation upon those subjects, objection has been taken not only to the interpretation which Canadian authorities have placed upon the law which they were called upon to administer, but apparently to the allowance of any discretion whatever to Canadian officials in dealing with acts of trespass committed by American vessels in Canadian waters. Of this a conspicuous illustration is afforded by the language used in the report recently presented to Congress by Mr. Edmunds, from the Committee on Foreign Relations, which contains the following passage:

"On the 12th May, 1870, the Dominion Act, 33 Vict., chap. 15, was passed, repealing the third section of the last-mentioned Act on the subject of bringing vessels into port, &c., and providing, in lieu thereof, that any of the officers or persons before mentioned might bring any vessel being within any harbour in Canada, or hovering in British waters, within three miles of the coast into port, search her cargo, examine her master on oath, &c., without any previous notice to depart, which had been required by the former Act. So that an American vessel fishing at sea, being driven by stress of weather, want of wood or water, or need of repairing damages, which should run into a Canadian harbour, under the right reserved to it by the Treaty of 1818, the moment her anchor was dropped or she was within the shelter of a headland was, at the discretion of the Canadian official, to be immediately seized and carried into port, which might be, and often would be, many miles from the place where she could have her safe shelter or could obtain her wood and water or repair her damages.

"The Committee thinks it is not too much to say that such a provision is in view of the Treaty and of the common principles of comity among nations, grossly in violation of rights secured by the Treaty and of that friendly conduct of good neighbourhood, that should exist between civilized nations holding relations such as ought to exist between the United States and Her Majesty’s Dominions." * * * * *

"From all this it would seem that it is the deliberate purpose of the British Government to leave it to the individual discretion of each one of the numerous subordinate magistrates, fishery officers, and Custom officers of the Dominion of Canada to seize and to bring into port any American vessels, whether fishing or other, that he finds within any harbour in Canada, or hovering within Canadian waters."

7. It is, I venture to submit, impossible to contrive any system for enforcing regulations for the protection of the Canadian Fisheries, or for the prevention of smuggling along the Canadian coast, no matter how liberal the spirit in which those regulations might be conceived, under which the initiative to be taken in each case should not be left to "the individual discretion" of Canadian officials. If no such discretion is allowed to these, if every intruding vessel is to be free after committing an act of trespass to depart without hindrance from the place in which that act was committed, subject merely to the chance of her being made liable for subsequent legal proceedings, the protection which it was intended to afford to the interests of the Dominion would become illusory and valueless.

8. The same argument applies to the enforcement against the American fishing vessels of the Canadian Customs law. The acts of vessels which have been proceeded against under this law are constantly represented, as for instance on page 10 of the report already quoted to be "merely formal or technical violations of some Canadian Customs Statute or Regulation." The Statute which has been enforced in these cases is, as I have more than once had occasion to point out, one which is consistently put into operation against all vessels resorting to Canadian waters nor would it be possible to cease enforcing it against a particular class of vessels without giving to them opportunities for systematically, and with complete impunity, evading the law upon coasts of which the configuration is particularly favourable to the operations of smugglers.

9. For these reasons I cannot hold out the expectation that my Government will abandon the position which I have described, and which may be summed up in the statement that, it cannot recognize the right of the United States’ fishing vessels to resort to Canadian waters except for the purposes specified in the Convention of 1818, and that it considers that its officials should have the discretion of determining in what cases and to what extent, subject to the ultimate decision of the Courts, vessels entering those waters for a lawful purpose should comply with the requirements of the municipal law of the Dominion. With this reservation, my Government desires to afford to all foreign vessels every facility for availing themselves of the privileges to which they are entitled, and to avoid, as far as possible, attaching to the exercise of those privileges any condition of an irritating or vexatious character.
10. If you should be of opinion that any alterations are desirable in the procedure of the local authorities or in the instructions to which I have already referred, I trust that you will favour me with an expression of your views.

No. 188.

Lord Lansdowne to Sir H. Holland.

OTTAWA, 11th March, 1887.

Sir,—In reference to the subject mentioned in my despatch of the 9th inst., No. 67, and as an illustration of the desire of my Government to remove obstacles in the way of United States' fishing vessels resorting to Canadian waters for purposes permitted by the Convention of 1818, I may mention that a Sub-Collector of Customs will be stationed upon an island, or at Sand Point, at the mouth of Shelburne Harbour, so as to render it unnecessary for vessels entering that harbour to report to the Collector who is stationed in the Port of Shelburne, which is several miles distant from the outer harbour.

It will be in your recollection that a complaint was made in the case of the "Rattler" detained in this harbour in the month of August, 1886, that she was delayed for some time in consequence of her being taken from the spot at which she was found by the Canadian police vessel, to the Port of Shelburne.

I may also mention that the captains of police vessels have been authorized, in certain cases, in which entrance at the regular Customs port would entail serious loss of time owing to distance from the place of shelter, to act as Customs Officers for the purpose of accepting reports from United States' fishing vessels who may find it necessary to enter Canadian harbours.

The attention of the Department of Customs is specially directed to these points, and the Minister will do all in his power to enable Foreign Fishing Vessels to comply with the requirements of the Customs Laws, under conditions as little onerous as possible.

CIRCULAR.—THE FISHERIES.

1887. Department No. 32.

Treasury Department, Bureau of Navigation,
Washington, D. C., 16th March, 1887.

To Collectors of Customs and others:

The attention of officers of Customs and others is invited to the provisions of the recent Acts of Congress printed below, one relating "to the importing and landing of mackerel caught during the spawning season," and the other authorizing the President of the United States to protect the rights of American fishing vessels, American fishermen, American trading and other vessels, in certain cases, &c.

(Sd) C. B. MORTON, Commissioner.

Approved:
(Sd.) C. S. FAIRCHILD, Acting Secretary.

AN ACT RELATING TO THE IMPORTING AND LANDING OF MACKEREL CAUGHT DURING THE SPAWNING SEASON.

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled, That for the period of five years from and after the first day of March, eighteen hundred and eighty-eight, no mackerel, other than what is known as Spanish mackerel, caught between the first day of March and the first day of June, inclusive, of each year, shall be imported into the United States or landed upon its shores: Provided, however, That nothing in this Act shall be held to apply to mackerel caught with hook and line from boats, and landed in said boats, or in traps and weirs connected with the shore.

Sec. 2. That section forty-three hundred and twenty-one of the Revised Statute is amended, for the period of five years aforesaid, so as to read before the last sentence as follows: "This license does not grant the right to fish for mackerel, other than what is known as Spanish mackerel, between the first day of March and the first day of June, inclusive, of this year." Or in lieu of the foregoing there shall be inserted so much of said period of time as may remain unexpired under this Act.

Sec. 3. That the penalty for violation or attempted violation of this Act shall be forfeiture of license on the part of the vessel engaged in said violation, if a vessel of this country, and the forfeiture to the United States, according to law, of the mackerel imported or landed, or sought to be imported or landed.

Sec. 4. That all laws in conflict with this law are hereby repealed.

Approved, 28th February, 1887.

AN ACT TO AUTHORIZE THE PRESIDENT OF THE UNITED STATES TO PROTECT AND DEFEND THE RIGHTS OF AMERICAN FISHING VESSELS, AMERICAN FISHERMEN, AMERICAN TRADING AND OTHER VESSELS, IN CERTAIN CASES AND FOR OTHER PURPOSES.

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled, That whenever the President of the United States shall be satisfied that American fishing vessels or American fishermen visiting or being in the waters or at any ports or places of the British dominions of North America, are, or then lately have been denied or abridged in the enjoyment of any rights secured by treaty or law, or are or then lately have [been] unjustly vexed or harassed in the enjoyment of such rights, or subjected to unreasonable restrictions, regulations, or requirements in respect of such rights, or otherwise unjustly vexed or harassed in said waters, ports or places; or whenever the President of the United States shall be satisfied that any such fishing vessels or fishermen, having a permit under the laws of the United States to touch and trade at any port or ports, place or places in the British dominions of North America, are or then lately have been denied the privilege of entering such port or ports, place or places in the same manner and under the same regulations as may exist therein applicable to trading vessels of the most favoured nation, or shall be unjustly vexed or harassed in respect thereof, or otherwise be unjustly vexed or harassed therein, or shall be prevented from purchasing such supplies as may there be lawfully sold to trading vessels of the most favoured nation; or whenever the President of the United States shall be satisfied that any other vessels of the United States, their masters, or crews, so arriving at or being in such British waters or ports or places of the British dominions of North America, are or then lately have been denied any of the privileges therein accorded to the vessels, their masters or crews, of the most favored nation, or unjustly vexed or harassed in respect of the same, or unjustly vexed or harassed therein by the authorities thereof, then, and in either or all of such cases, it shall be lawful, and it shall be the duty of the President of the United States, in his discretion, by proclamation to that effect, to deny to vessels, their masters and crews, of the British dominions of North America, any entrance into the waters, ports or places of, or within the United States (with such exceptions in regard to vessels in distress, stress of weather, or needing supplies, as to the President shall seem proper), whether such vessels shall have come directly from said dominions on such destined voyage, or by way of some port or place in such destined voyage elsewhere; and also, to deny entry into any port or place of the United States of fresh fish or salt fish, or any other product of said dominions, or other goods coming from said dominions to the United States.

The President may, in his discretion apply such proclamation to any part or to all of the foregoing-named subjects, and may revoke, quality, limit and renew such proclamation from Act. Every violation of any such proclamation, or any part thereof, is hereby declared illegal, and all vessels and goods so coming or being within the waters, ports, or places of the United States, contrary to such proclamation, shall be forfeited and proceeded upon in the same manner and with the same effect as in the case of vessels or goods whose importation or coming to or being in the waters or ports of the United States contrary to law may now be enforced and proceeded upon. Every person who shall violate any of the provisions of this Act, or such proclamation of the President made in pursuance hereof, shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor, and, on conviction thereof, shall be punished by a fine not exceeding one thousand dollars, or by imprisonment for a term not exceeding two years, or by both said punishments, in the discretion of the court.

No. 190.

Lord Lansdowne to Sir H. Holland.

CANADA, Government House.

OTTAWA, 2nd April, 1887.

[No. 9.]

SIR,—With reference to Mr. Stanhope's despatch, No. 274, of the 16th November last, transmitting a copy of a letter from the Foreign Office, with its enclosures, respecting the alleged improper conduct of authorities in the Dominion in dealing with the United States' fishing vessels, "Laura Sayward" and "Jonnie Smirnora," and requesting to be furnished with a report on these cases for communication to the United States Government, I have the honour to forward herewith a copy of an approved Minute of the Privy Council of Canada, embodying a report of my Minister of Marine and Fisheries on the subject.

I have much pleasure in calling your attention to the penultimate paragraph of that report from which you will observe that it will, in the opinion of my Government, be possible in cases like that of the "Jonnie Smirnora," where a foreign fishing vessel has entered a Canadian harbour for a lawful purpose, and in the pursuance of her treaty rights, to exercise the necessary supervision over the conduct of her master and crew, and to guard against infractions of the Customs law and other Statutes binding upon foreign vessels while in Canadian waters, without placing an armed guard on board, or preventing reasonable communication with the shore.

My advisers are, in regard to all such matters, fully prepared to recognize that a difference should be made between the treatment of vessels bona fide entering a Canadian harbour for shelter or repairs, or to obtain wood and water, and that of other vessels of the same class entering such harbors ostensibly for a lawful purpose, but really with the intention of breaking the law.

(Sgd.) LANSDOWNE.

The Right Honourable,
Sir Henry Holland, Bart., G.C.M.G.,

[Enclosure No. 1.]

CERTIFIED COPY of a Report of a Committee of the Honourable the Privy Council, approved by His Excellency the Governor General in Council, on the 23rd March, 1857.

The Committee of the Privy Council have had under consideration a despatch dated 16th December, 1856, from the Right Honourable the Secretary of State for the Colonies, transmitting a copy of a letter from the Foreign Office covering copy of a despatch from Her Majesty's Minister at Washington, enclosing notes which he has received from Mr. Bayard, United States Secretary of State, protesting against the conduct of the Dominion authorities in their dealings with the United States' fishing vessels "Laura Sayward" and "Jennie Seaverns," and requesting to be furnished with a report on the subject for communication to the Government of the United States.

The Minister of Marine and Fisheries to whom the despatch and enclosures were referred for immediate report, observes that Mr. Bayard takes exception to the "inhospitable and inhuman conduct" of the Collector of Customs at the Port of Shelburne, N.S., in refusing to allow Capt. Rose of the "Laura Sayward" to buy sufficient food to last himself and crew on their homeward voyage, and complains of the action of the Collector in "unnecessarily retaining" the papers of the vessel. Mr. Bayard bases his representation upon the annexed declaration made by Capt. Rose, but supported by no other testimony.

The Minister states that immediately on receipt of the despatch above mentioned, a copy of the charges was forwarded to the Collector at the Port of Shelburne and his statement in reply thereto is annexed.

The Minister believes that Collector Atwood's statement is a reasonable and sufficient answer to the allegations made by the Captain of the "Sayward," and leaves no ground of justification for the strong language used by Mr. Bayard in his note to Sir L. Saskville West.

The Minister further observes that with reference to the "Jennie Seaverns," Mr. Bayard complains of the conduct of Capt. Quigley, of the "Terror," in preventing the Captain of the "Jennie Seaverns" from landing to visit his relatives in Liverpool, N.S., and in forbidding his relatives to visit him on board his vessel, and in placing a guard upon the "Seaverns" while she was in port. These complaints are based upon the affidavit of Capt. Tupper, of the "Seaverns," a copy of which is attached. The statements of Capt. Quigley and his officer, Bennett, are submitted in reply, and seem to afford ample proof that no violence or injustice was done to the fishing schooner.

The Minister is of the opinion that the Captain of the "Jennie Seaverns" has nothing to complain of. He came in solely for shelter and this was not denied him. He was requested to report at the Customs, with which request he, upon his own evidence, willingly complied. The other precautions taken by Capt. Quigley were simply to ensure that while shelter was given the conditions of the Convention and of the Union were not violated.

The Minister, however, while assured that the vessel in question suffered no deprivation of or interference with her rights as defined by the Convention of 1818, is of opinion that in pursuance of the spirit of uniform kindly interpretation of the law which it has been the constant aim of the Government of Canada to exemplify in its dealings with United States' fishermen, it is possible for the officers in charge of the cruisers to efficiently guard the rights of Canadian citizens and enforce the provisions of the law without in such cases as the above finding it necessary to place an armed guard on board the sailing vessel, or preventing what may be deemed reasonable communication with the shore.

The Committee concurreing in the report of the Minister of Marine and Fisheries, recommend that Your Excellency be moved to transmit a copy of this Minute to the Right Honourable the Secretary of State for the Colonies, for the purpose of communication to the Government of the United States.

All which is respectfully submitted for Your Excellency's approval.

(Affidavit of Medeo Rose.)

I, Medeo Rose, master of the schooner "Laura Sayward," of Gloucester, being duly sworn, do depose and say that on Saturday, 2nd October, being then on Western Bank on a fishing trip, and being short of provisions we hoisted our anchor and started for home.

The wind was blowing almost a gale from the north-west and being almost dead ahead we made slow progress on our voyage home. On Tuesday, 5th October, we made Shelburne, Nova Scotia, and arrived in that harbour about 8 o'clock p.m. on that day, short of provisions, water and oil to burn. On Wednesday I sailed for the inner harbour of Shelburne, arriving at the town about 4 p.m. On going ashore I found the Custom House closed, and hunted up the Collector and entered my vessel and asked permission from him to buy 7 lbs. sugar, 3 lbs. coffee, 1 bushel potatoes, and 2 lbs. butter, or hard, or pork and oil enough to last us home, and was refused.

I stated to him my situation, short of provisions and a voyage of 250 miles before, and plead with him for this slight privilege, but it was of no avail. I then visited the American Consul and asked his assistance and found him powerless to aid me in this matter. The Collector of Customs held my papers until the next morning, although I asked for them as soon as I found I could not buy any provisions, say about one and a-half hours after I entered, but he refused to give them to me until the next morning. Immediately on receiving my papers on Thursday morning, I started for home arriving on Sunday. I think the treatment I received harsh and cruel, driving myself and crew to sea with a scanty supply of provisions, we having but little flour and water, and liable to be bulleted for days before reaching home.

Personally appeared Medeo Rose and made oath to the truth of the above statement.

CUSTOM HOUSE, Shelburne, 5th January, 1887.

Sir,—With reference to the statement made by Medeo Rose, master of the schooner "Laura Sayward," I beg to say that in many particulars it is not true and is very unjust. The Custom House was not closed as stated. Office hours are supposed to be from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m., but masters of vessels, American fishermen particularly, are allowed to report their vessels, inward and outward, and obtain clearances at any hour between 6 a.m. and 11 p.m., (Sundays excepted), and the office is always open. On the 6th October last, I left at 4 p.m. and went to an Agricultural Exhibition not an eighth of a mile distant, say a three minutes walk, to take word at the office to tell any one who might be there, that I could be found. I had been on the grounds about fifteen minutes when Captain Rose put in an appearance, and I once came to the office and he reported his vessel, stated that he was from the Bank, bound home, and came in to fill water and wanted provisions as follows, viz.: 7 lbs sugar, 3 lbs. coffee, 1 bushel potatoes, and 2 lbs. butter. This was all. I took a memo. and attached to his Inward Report, and oil is not mentioned. Stated that he had plenty of flour, fish and other provisions, sufficient for voyage home.

I gave him permission to fill water at once, but as the Treaty made no provision for purchase of supplies, I would telegraph the Department at Ottawa, and no doubt it would be allowed. Captain Rose expressed his willingness to remain until a reply was received. He called at the office next morning (Thursday), at 6 30 a.m., and finding I had not received a reply, said, as the wind was fair and a good breeze, he would not wait longer, and would take a clearance, which I gave him. I told him an answer to telegram would probably be received by 10 a.m. I did not consider it a case of actual distress by any means, as by the master's own statement, he had plenty of other provisions, and all that he really and actually needed was to fill water.

The statement that I held his papers, although he asked for them, &c., and that I refused to give them to him until next morning is all false. He did not ask further until next morning when he got his clearance. The statement that the treatment he received was harsh, and driving him to sea having little water and flour, &c., is all untrue, as what I have already stated will prove. Captain Medeo Rose was here with his vessel on the 23rd November last, and entered his vessel and obtained clearance at eight in the evening. Was here again on the 27th November, and remained five days for repairs, and nothing was said by him of the "inhuman conduct" or "harsh treatment" on the part of the Collector towards him.

The above is a plain statement of the facts, and many of the statements can be corroborated by the American Consul of this port, if referred to him.

I am, &c.,

Affidavit of Joseph Tupper.

I, Joseph Tupper, master of schooner "Jennie Seaverne," of Gloucester, being duly sworn, do depose and say:—That on Thursday, 29th October, while on my passage home from a fishing trip, the wind blowing a gale from south-east and a heavy sea running, I was obliged to enter the harbour of Liverpool, N.S., for shelter. Immediately on coming to anchor, was boarded by Captain Quigley of Canadian cruiser "Terror" who ordered me to go inshore at once and report at Custom House, to which I replied that such was my intention. He gave me permission to take two men in the boat with me, but they must remain in the boat and must not step on shore. I asked Captain Quigley if I could, after entering, visit some of my relations who resided in Liverpool and whom I had not seen for many years. This privilege was denied me. After entering, having returned to my vessel, some of my relatives came to see me. When Captain Quigley saw their boat alongside my vessel, he sent an officer and boat's crew who ordered them away, and at sundown he placed an armed guard on board our vessel who remained on board all night and was taken off just before we sailed in the morning.

I complied with the Canadian laws and had no intention or desire to violate them in any way, but to be made a prisoner on board my own vessel and treated like a suspicious character grates harshly upon the feelings of an American seaman, and I protest against such treatment and respectfully ask from my own Government protection from such unjust, unfriendly and arbitrary treatment.

[Enclosure No. 5.]

Captain Quigley to Deputy Minister of Fisheries.

Newcastle, 19th January, 1887.

Sir,—In reference to the American schooner "Jeanie Seaverns," of Gloucester, I find she arrived on Thursday, 28th October, as stated in his complaint, at Liverpool, N.S., and after she anchored, I sent Chief Officer Bennett on board with instructions telling him what the law was, so that he could not do anything through ignorance of it, and get his vessel in trouble. These instructions were to report his vessel at the Customs before sailing, and to take two of his crew and a boat with him when he did go for that purpose, but the rest of his crew were not to go on shore, and that after he reported, no person from his vessel was to go on shore, as he got all he put in for, viz., shelter, and he reported his vessel putting in for that purpose, and for no other—not for the purpose of letting his crew on shore.

The boat that was ordered from his vessel was from shore, and was not allowed alongside of these vessels as it gave the crews a chance to get ashore with them or to smuggle provisions alongside, so they were ordered off in all cases. See Chief Officer's Statement regarding it, also his statement regarding the men who rowed the captain on shore.

I never prevented the men who went ashore with the masters of vessels from landing and going with the masters to the Customs House if they wished, nor gave instructions to prevent them.

I placed two watchmen on board this vessel as I did in all other cases, to prevent them from breaking the law in any respect through the night, and they were taken off in the morning before he sailed.

It is not true that I boarded the vessel as he states. I never spoke to him. There were two other American seamen in at the same time and were treated in the same way, less the watchmen which were not required in their case, as they were close to me and I could see what was done on board them at all times, from my vessel. These are the facts.

I have the honour to be, Sir,

Your obedient servant,

MAJOR JOHN TILTON, Deputy Minister of Fisheries.

Statement of First Officer Bennett.

I, Albert Bennett, late First Officer of Dominion Cutter "Terror," Captain Quigley, remember boarding the American seiner "Jeanie Seaverns," of Gloucester, U.S., at the port of Liverpool, N.S., on the 28th of October last past. Boarded her. Ordered Captain Tupper to report at the Customs at Liverpool aforesaid, which he did, taking with him two men in his boat. Never told Captain Tupper not to allow his men to leave his boat while on shore. Further, Captain Tupper, to the best of my knowledge and belief, never intimated to me that he had friends or relatives that he wished to visit in Liverpool, N.S.

Seeing a boat alongside, I went on board and and ordered them away. Captain Tupper told me he did not know the visitors, and further, did not wish them on board his vessel.

Further, during the time the "Jennie Seaverns" was in the harbour of Liverpool, N.S. Captain Quigley never was on board her, I boarding her and carrying out his instructions to me.

No. 191.

_Lord Lansdowne to Sir Henry Holland._

OTTAWA, 2nd April, 1887.

SIR,—I have the honour to enclose herewith a certified copy of a Privy Council Order respecting the case of the United States' schooner, "Mollie Adams," which formed the subject of your predecessor's despatches Nos. 218 and 212 of the 6th October, and 16th December, respectively.

I have to express my regret that it should have proved impossible to supply you with the necessary information bearing upon this case at an earlier date. Some time was, however, taken in collecting the evidence embodied in the reports, copies of which accompany the minute, and the occurrence of the General Elections for the Federal Parliament to some extent interrupted the course of business in the public Departments and increased the delay.

You will find in the report of my Minister of Marine and Fisheries, and in the enclosures appended to it, a full and, I think, satisfactory reply to the whole of the charges made by the Government of the United States against the conduct of the Canadian officials concerned in the matter of the "Mollie Adams."

I would venture to draw your special attention to the concluding passages of the Minister's Report in which he earnestly deprecates the manner in which in this, as well as in other cases in which disputes have arisen under conditions of a similar character, the Government of the United States has hesitated to adopt without any enquiry, and to support with the whole weight of its authority, ex parte charges entirely unconfirmed by collateral evidence, and unaccompanied by any official attestation.

In view of the fact that owing to the action of the Government of the United States in terminating the Fishery clauses of the Treaty of Washington, a large body of American fishermen have suddenly found themselves excluded from waters to which they had for many years past resorted without molestation, and that the duty of thus excluding them has been thrown upon a newly constituted force of Fishery Police, necessarily without experience of the difficult and delicate duties which it is called upon to perform, there would be no cause for surprise if occasional cases of hardship or over-zealous action upon the part of the local authorities engaged in protecting the interests of the Dominion were to be brought to light. It is the earnest desire of my Government to guard against the occurrence of any such cases, to deal in a spirit of generosity and forbearance with United States' Fishermen resorting to Canadian waters in the exercise of their lawful rights, and to take effectual measures for preventing arbitrary or uncalled for interference, on the part of its officials, with the privileges allowed to foreign fishermen under the terms of the Convention of 1818.

The difficulty of acting in such spirit must, however, be greatly increased by the course which has been pursued in this and in numerous other cases already brought to your notice in founding not only the most urgent remonstrances, but the most violent and offensive charges and the most unjust imputation of motives upon complaints such as that put forward by the Captain of the "Mollie Adams," a person so illiterate that he appeared not to have been qualified to make out the ordinary entry papers on his arrival in a Canadian port, but whose statements, many of which bear upon the face of them evidence of their untrustworthiness, appear to have been accepted in globo without question by the Secretary of State.

You will, I cannot help thinking, concur in the opinion expressed in the Minister's Report that such hasty and indiscriminate accusations can only have the effect of prejudicing and embittering public feeling in both countries, and of retardating the prospect of a reasonable settlement of the differences which have unfortunately arisen between them upon these subjects.

I have, &c.,

The Right Honourable
Sir Henry Holland,

[Enclosure No. 1.]

CERTIFIED COPY of a Report of a Committee of the Honourable the Privy Council for Canada, approved by His Excellency the Governor General in Council on the 31st March, 1887.

The Committee of the Privy Council have had under consideration a despatch dated 6th October, 1886, from the Right Honourable the Secretary of State for the Colonies, transmitting a copy of a letter from the Foreign Office enclosing a copy of a despatch from Her Majesty's Minister at Washington, with a note from the Secretary of State of the United States, calling attention to the alleged refusal of the Collector of Customs at Port Mulgrave, Nova Scotia, to allow the master of the United States' fishing vessel "Mollie Adams," to purchase barrels to hold a supply of water for the return voyage, and also a further despatch dated 16th December, 1886, referring to the same schooner the "Mollie Adams" and her alleged treatment at Malpeque, Prince Edward Island and Port Medway, and requesting an early report on the circumstances of this case.

The Minister of Marine and Fisheries to whom the said despatches and enclosures were referred, submits the following report thereon:

Mr. Bayard's note of 10th September calls attention to the alleged refusal of the Collector of Customs at Port Mulgrave, Nova Scotia, to allow the master of the "Mollie Adams" to purchase barrels to hold a supply of water for which the vessel had put into port. The report of the Sub-Collector of Customs at Port Mulgrave, which is hereto annexed, and which he expresses his readiness to verify upon oath, shows that the "Mollie Adams" was fitted out with a water tank, which was reported as leaking, that the Collector offered to borrow barrels for carrying the water on board if the tank were made tight, and even offered to send a man on board to perform this work, that while the Captain of the schooner and he were in conversation, one of the crew brought the information that the cook had succeeded in caulking the tank. That thereupon the Sub-Collector borrowed the seven barrels with which the crew supplied water for their vessel, that the barrels were returned to the Collector, and the Captain appeared well pleased with what had been done. The good-will of the Sub-collector is also shown in his giving the mon a letter to his superior officer in explanation of the circumstances, and recommending that the purchase of barrels be allowed, a step which was rendered unnecessary by the arrangements later made.

The Sub-Collector, in answer to his enquiry, as to what had become of the water barrels in use on board the vessel, was informed that they had been filled with mackerel. This answer goes to prove that Mr. Murray was acting strictly within the scope of his duty in ascertaining that the barrels sought to be purchased were not to be used for an illicit purpose.
The Colonial Secretary's despatch No. 272 of the 16th December, 1886, refers to the same schooner the "Mollie Adams" and her alleged treatment at Malpeque, Prince Edward Island, and Port Medway, Nova Scotia.

In this case Mr. Bayard's representations are based solely upon a letter written to him by the Captain of the vessel, under date 12th November, which is unsupported by any other evidence, and upon the strength of which Mr. Bayard proceeds to charge the Canadian authorities with "churlish and inhospitable treatment," and with exhibiting a coldness and want of conduct at variance with the hospitable feelings of common humanity.

The Minister of Marine and Fisheries submits as a complete reply to the allegations contained in Captain Jacobs' letter: (1) The statement of the Collector of Customs at Malpeque, P.E.I. (2) The statement of Captain McLaren, of the Canadian cruiser "Critic," and (3) The report of the Collector of Customs at Port Medway.

The two former officers, although giving their reports without concert, agree upon the main points at issue, and the statements of all three are clear, straightforward, and reasonable and in marked contrast to the sensational and improbable story related by Captain Jacobs.

Captain Jacobs declares that on or about the 20th September last, during very heavy weather, he fell ill in the barque "Neskilita," which had run aground at Malpeque Harbour, and became a total wreck. That he took off the crew, 17 in number, at 12 o'clock at night, carried them to his own vessel, fed them for three days, and then gave them $60 with which to pay their fare home, and provisions to last them to their departure. He states that the Captain of the Canadian cruiser "Critic" came on board, was told the circumstances but offered no assistance, and that no one on shore would take the wrecked men unless he became responsible for the payment of their board.

The Collector at Malpeque, in his report, says, that early on the morning after the wreck, as soon as the news reached him, he repaired to the harbour to see what assistance could be given, that he there met the Captain of the "Neskilita" in company with Captain Jacobs, and was told by the latter that the crew of the wrecked vessel were comfortably cared for on his vessel, and that nothing more could be done.

Captain McLaren, of the "Critic," says that he at once visited the "Mollie Adams," and was told by Captain Jacobs that he had made all arrangements for the crew.

The Collector and Captain McLaren agree in stating that, from information gathered by them, that the crew of the wrecked vessel came to shore in their own boat, unassisted, and after boarding a Nova Scotia vessel, were invited by Captain Jacobs, with whom the Captain of the "Neskilita" had before time sailed out of Gloucester to go on board the "Mollie Adams."

The Collector was asked by the Captain of the "Neskilita" if he could assist himself and crew to their homes, and answered that he could not unless assured that they were without means for that purpose, in which case he would have to telegraph to Ottawa for instructions. The Captain of the "Neskilita" made no further application.

The Minister observes that it is the practice of the Dominion Government to assist shipwrecked and destitute sailors in certain cases of great hardship to their destination or homes, but in all cases it must be clear that they are destitute, and the application for assistance must be made to Ottawa through the Collector of Customs. Had such an application been made by the Captain of the "Neskilita" it would have received due consideration.

In answer to the charge that board could not be obtained for the wrecked crew, it is stated by Captain McLaren that the crew of a United States' vessel wrecked about the same time found no difficulty in getting board, and that the Captain of the "Neskilita" had himself arranged to board with the Collector, who expressed surprise at his failure to come.

Captain Jacobs complains that he was not allowed to land from his vessel the material saved from the wreck. To this charge the Collector replies that he received no intimation of any wrecked material, except the crew's baggage, being on board the "Mollie Adams," and that Captain Jacobs had made no request to him regarding the landing of wrecked material, and that he (the Collector) gave all assistance in his power to the Captain of the "Neskilita" in saving material from the wreck.

It was subsequently discovered that Captain Jacobs had on board the "Mollie Adams" a scene from the wrecked vessel belonging to the underwriters, for taking care of which, when obliged to take it up, Captain Jacobs claimed and was paid the sum of ten dollars.

Captain Jacobs states that he was put to a loss of ten days' fishing by his detention with the "Neskilita." The reports of both the Collector and Captain McLaren agree in giving a very different and sufficient reason, viz., very bad weather and consequent inability to fish, a disability experienced by the whole fishing fleet at that time anchored in Malpeque.

The second complaint of Mr. Bayard is that when Captain Jacobs, experiencing a deprivation of provisions as a consequence of his charitable action, shortly after put into Port Medway and asked to purchase half a barrel of flour and enough provisions to take him home, the Collector, "with full knowledge of all the circumstances," refused the request and threatened him with seizure if he bought anything whatever.
The Collector’s report, hereunto annexed, shows that Captain Jacobs entered his port on the 28th of October, full one month after the occurrence at Malpeque, that in entering he made affirmation that he called for shelter and repairs, and for other purpose whatever. That just before leaving he asked permission to purchase half a barrel of flour, and was asked by the Collector if he was without provisions, he replied that he was not, adding that he had “a good supply of all kinds of provisions except flour, and enough of that to last him home unless he met some unusual delay.”

Under these circumstances the Collector did not give the permission asked, but he made no threat of seizure of vessel or imposition of a penalty.

Mr. Bayard supports the complaint of Captain Jacobs that he was charged fees for entering his vessel at Canadian Customs, and that these fees varied at different ports, being for instance 15 cents at Souris, P.E.I., 50 cents at Port Mulgrave, and 50 cents at Port Hood, at which latter port Captain Jacobs sent his brother to enter for him, but was informed that his entry was illegal, and that he, as master, must himself enter his vessel.

He complains of being obliged to pay twice, once for his brother’s entry and once for his own.

The Minister states, with regard to this that no Collector of Customs in Canada is authorized to charge for entering or clearing a vessel, nor for any papers necessary to do this. Sailing masters however, who are unused to the law or not competent to make out their papers, are in the habit of employing persons as Customs brokers to make out their papers for them, and for this service these brokers charge a small fee. These are not Government officers nor under Government control, and their services are voluntarily paid for by those who employ them. The small fees which Captain Jacobs complains need not have been paid by him if he had been willing or qualified to make out his own papers. That he was not so willing or qualified, and that he employed a broker to make out his papers is conclusively shown by the following telegram received from the Collector at Port Hood, the charges at which port Mr. Secretary Bayard so vigourously denounces.

Copies of Telegrams.

Deputy Minister of Fisheries to Collector, Port Hood, N.S.

Ottawa, 16th March, 1887.

“Did you during last season exact from Captain Solomon Jacobs, of schooner ‘Mollie Adams,’ any charge for reporting or other service at Port Hood? If so, please state amount received and for what.”

Collector, Port Hood, to Deputy Minister of Fisheries.

Port Hood, N.S., 16th March, 1887.

“Solomon, of schooner ‘Mollie Adams,’ sent one of his crew to report 13th September last. He made report. I told him, however, that the report should be made by the master. A few hours afterwards Jacobs himself came and reported. They got Dan. McLennan, who is now in Halifax, to write out the reports. I believe he charged them 25 cents each for brokerage. No other charges whatever were made.”

The Minister states that he has no doubt that the other payments at Customs ports alluded to by Mr. Bayard were made for services rendered Captain Jacobs by persons making out his entry papers, and which he does not appear to have been qualified to do so himself.

With reference to Mr. Bayard’s reiteration of Captain Jacobs’s complaint that in different harbours he was obliged to pay a different scale of dues, the Minister of Marine submits that in Canada there are distinct classes of harbours; some are under the control of a Commission appointed wholly or in part by the Government, under whose management improvements are made, and which regulates, subject to the approval of the Government, the harbour dues which are to be paid by all vessels entering such ports and enjoying the advantage therein provided.

Others are natural harbours, in great part unimproved, whose limits are generally defined by Order in Council, and for which a Harbour Master is appointed by Government, to whom all vessels entering pay certain nominal Harbour Master’s dues, which are regulated by a general Act of Parliament, and which constitute a fund out of which the Harbour Master is paid a small salary for his services in maintaining order within the harbour. The Port of St. John, N.B., is entirely under municipal control, and has its own stated and uniform scale of charges.
Harbour dues are paid whenever a vessel enters a port which is under Commission, and Harbour Master's fees are paid only twice per calendar year by vessels entering ports not under a Commission. Sydney belongs to the first class, and at that port Captain Jacobs paid the legal harbour dues. Malpeque and Port Mulgrave belong to the second class, and in these Captain Jacobs paid the legal Harbour Master's fees, which for a vessel like his, of from 100 to 200 tons, is $1.50. That he paid only $1.00 in Malpeque is due to an error of the Harbour Master, who should have charged him $1.50, and by this error Captain Jacobs saved fifty cents, of which he should not complain. For full information as to the legal status of Canadian Harbours, Mr. Bayard is respectfully referred to the Canadian Statutes, 36 Vic., cap. 63; 42 Vic., cap. 30, and 38 Vic., cap. 30.

The Minister of Marine and Fisheries believes that after a thorough perusal of these, Mr. Bayard will not cite the payments made by Captain Jacobs as evidences of the "irresponsible and different treatment to which he was subjected in the several ports he visited, the only common feature of which seems to have been a surly hostility."

The Minister submits that from a careful consideration of all the circumstances, he cannot resist the conviction that in this whole transaction Captain Jacobs was more concerned in making up a case against the Canadian authorities than in unobtrusively performing any necessary acts of hospitality, and that his version of the matter, as sent to Mr. Bayard, is utterly unreliable.

The "Neskilita" was wrecked off a Canadian harbour; the crew, it is stated, came ashore in their own boat and unassisted. A Canadian Collector was on hand offering his services, and within easy reach of the Government, and the Captain "a Canadian cruiser was in port, yet Captain Jacobs would not appear, by his own story, to have taken complete charge of the Captain, to have ignored all proffered assistance, and to have constituted himself the sole guardian and spokesman of the wrecked crew, to have been a short-see that one sole man actuated by curiosity, would be inclined to make a report of the incident, amongst the native Canadians.

For any exercise of good will and assistance to Canadian seamen in distress, whether foreign or native vessels, the Canadian Government cannot but feel deeply grateful, and stands ready, as has been its invariable custom, to recognize suitably and reward such services, and when Captain Jacobs performs any necessary act of charitable help towards Canadian seamen in distress, without the obvious aim of manufacturing an international grievance thereon, he will not prove an exception to Canada's generous treatment.

The Minister observes that in a despatch to the Governor General, dated 27th December, 1886, and in reference to the same case, Mr. Stanhope writes: "With reference to my Despatch No. 272 of the 16th instant, relating to the case of the United States' fishing vessel "Mollie Adams," and referring to the general complaints made on the part of the United States' Government of the treatment of American fishing vessels in Canadian ports, I think it right to observe that whilst Her Majesty's Government do not assume the correctness of any allegations without first having obtained the explanations of the Dominion Government, they rely confidently upon your Ministers taking every care that Her Majesty's Government are not placed in a position of being obliged to defend any acts of questionable justice or propriety."

The Minister while thanking Her Majesty's Government for the assurance conveyed that it will not "assure the correctness of any allegations without having obtained the explanations of the Dominion Government" and whilst assuring Her Majesty's Government that every possible care has been and will be taken that no "acts of questionable justice or propriety" are committed by the officers of the Dominion Government, cannot refrain from calling attention to the loose, unreliable and unsatisfactory nature of much of the information supplied to the United States' Government, and upon which very grave charges are made and very strong language officially used against the Canadian authorities. For instance, as stated in a previous part of this report, the strong representations made by Mr. Bayard in the case of the "Mollie Adams" are based solely upon a letter written by Captain Jacobs not even accompanied by an official attestation and not supported by a tittle of corroborative evidence.

It does not appear that any attempt was made to investigate the truth of this story unreasonable and improbable as it must have appeared, as the letter written by Captain Jacobs bears date 12th November, while Mr. Bayard's note based thereupon is dated 1st December. It would seem only fitting that, in so grave a matter, involving as it does the good name of a friendly country, and the continued existence of previous amicable relations, great care should have been taken to avoid the use of such strong and even hostile language, based upon the unsupported statements of an interested skipper, and one whose reputation for straightforward conduct does not appear to be above reproach; if nothing else is to be given to the attached description taken from the Boston Advertiser, of a transaction said to have occurred in his native city, and in which Captain Jacobs appears to have played no enviable part.

Numerous other instances of like flimsy and unreliable foundations for charges made against the Canadian authorities in regard to their treatment of United States' fishing vessels cannot have failed to attract the attention of Her Majesty's Government in the despatches which from time to time have reached it from the United States.

The Master of a United States' fishing vessel, imperfectly understanding the provisions of the Convention of 1818, the requirements of the Canadian Customs laws, or the regulations of Canadian ports, having perhaps an exaggerated idea of his supposed rights, or it may be, desirous of evading all restrictions, is brought to book by officers of the law. He feels aggrieved, and angry and straightway conveys his supposed grievance to the authorities at Washington.

Thereupon, without any seeming allowance for the possibility of the statement being inaccurate or the narrator unfriendly, and with apparently no attempt to investigate the truth of the statement, it is made the basis of strong and unfriendly charges against the Canadian Government. Canada has suffered from such unfounded representations and against the course adopted by the United States Government in this respect the Minister enters his most earnest protest.

As an additional instance of the manner in which evidence is gathered and used to the prejudice of the Canadian case, the Minister calls attention to a communication submitted to the Senate of the United States by Mr. Edmunds, and which forms printed Document No. 54 of the 49th Congress, 2nd Session. This is the report of Mr. Spencer F. Baird, United States' Fish Commissioner, containing a list, with particulars, of 68 New England Fishing Vessels, which had, as he alleged, "been subjected to treatment which neither the Treaty of 1818, nor the principles of International law would seem to warrant."

The Minister observes that, it will appear, from a perusal of this report, that these 68 cases were made up by Mr. Baird's officer from answers of owners, agents or masters of fishing vessels, in response to a circular letter sent to all New England fishing vessels, inviting them to forward statements of any interference with their operations by the Canadian Government.

Not a single statement was investigated by the Commissioner, or any one acting for him, and not a single statement is accompanied by the affidavit of the person making it, or by corroborative evidence of any kind. In most instances, neither date, locality, nor name of Canadian officer is given, and an analysis of many of the cases affords prima facie evidence that they embody no real cause for complaint. Yet Mr. Baird and his officer, Mr. Earle, vouched for the correctness and entire reliability of these 68 statements. They were gravely submitted to the Senate as trustworthy evidence of Canadian aggression, and became no doubt powerful factors in influencing Congressional legislation hostile to Canadian and British interests.

The Minister, while inviting attention to, and strongly deprecating such action, as above recited, on the part of the United States, takes occasion, at the same time, to express his entire confidence that the rights of Canada will not thereby be in any degree prejudiced in the eyes of Her Majesty's Government.

The Committee concur in the foregoing report of the Minister of Marine and Fisheries, and they recommend that Your Excellency be moved to transmit a copy of this Minute, if approved, to the Right Honourable the Secretary of State for the Colonies.

All which is respectfully submitted for Your Excellency's approval.

[Enclosure No. 2.]

PORT MULGRAVE, N.S., 1st November, 1886.

Sir,—Referring to your letter of the 23th October, I beg ta say that on Monday the 30th August, the schooner "Mollie Adams," of Gloucester, Mass., Solomon Jacobs, Master, passed two Customs ports in the Strait of Canso before coming to my port. In fact he sent his boat (dory) with his brother and a Capt. Campbell to me, to see if I was not to have seven empty barrels to put water in. I asked the man what they did with their water barrels. They told me that they filled them with mackerel and that their tank leaked. I told the man that I had no power to allow them to purchase barrels, but I would borrow barrels to fill with water if they would caulk the tank. I also gave them a letter to take to my superior, asking him to allow Captain Jacobs to purchase the barrels. They went on board, told their story and the captain anchored his vessel and came ashore to see me. I offered to send a man on board to caulk the tank. In the meantime one of the crew came on shore.
and said that the cook had succeeded in tightening the tank, that it held salt water. I then borrowed the seven barrels to fill the water which they did, and I returned the barrels again, and the captain was well pleased, as he appeared so.

If this is not satisfactory I can make oath to the foregoing.

I am, &c.,

DAVID MURRAY, Jr.,
Sub-Collector Customs.

[Enclosure No. 3]

MALPEQUE, P.E.I., 7th January, 1857.

Sir,—I have the honour to acknowledge the receipt of your letter of the 29th December, covering statement made by Captain Jacobs, and now adjoin statement of facts as personally known by and communicated to me of wreck of "Neskilita," on Malpeque Bar, on Sunday night, 25th September last. Information reached me early on the following morning, and I at once proceeded to the harbour to see what assistance could be given in the case, where I met Captain Thornborne of "Neskilita," and Captain Jacobs in company, and was informed by latter that the crew were on board his vessel and assured that everything that could be done for their comfort was done. I was also given to understand that during the night the crew had abandoned their schooner and came in the harbour unassisted, in their seine-boat and boarded a Nova Scotia schooner lying in the harbour, and were next morning invited by Captain Jacobs to make his vessel their home. I was also informed by Captain McLaren, commander of the Canadian cruiser "Critia," that he also tendered his assistance and was rather haughtily received by Captain Jacobs, with the information that the crew were aboard his vessel and that he (Captain McLaren) did not think the case demanded him to force his assistance.

With regard to the wrecked vessel aboard of Capt. Jacobs' vessel, I have only to say that this is the first intimation I have ever heard of such material being aboard his vessel, except the crew's baggage, and that assuredly Captain Jacobs did not so far as I can recollect, make any request of me whatsoever with regard to the landing of wrecked material.

With reference to the saving of material from the wrecked vessel, I wish to say that I rendered the Captain of the "Neskilita," all necessary assistance in procuring suitable men to do that work (and who were thus employed by him) and although I am aware that Captain Jacobs did accompany the Captain of the "Neskilita" to the wreck, I cannot say in what capacity or under what authority he did so.

So far as the assertion that the crew received the means to take them home from Captain Jacobs is concerned, I know nothing positive, except that he (Captain Jacobs) asked me if the Canadian Government would remunerate him for his attention to the crew, and feeling that I had nothing to do with him, I merely replied that I did not know. But, I may say that shortly after the wreck occurred, the Captain of the "Neskilita," asked me if I could render them (the crew) any assistance in getting home, and I answered that I could not unless I was assured that they themselves were without the means of doing so, and that in any case I would have to telegraph to the Department at Ottawa for instructions. Here the matter stopped, the captain making no further application.

With regard to the delay of ten days said to be occasioned (Captain Jacobs), by reason of the shipwrecked crew, I may say that during the ten or fourteen days following on the said shipwreck, we had an almost continuous period of stormy weather, with the exception of a couple or so of fine days, which were taken advantage of by the fishing fleet, and one at least by Captain Jacobs himself, but by all reports received by me, resulting in little or no catches of mackerel.

These, so far as I can now recall them to memory, are the true facts in the case.

I am, Sir, &c.,

JAMES M. MAGNUTT,
Sub-Collector.

JOHN TILTON, Esq.,
Deputy Minister of Fisheries, Ottawa.
GEORGETOWN, P.E.I., 6th January, 1887.

Dear Sir,—Yours of the 30th ultimo to hand. In reference to the first part of the statement made by Captain Jacobs, I would say that he may have been off Malpeque, at the time the wreck occurred, but I do not think he took the crew off, as, so far as I could learn at the time, they came ashore in one of their own seine boats, and went first to a Nova Scotia vessel and afterwards on board the “Mollie Adams.”

On the morning after the wreck occurred, I went on board the “Mollie Adams,” and was immediately told by Captain Jacobs that he had made all arrangements for the crew, and having secured a team, was going with the Captain of the “Neskilita,” to the Custom House to note a protest. As I could see by the conduct of both Captains that I was not wanted, I returned to my own vessel. Afterwards in the course of a conversation with the Captain of the “Neskilita,” he informed me that he had sailed out of Gloucester for some time, and in the course of that time with Captain Jacobs.

As to the statement that he could not get a boarding house for his crew, I think it is false, as the crew of one of the American vessels wrecked about the same time had no difficulty in getting the people to board them. Once, while talking with Mr. Macnutt, the Collector of Customs at Malpeque, he mentioned that the Captain of the “Neskilita,” had engaged to board at his place, and he expressed his surprise that he was not coming. Both Captain Jacobs and the Captain of the “Neskilita” were committing a fraud in trying to get off with the seine of the wrecked vessel, as it belonged to the underwriters, and I think that it was the prospect of getting Captain Jacobs to get away with the seine, that prevented the Captain of the “Neskilita” from asking me for assistance. However, Captain Jacobs, on finding he could not carry out his fraud, presented a claim of $10 for the salvage of the seine and gear, which sum was paid him by Mr. Lem. Poole, of Charlottetown, who was acting in behalf of the underwriters. It may be possible that Captain Jacobs stayed at Malpeque after I sailed, but, if so, it was his own fault, as the crew of the “Neskilita” had gone home before them.

It is my opinion that Captain Jacobs need not have lost one hour of time, for during the time the “Neskilita’s” crew were on board his vessel, the fleet with the exception of one or two small vessels, was anchored at Malpeque, and unable to put to sea owing to the heavy sea on the bar.

As to the paying of the crew’s passage home, I can say nothing, except that if he did, he did voluntarily, as the Captain of the “Neskilita” could have sent his crew home without his assistance.

Yours respectfully,

CUSTOM HOUSE, PORT MIDWAY, 6th January, 1887.

Sir,—In reply to your letter of the 30th ultimo, enclosing extract of statement made by Capt. S. Jacobs, of the schooner “Mollie Adams,” I have to say, that on the 25th October last, Capt. S. Jacobs, of the schooner “Mollie Adams,” reported at this office. His report is now before me, in which he averred that he called here for shelter and repairs and for no other purpose. After making his report, and when about leaving the office, Capt. Jacobs asked if I would allow him to purchase a half barrel of flour. I asked him if he was without provisions and he replied that he was not, adding that he had a good supply of all kinds of provisions except flour, and enough of that to last him home, unless he met with some unusual delay. I then told him that under the circumstances I could not give him permission to purchase the flour, but no threat was made about seizing his vessel or imposing any penalty whatever.

The above I am quite willing to substantiate under oath, and can produce a witness to the truth of the statement.

I am, &c.,

GLOUCESTER POLITICS.

An appearance of Ballot Stuffing—George Morse Nominated for Mayor.

GLOUCESTER, Nov. 13th.—At a citizens mass meeting held here this evening, Lawyer Taft, chairman, to nominate a mayor, a committee consisting of J. J. Whalen, Albert P. Babson, Captain Solomon Jacobs, J. N. Dennison and Edwin L. Lane was appointed to count ballots. After much wrangling one informal and three formal ballots were taken, when Mr. Dennison made a minority report, accusing Captain Solomon Jacobs of stuffing the ballot box. William T. Merchant counted the ballots while being cast, making 264, but the committee reported 312 cast, which tended to show that Jacobs had put in 48 illegally.

Much excitement prevailed, and a motion was made that he be dismissed from the committee. The chairman called for Jacobs to come forward and explain his action, but it was found that he had disappeared. He was in favour of David J. Robinson as candidate for mayor, but went over to William A. Pew, Jr.

Another ballot was taken and Dr. George Morse received the nomination.
The Senate Bill, on the contrary, was retaliation—it was retaliation in kind—always the most efficient. The House, however, refused to adopt the argument and adhered to the Substitute Bill which was unanimously carried.

I have the honour to enclose a précis which I have made of the debate.

No. 193.

Lord Lansdowne to Sir Henry Holland.

CANADA, GOVERNMENT HOUSE, OTTAWA, 12th April, 1887.

SIR,—I caused to be referred for the consideration of my Government a copy of your despatch, No. 42, of the 23rd of February last, transmitting copy of a letter from the Foreign Office, with its enclosures, respecting the case of the "Sarah H. Prior," and requesting to be furnished with a report upon the alleged conduct of the Captain of the Canadian revenue cutter "Critic" on the occasion referred to, and I have now the honour to forward to you herewith a certified copy of an approved Report of a Committee of the Privy Council embodying a statement of Captain McLaren of the "Critic" with reference to the circumstances complained of.

I have, &c.

(Sd.) Lansdowne.

To Right Honourable,

SIR HENRY HOLLAND, BART., &c., &c., &c.

[Enclosure No. 1.]

CERTIFIED COPY of a Report of a Committee of the Honourable the Privy Council for Canada, approved by His Excellency the Governor General in Council on the 7th April, 1887.

The Committee of the Privy Council have had under consideration a despatch dated 23rd February, 1887, from the Right Honourable the Secretary of State for the Colonies asking that an investigation be made into the conduct of the Captain of the Canadian cruiser "Critic" as regards the treatment extended to Captain McLauchlan, of the United States' fishing schooner "Sarah H. Prior" in the harbour of Malpeque, Prince Edward Island, in September last.

The Minister of Marine and Fisheries, to whom the despatch was referred, submits the following statement of Captain McLaren, of the "Critic," with reference to the circumstances complained of.
On or about the 14th September, 1886, Captain McLauchlan, of the "Sarah H. Prior," came on board the Government cruiser "Cree," at Malpeque, Prince Edward Island, wanting to know if he would be infringing on the laws by paying the captain of the schooner "John Ingalls" a small sum of money for the recovery of a seine which he said he had lost a few days before, and which had been picked up by the said captain.

I told him that I would not interfere with him if the captain of the "Ingalls" chose to run the risk of taking the matter in his own hands, but that the proper course would be for the captain of the "John Ingalls" to report the matter to the Collector of Customs, who was also Receiver of Wrecks, and then if he (Captain McLaren) could prove that the seine was his, he could recover it by paying the costs. Captain McLaren then said, that as the seine was all torn to pieces he would not bother himself about it.

The captain of the "John Ingalls" did not come to see me about the matter, and I heard nothing of it afterwards.

(Sd.) W. McLaren.

The Committee respectfully advise that Your Excellency be moved to forward the foregoing statement of Captain McLaren to the Right Honourable the Secretary of State for the Colonies in answer to his despatch of the 23rd February last.

No. 194.

Sir H. Holland to Lord Lansdowne.

Downing Street, 14th April, 1887.

My Lord,—With reference to previous correspondence, I have the honour to transmit to you, for the information of Your Lordship's Government, a copy of the reply which the Marquis of Salisbury has made to Mr. Phelps' note of the 3rd of December last, on the subject of the proposed ad interim arrangement relative to the North American Fisheries.

I have, &c.,

(Sd.) H. T. Holland.

[Enclosure No. 1.]

The Marquis of Salisbury to Mr. White.

Foreign Office, 24th March, 1887.

Sir,—In a note of the 3rd December last, addressed to my predecessor, Mr. Phelps was good enough to transmit a copy of a despatch from Mr. Bayard, dated the 15th of the preceding month, together with an outline of a proposed ad interim arrangement "for the settlement of all questions in dispute in relation to the fisheries in the North-Eastern Coast of British North America."

Her Majesty's Government have given their most careful consideration to that communication, and it has also received the fullest examination at the hands of the Canadian Government, who entirely share the satisfaction felt by Her Majesty's Government.
at any indication on the part of that of the United States of a disposition to make arrangements which might tend to put the affairs of the two countries on a basis more free from controversy and misunderstanding than unfortunately exists at present. The Canadian Government, however, deprecates several passages in Mr. Bayard’s despatch, which attribute unfriendly motives to their proceedings, and in which the character and scope of the measures they have taken to enforce the terms of the Convention of 1818 are, as they believe, entirely misapprehended.

They insist that nothing has been done on the part of the Canadian authorities since the termination of the Treaty of Washington in any such spirit as that which Mr. Bayard condemns, and that all that has been done with a view to the protection of the Canadian fisheries, has been simply for the purpose of guarding the rights guaranteed to the people of Canada by the Convention of 1818, and of enforcing the Statutes authorized by Britain and of Canada in relation to the fisheries. They maintain that such Statutes are clearly within the powers of the respective Parliaments by which they were passed, and are in conformity with the Convention of 1818, especially in view of the passage of the Convention which provides that the American fishermen shall be under such restrictions as shall be necessary to prevent them from abusing the privileges thereby reserved to them.

There is a passage in Mr. Bayard’s despatch to which they have particularly called the attention of the Canadian Government. It is the following:

“The numerous seizures made have been of vessels quietly at anchor in established ports of entry, under charges which up to this day have not been particularized sufficiently to allow of intelligent defence; not one has been condemned after trial and hearing, but many have been fined, without hearing or judgment, for technical violation of alleged Commercial Regulations, although all commercial privileges have been simultaneously denied to them.”

In relation to this paragraph the Canadian Government observe that the seizures of which Mr. Bayard complains have been made upon grounds which have been distinctly and unequivocally stated in every case; that, although the nature of the charges has been invariably specified and duly announced, those charges have not in any case been answered; that ample opportunity has in every case been afforded for a defence to be submitted to the Executive authorities, but that no defence has been offered beyond the more denials of the right of the Canadian Government; that the Courts of the various Provinces have been open to the parties said to be aggrieved, but that not one of them has resorted to those Courts for redress. To this it is objected that the illegal acts which are the subject of denials by Mr. Bayard as “technical violations of alleged Commercial Regulations,” involved breaches, in most of the cases not denied by the persons who had committed them, of established Commercial Regulations, which, from being specially directed or enforced against citizens of the United States, are obligatory upon all vessels (including those of Canada herself) which resort to the harbours of the British North American coast.

I have thought it right, in justice to the Canadian Government, to embody in this note almost in their own terms the substance of the charges brought against them by Mr. Bayard; but I would prefer not to dwell on this part of the controversy, but to proceed at once to the consideration of the six articles of Mr. Bayard’s memorandum in which the proposals of your Government are embodied.

Mr. Bayard states that he is “encouraged in the expectation that the propositions embodied in the memorandum will be acceptable to Her Majesty’s Government, because in the month of April, 1866, Mr. Seward, then Secretary of State, sent forward to Mr. Adams, at that time United States’ Minister in London, the draft of a Protocol which, in substance, coincides with the 1st Article of the proposals now submitted.”

Article I of the memorandum, no doubt to some extent, resembles the draft Protocol submitted in 1866, by Mr. Adams to Lord Clarendon (of which I enclose a copy for convenience of reference), but it contains some important departures from its terms.

Nevertheless, the article comprises the elements of a possible accord, and if it stood alone, I have little doubt that it might be so moulded, with the concurrence of your Government and of Her Majesty’s Government of that of Canada, would give rise to endless and unprofitable discussion, and which, if retained, would be fatal to the prospect of any satisfactory arrangement, inasmuch as they appear, as a whole, to be based on the assumption that upon the most important points in the controversy the views entertained by Her Majesty’s Government and that of Canada are wrong, and those of the United States’ Government are right, and to imply an admission by Her Majesty’s Government and that of Canada that such assumption is well founded.

Unfortunately, I should exceed the limits to which an answer of such length as I attempted, I have, therefore, thought it more convenient to do so in the form of a counter-memorandum which I have the honour to enclose, and in which will be found in parallel columns, the articles of Mr. Bayard's memorandum and the observations of Her Majesty's Government thereon.

That memorandum, on which I am about to peruse, the observations of those observations, the proposal of your Government as it now stands is not one which could be accepted by Her Majesty's Government, still Her Majesty's Government are glad to think that the fact of such a proposal having been made affords an opportunity which, up to the present time, had not been offered for an amicable comparison of the views entertained by the respective Governments.

The main principle of that Proposal is that a mixed commission should be appointed for the purpose of determining the limits of those territorial waters within which, subject to the stipulations of the Convention of 1818, the exclusive right of fishing belongs to Great Britain. Her Majesty's Government cordially agree with your Government in believing that a determination of these limits would, whatever may be the future commercial relations between Canada and the United States either in respect of the fishing industry or in regard to the interchange of other commodities, be extremely desirable and they will be found ready to co-operate with your Government in effecting such settlement.

They are of opinion that Mr. Bayard was justified in reverting to the precedent afforded by the negotiations which took place upon this subject between Great Britain and the United States at the Convention of 1818, and they concur with him in believing that the draft Protocol communicated by Mr. Adams in 1866 to the Earl of Clarendon affords a valuable indication of the lines upon which a negotiation directed to the same points might now be allowed to proceed.

Mr. Bayard has himself pointed out that its concluding paragraph, to which Lord Clarendon emphatically objected, is not contained in the 1st Article of the memorandum now forwarded by him; but he appears to have lost sight of the fact that the remaining Articles of that protocol were never open to objection, and calculated to affect even more disadvantageously the permanent interests of the Dominion in the fisheries adjacent to its coasts.

There can be no objection on the part of Her Majesty's Government to the appointment of a mixed Commission, whose duty it would be to consider and report upon the matters referred to in the three first Articles of the draft Protocol communicated to the Earl of Clarendon by Mr. Adams in 1866.

Should a Commission instructed to deal with those subjects be appointed at an early date, the result of its investigations might be reported to the Governments affected without much loss of time. Pending the termination of the questions which it would discuss, it would be indispensable that United States' fishing vessels entering Canadian bays and harbours should govern themselves not only according to the terms of the Convention of 1818, but by the regulations to which they, in common with other vessels, are subject while within such waters.

Her Majesty's Government, however, have no doubt that every effort will be made to enforce those regulations in such a manner as to cause the smallest amount of inconvenience to fishing vessels entering Canadian ports under stress of weather, or for any other legitimate purpose.

But there is another course which Her Majesty's Government are inclined to propose, and which, in their opinion, would afford a temporary solution of the controversy equally creditable to both parties.

Her Majesty's Government have never been informed of the reasons which induced the Government of the United States to denounce the Fishery Articles of the Treaty of Washington, but they have understood that the adopion of that course was in a great degree the result of a feeling of disappointment at the Halifax Award, under which the United States were called upon to pay the sum of £1,100,000, being the estimated value of the benefits which would accrue to them, in excess of those which would be derived by Canada and Newfoundland from the operation of the Fishery Articles of the Treaty.

Her Majesty's Government and the Government of Canada, in proof of their earnest desire to terminate the question of the Fishery in a spirit of liberality and good-nature, would, if necessary, revert for the coming fishing season, and, if necessary, for a further term, to the condition of things existing under the Treaty of Washington, without any suggestion of pecuniary indemnity.

This is a proposal which, I trust, will commend itself to your Government as being based on that spirit of generosity and good-will which should animate two great and kindred nations, whose common origin, language, and institutions constitute as many bonds of amity and concord.

I have, &c.,

(Sd.) SALISBURY.

[Enclosure No. 2.]

Draft Protocol communicated by Mr. Adams to the Earl of Clarendon, in 1866.

Whereas in the 1st Article of the Convention between the United States and Great Britain, concluded and signed in London on the 26th October, 1818, it was declared that—

"The United States hereby renounce, forever, any liberty heretofore enjoyed or claimed by the inhabitants thereof, to take, dry or cure fish on or within three marine miles of any of the coasts, bays, creeks, or harbours of His Britannic Majesty's Dominions in America, not included within certain limits heretofore mentioned."

And whereas differences have arisen in regard to the extent of the above-mentioned renunciation, the President of the United States and Her Majesty the Queen of Great Britain, being equally desirous of avoiding further misunderstanding, have agreed to appoint, and do hereby authorize the appointment, of a mixed Commission for the following purposes, namely:—

1. To agree upon and define, by a series of lines, the limits which shall separate the exclusive from the common right of fishery, on the coasts and in the seas adjacent, of the British North American Colonies, in conformity with the 1st Article of the Convention of 1818. The said lines to be regularly numbered, duly described, and also clearly marked on charts prepared, in duplicate, for the purpose.

2. To agree upon and establish such regulations as may be necessary and proper to secure to the fishermen of the United States the privilege of entering bays and harbours for the purpose of shelter; and of repairing damages therein, of purchasing wood, and of obtaining water; and to agree upon and establish such restrictions as may be necessary to prevent the abuse of the privilege reserved by said Convention to fishermen of the United States.

3. To agree upon and recommend the penalties to be adjudged, and such proceedings and jurisdiction as may be necessary to secure a speedy trial and judgment with as little expense as possible, for the violation of rights and the transgression of the limits and restrictions which may be hereby adopted.

Provided, however, that the limits, restrictions and regulations which may be agreed upon by the said Commission shall not be final, nor have any effect, until so jointly confirmed and declared by the United States and Her Majesty the Queen of Great Britain, either by treaty or by laws mutually acknowledged and accepted by the President of the United States, by and with the consent of the Senate and by Her Majesty the Queen of Great Britain.

Pending a definitive arrangement on the subject, the United States' Government engages to give all proper orders to officers in its employment; and Her Britannic Majesty's Government engages to instruct the proper Colonial or other British officers to abstain from hostile acts against British and United States' fishermen respectively."

The most important departure in Article I from the Protocol of 1866 is the interpolation of the stipulation, "that the bays and harbours from which American vessels are in future to be excluded, save for the purposes for which entrance into bays and harbours is permitted by said article, are hereby agreed to be taken to be such harbours as are 10 or less than 10 miles in width, and the distance of three marine miles from such bays and harbours shall be measured from a straight line drawn across the bay or harbour in the part nearest the entrance at the first point where the width does not exceed ten miles."

This provision would involve a surrender of fishing rights which have always been regarded as the exclusive property of Canada, and would make common fishing grounds of territorial waters which, by the law of nations, have been invariably regarded both in Great Britain and the United States as belonging to the adjacent country. In the case, for instance, of the Baie des Chaleurs, a peculiarly well marked and almost land-locked indentation of the Canadian coast, the ten-mile line would be drawn from points in the heart of Canadian territory, and almost seventy miles distant from the natural entrance or mouth of the bay. This would be done in spite of the fact that, both by imperial legislation and by judicial interpretation, this bay has been declared to form a part of the territory of Canada. (See
The Convention with France in 1839, and similar conventions with other European powers, form no precedents for the adoption of a ten-mile limit. Those conventions were doubtless passed with a view to the geographical peculiarities of the coast to which they related.

They had for their object the definition of boundary lines, which, owing to the configuration of the coast, perhaps could not readily be settled by reference to the law of nations and involve other conditions which are applicable to the territorial waters of Canada.

This is shown by the fact that in the French convention the whole of the oyster beds in Granville Bay, otherwise called the Bay of Cancale, the entrance of which exceeds ten miles in width, were regarded as French, and the enjoyment of them is reserved to the local fishermen.

A reference to the action of the United States' Government and to the admission made by their statesmen in regard to bays on the American coast, strengthens this view; and the case of the English ship "Orange" shows that the Government of the United States in 1793 claimed Delaware Bay as being within territorial waters.

Mr. Bayard contends that the rule which he seeks to have set up was adopted by the umpire of the commission appointed under the Convention of 1854 in the case of the United States fishing schooner "Washington," that it was by him applied to the Bay of Fundy, and that it was for this reason applicable to other Canadian bays.

It is submitted, however, that as one of the headlands of the Bay of Fundy is in the territory of the United States, any rule of international law applicable to that bay are not therefore equally applicable to other bays, the headlands of which are both within the territory of the same power.

The second paragraph of the 1st Article does not incorporate the exact language of the Convention of 1818. For instance the words "and for no other purpose whatever," should be inserted after the mention of the purposes for which vessels may enter Canadian waters, and after the words "as may be necessary to prevent," should be inserted "their taking, drying, or curing fish therein, or in any other manner abusing the privileges reserved," &c.

To make the language conform correctly to the Convention of 1818, several other verbal alterations, which need not be enumerated here, would be necessary.

Article II would suspend the operation of the Statutes of Great Britain and of Canada, and of the Provinces now constituting Canada, not only as to the various offences connected with fishing, but as to Customs, harbours and shipping, and would give to the fishing vessels of the United States privileges in Canadian ports which are not enjoyed by vessels of any other class, or of any other nation. Such vessels would, for example, be free from the duty of reporting at the Customs on entering a Canadian harbour, and no safeguard could be adopted to prevent infraction of the Customs laws by any vessel asserting the character of a fishing vessel of the United States.

Instead of allowing to such vessels merely the restricted privileges reserved by the Convention of 1818, it would give them greater privileges than are enjoyed at the present time by any vessel in any part of the world.

Article III would deprive the Courts in Canada of their jurisdiction, and would vest that jurisdiction in a tribunal not bound by legal principles, but clothed with supreme authority to decide on most important rights of the Canadian people.

It would submit such rights to the adjudication of two naval officers, one of them belonging to a foreign country, who, if they should disagree and be unable to choose an umpire, must refer the final decision of the great interests which might be at stake to some person chosen by lot.

If a vessel charged with infraction of Canadian fishing rights should be thought worthy of being subjected to a "judicial examination," she would be sent to the Vice-Admiralty Court at Halifax; but there would be no redress, no appeal, and no reference to any tribunal if the naval officers should think proper to release her.

It should, however, be observed, that the limitation in the second sentence of this Article of the violations of the Convention which are to render a vessel liable to seizure, could not be accepted by Her Majesty's Government.

For these reasons, the Article, in the form proposed, is inadmissible; but Her Majesty's Government are not indisposed to agree to the principle of a joint enquiry by the naval officers of the two countries in the first instance, the vessel to be sent for trial at Halifax, if the naval officers do not agree that she should be released.

They fear, however, that there would be serious practical difficulties in giving effect to this arrangement, owing to the great length of coast, and the delays, which must in consequence be frequent, in securing the presence at the same time and place of the naval officers of both powers.

R.
Article IV is also open to grave objection. It proposes to give the United States' fishing vessels the same commercial privileges as those to which other vessels of the United States are entitled, although such privileges are expressly renounced by the Convention of 1818 on behalf of fishing vessels, which were thereafter to be denied the right of access to Canadian waters for any purpose whatever, except those of shelter, repairs, and the purchase of wood and water. It has frequently been pointed out that an attempt was made, during the negotiations which preceded the Convention of 1818, to obtain for the fishermen of the United States the right of obtaining bait in Canadian waters, and that this attempt was successfully resisted. In spite of this fact, it is proposed, under this Article, to declare that the Convention of 1818 gave that privilege, as well as the privilege of purchasing other supplies in the harbours of the Dominion.

Article V proposes to give retrospective effect to the unjustified interpretation sought to be placed on the Convention by the last preceding Article.

It is assumed, without discussion, that all United States' fishing vessels which have been seized since the expiration of the Treaty of Washington, have been illegally seized, leaving as the only question still open for consideration, the amount of damages for which the Canadian authorities are liable.

Such a proposal seems to Her Majesty's Government quite inadmissible.

Article VI calls for no remark.

No. 185.

The Governor General to Sir Henry Holland.

[No. 140.]

GOVERNMENT HOUSE,
OTTAWA, 27th April, 1887.

Sir,—With reference to previous correspondence on the subject of the Fishery Question, I have the honour to transmit to you a copy of an approved Minute of my Privy Council, to which is appended a copy of the Special Instructions issued for this season to the officers in command of vessels employed in the protection of the Canadian Fisheries on the Atlantic coast.

I have much pleasure in calling your attention to the passages in which the Minister impresses upon such officers that in carrying out these instructions they are to be most careful not to strain the interpretation of the law in the direction of interference with the rights and privileges remaining to the United States' fishermen in Canadian waters, under the Convention of 1818, and that the largest liberty compatible with the full protection of Canadian interests is to be granted to United States' vessels in obtaining in Canadian waters the privileges to which they are entitled under that Convention.

You will also observe that it has been determined to authorize the captains of cruisers in harbours to which United States' fishing vessels are accustomed to resort for shelter only, to take entry from and grant clearance to the Masters of such vessels without requiring them to go on shore for that purpose. This step has been taken in order to avoid the delay which has in some cases inevitably taken place owing to the necessity of requiring Masters of these fishing vessels to report to the collector at the nearest Customs port, which might be at some distance from that part of the harbour which the vessel had entered.

CERTIFIED COPY of a Report of a Committee of the Honourable the Privy Council, approved by His Excellency the Governor General in Council, on the 25th April, 1887.

The Committee of the Privy Council, on the recommendation of the Minister of Marine and Fisheries, submit for Your Excellency's approval, the annexed Special Instructions to the Officers in command of the Fisheries Protection Vessels.

(Sd.) JOHN J. McGEE,
Clerk, Privy Council.

To the Honourable
THE MINISTER OF MARINE AND FISHERIES.

[Enclosure No. 2.]

DEPARTMENT OF FISHERIES, CANADA,

OTTAWA, 16th April, 1887.

Special Instructions to Fishery Officers in command of Fisheries' Protection Vessels.

Sir,—In reference to the letter of this Department, dated 16th March, 1886, I have to intimate to you that during the present season, and until otherwise ordered, you will be guided in the performance of the duties entrusted to you by the instructions contained in that letter.

I have every reason for believing that these have been executed with efficiency and firmness, as well as with discretion, and a due regard to the rights secured by Treaty to foreign fishing vessels resorting to Canadian waters.

I desire, however, to impress upon you that, in carrying out those instructions and protecting Canadian inshore fisheries, you should be most careful not to strain the interpretation of the law in the direction of interference with the rights and privileges remaining to United States' fishermen in Canadian waters under the Convention of 1818. To this end, the largest liberty compatible with the full protection of Canadian interests is to be granted United States' fishing vessels in obtaining in our waters, shelter, repairs, wood and water. Care should be taken that while availing themselves of these privileges, such vessels do not engage in any illegal practices, and all proper supervision necessary to accomplish this object is to be exercised, but it is not deemed necessary that in order to effect this an armed guard should be placed on board, or that any reasonable communication with the shore should be prohibited, after the vessel has duly entered, unless sufficient reasons appear for the exercise of such precautions.

In places where United States' fishing vessels are accustomed to come into Canadian waters for shelter only, the Captain of the Cruiser which may be there is authorized to take entry from and grant clearance to the masters of such fishing vessels without requiring them to go on shore for that purpose. Blank forms of entry and clearance are furnished to the Captains of Cruisers; these, after being filled in, are to be forwarded by the Captain of the Cruiser to the Customs Officer of the ports within whose jurisdiction they have been used. In cases of distress, disaster, need of provisions for the homeward voyage, of sickness or death on board, foreign vessels, all needful facilities are to be granted for relief, and both you and your officers will be carrying out the wishes of the Department in courteous and freely giving assistance in such instances.

The above special instructions, while designed with regard to the fullest recognition of all lawful rights and reasonable liberties to which United States' fishermen are entitled in Can-

R
Canadian waters, are not to be construed as authorizing a lax enforcement of the provisions of the laws for the protection of the Canadian fisheries. Fishing, preparing to fish, procuring bait, trading or transhipping of cargoes by United States' fishing vessels within the three-mile limit, are manifest violations of the Convention of 1818, and of the Imperial and Canadian Statutes, and in these cases your instructions which are explicit are to be faithfully followed.

I have, &c.,

(Sd.) GEO. E. FOSTER,
Minister of Marine and Fisheries.
